GIVING BLOOD TO ANOTHER KILLS HIM

Drops Dead From Anaemia, Due to Sacrifice for Fiancee's Father Seven Years Ago.

New York, Nov. 26.—Henry Van Winkle, thirty, an insurance agent of No. 134 Guernsey Place, entered the saloon of Henry Aschendorf, at No. 983 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, and ordered a drink of whiskey, complaining of feeling very weak.

Seven years ago Van Winkle was betrothed to Miss Sancton, now his widow, daughter of Henry Sancton of No. 130 Guernsey Place. Sancton had his arm mangled in an accident at the Quintard Iron Works and was taken to Bellevue. His only hope of life lay in blood-transfusion.

$4,500,000 FOR WILLIAMS CO. CROP

This Year's Crop Brings Enormous Sum to Farmers of Western County.

Williston, N. D., Nov. 26.—Three and one-half million bushels of wheat worth nearly two and three-quarter millions of dollars, were raised in Williams county this year, according to figures which have just been announced from the office of R. F. Flint, state commissioner of agriculture and labor.

These figures are based upon an average of 189,234 in wheat, with an average yield of a little better than 18 bushels to the acre, and an average market value of 75 cents, all these factors being low rather than high.

It is believed that the average yield for the entire county would probably exceed 20 bushels per acre, and as 90 per cent of the wheat so far marketed grades number one northern, the price has averaged better than 80 cents per bushel in the Williston market.

Other Grains. Returns from other small grains have greatly added to the income of the county. The 19,444 acres of flax have given a return to Williams county farmers of approximately $400,000, the 42,514 acres of oats have yielded grain valued at close to three-quarters of a million dollars and the 18,394 acres of barley have yielded a return estimated at not less than $400,000.

Together with the returns from the acreage planted to rye and corn, grains raised on Williams county farms in 1915 have yielded no less than four and a half million dollars.

Four and a half million dollars, the value of the grain raised on the farms of the county means an annual income for every man, woman and child of the 20,000 population of the county, including the cities as well as the rural districts, of $225, or if we consider the actual farm dwellers alone the income is not far short of $400 for every man, woman and child in the county.

Counting the average family as five, the average farm income from grain alone for the present year is approximately $2,000.

But grain was not the only source of income. According to the figures of the commissioner of agriculture and labor there were on Williams county farms this fall, 16,460 head of beef cattle, which at an average value of $50 would be worth three-quarter ters of a million dollars. There were also 12,181 hogs, which at an average value of $20 would be worth another quarter of a million dollars, a million more for cattle and hogs alone.

But Williams county farmers also own, according to the commissioner of agriculture and labor, some 13,796 horses, 135 mules, 1,000 sheep and 4,755 milch cows, all of which add their share of income to the average Williams county farm. And we have failed to consider at all the alfalfa and other hay, the potatoes and other vegetables which also have an important place in the products of Williams county.

Increased Valuations. Taken in connection with these features from the state department of agriculture, the figures which have just been compiled by County Auditor H. Aasen, showing the large gain in Williams county compared with 1914 are interesting as showing the rapid growth of the community.

The total valuation of Williams county this year is $8,378,750 compared with $7,036,679, the valuation for 1914, a gain of more than a million and a quarter dollars. The farm lands of Williams county are valued at $3,676,441 in 1915 as compared with $3,057,874 in 1914.

For 1915 the city lot valuation is $391,375 compared with $406,329 in 1914.

Van Winkle volunteered and he was pronounced in perfect health and accepted. His sacrifice was in vain, for Sancton died while the young man lay strapped to him.

Since that time Van Winkle has never enjoyed robust health and suffered with an anemia that became chronic and finally pernicious. Miss Sancton at the time of her father's injury offered to undergo the operation of blood transfusion, but due to her nervousness the physicians rejected her.

TO TEST COUNTY OPTION LAW

Minneapolis, Nov. 25.—Following conferences between state officials and attorneys for saloon men of northern Minnesota, it was announced today that a test case attacking the constitutionality of the county option law will be brought immediately in Koochiching county, and probably will be argued before the supreme court Jan. 17, after the present calendar of cases has been cleared up.

Judge Marshall A. Spooner of Bemidjia, representing the saloon men of International Falls, and George A. Bangs of Grand Forks, representing the liquor interests of Crookston and East Grand Forks, came down to propose that the question be tested by habeas corpus proceedings. Attorney General Lyndon A. Smith, backed by Governor W. S. Hammond, refused to agree to this method. An injunction proceeding probably will be the form of the action.

Attorneys for the liquor interests base their attack on the law mainly on the home rule charter section of the state constitution. They claim that the county option law, by allowing

MANY BUYING SILOS IN NORTH DAKOTA

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 26.—That the silo is becoming an important piece of equipment on the North Dakota farm is made evident by the fact that one silo manufacturing firm operating in this territory has sold 1,500 silos in the state during the past season.

Other firms report large sales and when it is considered that a few years ago there was not such a thing as a silo in the state it is to be seen how important the farmers of the state consider this farm utility.
