PETITION PRESIDENT.
 Realizing that President Wilson is an enthusiastic golfer, the National Golf association has requested him to instruct the department of agriculture to investigate the kinds of grasses most suitable for golf links. Practically every other human activity is probed or investigated by the department, why not golf?

It is estimated that the golfers' vote is 400,000. Surely this should have the proper pressure. The golf links are becoming an increasing percentage of the national domain. That day may even come when we will have federal regulation of golf.
 Who can tell?
 Let us have a scientific investigation of the proper "golf grasses," by all means.

If there is any field not invaded by government inspection, it is high time that such a condition ceased to exist. With the game growing in favor both with presidents and presidential aspirants, it is high time that its status attracted notice in official circles.

EAST GRAND FORKS.
 Nothing justified the closing of the East Grand Forks saloons so much as the disgraceful revelry that ushered in their oblivion. The vicious appeal the dram shop makes was evident in all its bestial aspects.

There are few social ulcers so menacing as the saloon. That they have thrived is a sad commentary upon society. The saloon is a strictly American institution. There are conditions incident to the sale of liquor in the United States which do not obtain anywhere else on the face of the globe.

In East Grand Forks, saloons of the worst type could be found. Here the fetsam and jetsam of the West gathered. It was the first wet spot in many a mile for those traveling east and the last until the Montana border was reached for those headed west. Protection afforded criminals, especially yeggmen, who made their fall headquarters in East Grand Forks became notorious. Arson gangs used to operate with impunity from this cesspool.

Thirty-two saloons and fifteen breweries did a thriving business in what was popularly known as one of the "toughest cities in the states." The town's liquor bill was more than $500,000 yearly.

The American saloon is on its last legs. Rural centers are doing the pioneer work in ridding society of this social cancer. The large cities will follow in the reform work. Public sentiment was never so aroused against the traffic.

But with the abolition of the saloon, society must furnish some social center. The saloon's appeal is not solely the liquor dispensed. No one has invented a better synonym for the saloon than the "poor man's club." Revile it as we may, those behind the saloon read human nature much better than the reformer, who fails to realize that the abolition of the saloon puts a certain responsibility upon society to satisfy the longing in a man's heart for some kind of convivial association with his fellow-men.

THEORIES AS REMEDIES.

When President Cleveland declared that "A condition, not a theory, confronts us," he placed in epigrammatic form a truth just as applicable to the present administration, but which this administration absolutely refuses to recognize. When Democratic tariff legislation had almost destroyed American industry, President Wilson refused to recognize it as a condition, but insisted that it was merely "a state of mind." Despite his threats to hang someone "higher than Haman," business continued to decline and no one was sent to the gallows, either literally or figuratively. Having caused the bad conditions which existed, the Democratic party had no power to improve them, because its one remedy was the pursuit of theories which had been demonstrated to be unsound.

The same persistent refusal to act in accordance with conditions prevails today. We have an illustration of it in the policy which the administration indicates its purpose to pursue in preventing the extermination of new industries by foreign competition after the war in Europe has ended. Doctor E. E. Pratt, chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, acknowledges that Germany has the power to resume its control of the dyestuff industry in this country, but says nothing of the same condition which confronts practically all other American industries which come into competition with European enterprise. The same attitude of mind is maintained by Secretary Redfield, of the department of commerce, the immediate superior of Dr. Pratt. Instead of frankly recognizing the condition which confronts American industry and the certain effects of a protective tariff, he adopts the theory that this foreign competition could be shut out through changes in the Clayton anti-trust act. He went so far as to outline a law which would make it unlawful for any person engaged in foreign commerce or industry to sell or purchase foreign products at such prices as would substantially eliminate competition on the part of American producers.

The marvelous thing about this suggestion is that it comes at a time when the United States treasury is admittedly lacking in revenue. Instead of suggesting the obvious remedy, that of protective tariff, which would provide revenue for the United States treasury at the same time that it provided protection for American industry, Mr. Redfield suggests the theoretical remedy of legislation which would be difficult of enforcement, because each particular offense would require a criminal trial to determine whether or not the price at which the goods were being sold was, in fact, such as to create unfair competition before the foreign goods are entered at American ports. A remedy which consisted only of criminal law forbidding unfair competition would invite the foreigner to invade our markets, because the dealer would be free from penalty, unless it could be olated the law. The presumption of he had knowingly and deliberately violated the law. The presumption of innocence, as in the case of all criminal statutes, would be on the side of the defendant. Instead of establishing a presumption in favor of the American producer, a law attempting to control unfair competition through criminal statutes would give the foreign producer a decided advantage. American industries were built up under a protective tariff system. In two instances within the memory of this generation, American industries have been practically ruined by the enactment of tariff for revenue only laws. These are conditions. President Wilson would treat them as "a state of mind." The secretary of commerce has no remedy except theories.

CLASS OF 1917.

France has won the admiration of the world for her conduct in this war. Even from German circles there is less bitterness toward the French than any of the Entente powers. France is suffering most under this war of attrition.

The call issued to the Class of 1917 shows the drain of the struggle upon the manhood of France. Mere boys are being summoned to the colors. It would seem that the end must come ere long. France is offering up the flower of her nation in what is her merely a defensive struggle.

The slaughter must have been terrible to reduce the nation to the Class of 1917, which comprises those who will not be ready for military duty until more than a year.

Just how the Allies can spare the men to continue to wage a war of attrition no one has yet made clear.

the little bridge of Serbia which lies between the Sittica river and the Albanian and Montenegrin frontier. It can be provisioned from Scutari, from which place the Montenegrins have built good roads during their occupation.

Still Hold Monastir.
 Monastir is still in the possession of the Serbians, although the Bulgarians are rapidly pushing toward it. While the army of General Gallwitz is reported to be on the way down the Vardar valley to help the Bulgarians attack the Anglo-French forces.

Italians Irresistible.
 Heavy canonading continues on the western front, which has put a stop to any big movement on the western front, while the Italians are resisting their offensive and are daily getting nearer Gorizia, across the Isonzo, and Rovereto and Riva in the Trentino.

Turks Offensive Move Broken.
 Heavy fighting has been in progress in the last few days in Gallipoli, where the Turks undertook a strong offensive movement, but were repulsed by the combined fire of the British and French guns. Allied aeroplanes have bombarded the railway between Constantinople and Dedeaghat, damaging the bridges, and warships have bombarded the coast of Asia Minor. This information is contained in the official communication issued tonight by the French war office which also reports quiet on the western front.

Russians in Bulgaria Within Week.
 The Russian emperor has addressed a personal telegram to the Serbian premier, according to a Saloniki dispatch of Wednesday to the Daily Telegram, London, in which he promises the appearance in a week hence in Bulgaria of Russian troops. The Italian government, according to this dispatch, also have promised to send a contingent of 40,000 men.

Captured 16,800 Serbs.
 In the capture of Mitrovitz and Pristina, Vienna asserts that 16,800 Serbs and a large number of guns and quantities of ammunition and other war material were taken.

Germania Retreat.
 A Petrograd dispatch to the Morning Post, London, says: "The Germans have commenced the evacuation of their forward base in the Riga-Dvinsk region."

Swiss Frontier Closed.
 Germany has again closed the Swiss frontier from Basle to Constance. It will probably be closed for a week. The reason for this action is unknown.

The battle between the Villa and the Dieguez (Carranza) forces was still in progress in Hermosillo today, according to official Carranza reports received at Douglas, Ariz., tonight.

WAIVED HEARING—BOND $500.
 Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 25.—L. M. Buck of Grand Forks, arrested by Detroit, Minn., authorities on the charge of passing a worthless check for $12 on F. E. Lurton of this city, made out on the Merchants' National bank of Detroit, was arraigned in municipal court here before Judge William Rasmussen. He waived a preliminary hearing and will appear before the grand jury at the January term of court. Bail was fixed at $500.

HOME FROM WASHINGTON.
 Fargo, N. D., Nov. 25.—E. F. Ladd, dean of the chemical department of the agricultural college and pure food commissioner of North Dakota, has returned from Washington, D. C., where he has been attending the annual meeting of the Official Agricultural Chemists' association and a session of the committee on standards of which he is a member.

NEW POWER FOR GRAND FORKS.
 With the poles all set from Grand Forks to the big power dam near Crookston, the work of stretching the wires, which will furnish hydro-electric power for Grand Forks, is progressing rapidly. Wm. H. Brown, general manager of the Red River Power company, which is to secure the power from Crookston, stated today that the wires are stretched from Grand Forks to a point a couple of miles on the other side of Fisher. It is expected that the line will be ready for service by February 1.

WITH THE EDITORS

THE RICHEST CITY.
 If you were asked hurriedly "which is America's richest city?" would you answer New York City? Most of us would, without stopping to think much about it, for we have heard so much of wealth in the new world's greatest city that we naturally associate riches with it.

But it is not the richest city, not when based on bank deposits and total population. Right here in the great Northwest lies America's richest city! It is Bottineau, N. D. Its per capita wealth, based on bank deposits, is $735.59. For years Prescott, Ariz., was the richest city, having a per capita wealth of $528.29. More recently Decorah, Ia., laid claim to the title, with $699 of bank deposits per capita. Now Bottineau is richest of them all, with a per capita bank deposit probably never equaled before in American history.

All of which goes to show that Northwesterners not only know how to earn money, but how to save it.—St. Paul Daily News.

"DEFICIENT, UNSANITARY UNFIT FOR OCCUPATION"

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 25.—The home of the Children's Aid society, a provincial institution, is "woefully deficient, insanitary and unhealthy," according to the findings of the grand jury of the Eastern Manitoba district, submitted to Justice Prendergast at the conclusion of an inspection of all provincial institutions. The jury recommends the establishment of new quarters for the children at once. At the Selkirk asylum for the insane the jury says it found an inmate who has been declared perfectly sane by hospital physicians, still the man is being held. Roderick McDonald, committed to the asylum in 1912, is the man. The jury proposes habeas corpus proceedings to free him.
