

KENTUCKY TRIAL IS A GRIM PARODY ON "CINDERELLA;" SHOE LEADS GIRL TO MURDER CHARGE, NOT TO A PRINCE!

For First Time in History of State, Formerly a Hotbed of Feuds, Girl is Charged With Killing Another...

Lexington, Ky., June 16.—The sharp imprint of a high heeled shoe is the only answer authorities have been able to find to the question: Who killed Eva Gregory? which has stirred the Blue Grass state from the Ohio river, the northern boundary, into the heart of the blue grass region!

In an effort to solve the question, authorities have filed charges against Ella Monroe, former schoolmate of the dead girl and a rival belle in Hardin-co. society.

Soon Ella Monroe will face the grand jury in the first case in the history of historic Kentucky, hotbed of feuds in other days, in which one girl is accused of taking the life of another.

In the grand jury room at Elizabethtown the state will try to show that the heel imprints found near where Miss Gregory was shot to death were made by the shoes of Miss Monroe.

The case is a grim parody on Cinderella in which the ownership of a dainty shoe does not lead a prince to his sweetheart, but leads a girl to trial for murder.

The state charges that on March 29, Miss Monroe hid herself in a clump of trees near a bridge path at Solway, Hardin-co. and shot Miss Gregory as she rode past on horseback.

The girl's father found his daughter's body near the path with a shotgun wound in her side. He gave the alarm and scores of neighbors joined him in a search.

Small tracts of a woman were found. Bloodhounds were put on the trail. The state alleges the hounds followed a track to the Monroe plantation and sniffed at the skirts of Miss Monroe. She was arrested.

Then the authorities began a systematic combing of Hardin-co. for evidence. They came upon the name of Clarence Quiggins, a young man who had recently come into that region from Abingdon, Ill. He had become acquainted with the Gregory and Monroe girls, both 29 years of age and belles in the society of the countryside.

Before Quiggins returned home it rumored both girls were in love with him.

In the Monroe home was found a shotgun of 28-gauge.

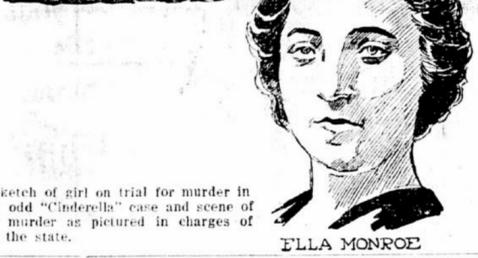

In the Monroe home also was found a pair of shoes of a style which seemed fit the footprints. The girl's mother, however, declared the shoes belonged to her and not to her daughter.

CENTRAL AMERICANS WEAR NETS OVER HEADS WHEN ON STREETS AT NIGHT TO BAR MOSQUITOES

By ROGER BABSON
Famous Writer and Economist Touring Among Our Southern Neighbors for Daily Tribune.
Tela, Honduras, June 16.—Persons who think of going to Central America are always interested in the health conditions. In the high interior of the country there is little sickness, but in the damp and hot lowlands, bordering the coasts, there is much fever.

The reason for this is said to be that the mosquitoes that carry the fever germs from one person to another can live only where there are pools of quiet warm water.

In a dry climate or a hilly land, where there are only running brooks, we find few mosquitoes.

The mosquitoes that carry fever germs bite a sick person, thus becoming infected themselves, then bite a well person and give them fever.

The germ-carrying mosquitoes fly about only after sundown. Therefore, if one will stay in after sundown and use screens in the windows and over the beds at night he need not fear getting fever.

A story is told of a Chicago man who went to Honduras and was taken ill with fever through going carelessly about at night without a mosquito bar over his head. North Americans are especially careless in this.

A native nursed this Chicago traveler. After he got well and ready to leave, he asked the native for his bill.

The native insisted he did not know what fee to charge. Finally the Chicagoan asked what his other patients had paid him for taking care of them.

To this the good old native nurse replied: "Well, boss, dat is the trouble. You see the others all died."

For the man of strong physique and good habits, Honduras is as safe as most countries, but one must take care of himself.

If taken ill there, the only thing to do is to let nature get you well.

There are almost no hospitals or doctors in Honduras and the means of travel there are so bad there is nothing to do but get a native nurse.

The topography of Honduras is the same as that of the other Central American countries. The land, Pacific coast and is highest in the gradually slopes upward from the central and eastern portions, but from there it rapidly descends again toward the Atlantic coast.

In the west there is a distinct rainy and dry season each year.

The rains come from May to November. Then from December to April is windy and dusty.

In the east there is much more rain than in the west. Some claim that there are two rainy and two dry seasons along the eastern coast. Owing to the more rain, the eastern coast probably is more fertile than the western; but it is not so healthy.

BETTER THAN SPANKING.
Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W, South Bend, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.
