HOW FLEEING IS FAME!
 It appears that a recent issue of the New York World contained this remarkable statement:

"The only woman who ever ran for President of the United States was Belva A. Lockwood, who was a candidate against Grant. She died several years ago, aged about eighty-five, after many years of legal practice as a member of the Washington, D. C., bar."

And now comes Belva Lockwood in her proper person and, like a well known humorist of yore, states that the reports of her death have been greatly exaggerated, since she is still living in Washington. The world's statement may be dismissed as a reportorial or editorial inaccuracy, the joke in which is mostly on itself. Yet there is an underlying note of pathos in the incident.

Belva Lockwood is one of the most remarkable characters of the age and one to whom the women of America owe a debt which can never be fully cancelled. Through her instrumentality the bills giving female federal employees equal pay with males and the bills which would admit women to the United States Supreme court were passed by congress. Belva Lockwood was a pioneer in the woman suffrage movement. Few women have had as great honors thrust upon them and none have been more worthy to receive them. She did not, as the World states, run against Grant for the Presidency but against Blaine and Cleveland in 1884 and Harrison and Cleveland in 1888. For a third of a century she has been one of the foremost figures of the woman's world.

The forgetfulness of the great newspaper but emphasizes how ephemeral is fame and how fleeting man's gratitude.

IN SOUTH DAKOTA.
 The New York Evening Post has this interesting comment upon some primary law "reforms" urged by South Dakota:

"In South Dakota they are proposing to amend the primary law by requiring that no person may run for office unless his backers sign a petition in which they say that they 'select the following well defined and definite principle for a public policy, as the paramount issue,' such statement being limited to eight words. But this is only the beginning of democracy in South Dakota. Joint debates are to be compulsory. There must be 'at least one presidential and twelve gubernatorial public joint debates' before the primaries, and another dozen after. The first are to be held between the first Monday in January and the fourth Tuesday in March. If more than one independent candidate files a challenge for a debate, the prior right of challenge shall go to the candidate who filed his nominating or 'proposal' petition first. But suppose there is failure to challenge?"

"It shall be the duty of the minority candidate for President, or the minority candidate for Governor, as the case may be, within fifteen days after the first Monday in January in each general election year, to challenge his majority opponent, within the party, for the public joint debate or debates hereinbefore required; and failure on the part of the minority candidate for President or for Governor, as the case may be, to challenge his opposing majority candidate, to public joint discussion of the merits and demerits of the paramount issues, shall operate as a legal withdrawal of such majority candidate, and the secretary of state shall not certify his name for President or Governor, as the case may be, to the county auditors to be printed on the primary ballot.

"The same penalty is provided for refusal to accept a challenge, or for failure to attend and discuss the paramount issues." No personalities or personal imputations may be brought into the debate under any circumstances—but for violation of this no penalty is named. In case of illness (to be certified by a licensed physician), the candidate shall furnish a substitute. Lincoln and Douglas never thought of that."

Where will the vagaries of the primary law enthusiasts lead us?

NOT IN CATALOGUES.
 Did you get a package of seeds from your representative in congress? Those seeds are good for two kinds of flowers, the kind mentioned on the envelope and the kind your congressman cherishes.

You like to see the first kind grow and spread its fragrance over your garden. He has more interest in the other variety, the flower that is planted about this time and is in full bloom on the first Tuesday in November. You call it what science has named it; he calls it the "Vote."

It's a valuable flower, the "Vote." So the government appropriates $10,000,000 annually to keep it in bloom. Of course, you appreciate your representative's kindness in sending you those seeds. So does he, for—
 You are the vote.

WHAT SECRECY DOES.
 At the beginning of the European war the wealth of Great Britain was estimated at $90,000,000,000, and the total annual income of her people at $12,000,000,000. Now the same semi-official authorities, in spite of the ravages of the war, place the wealth of Great Britain at $133,000,000,000, and the income of her people at $20,000,000,000.

The reason for this enormous increase in the estimates is very simple. Before the war the British millionaires were concealing their wealth and dodging their income taxes. Now Great Britain has been forced by her necessities to see that every shilling of the taxes is paid and her citizens, seeing her dire need, are also paying their taxes more willingly than ever before. In this way billions that have hitherto been concealed are brought to light.

These new estimates of the British wealth and income show the absurdity of the official estimates that have been made of the wealth and income of the people of the United States. The United States census placed the national wealth at $187,000,000,000 in 1912, and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo places the national income at only $20,000,000,000.

It is upon this estimate that he bases his contention that the United States income tax is being evaded to the extent of more than $300,000,000 a year. The absurdity of McAdoo's estimate is apparent as soon as it is remembered that the United States has more than twice the population and nearly 40 times the area of Great Britain! To clinch the argument, the income of the United States from agriculture is five times as great as that of Great Britain, from mining twice as great, from railroads four times as great.

An Ohioan must marry if he wants to inherit a $25,000 estate. There's a problem: No matter how much he'll love his wife, people will say he married for his money!

Mexicans entering this country are now given a gasoline bath to rid them of vermin. If we could only give the whole of Mexico a bath that would rid it of political vermin there might be some hope. It has already been bathed in blood without any noticeable improvement.

When you were a kid there was a sandlot at the ol' swimmin'-hole, and every kid in town used to help "keep the pot a-bilin'" but now doctors say you are taking a long chance if you let your youngsters play in a sand pile, unless it is sprinkled every 24 hours, with a disinfectant. We move that science and the good old days get in a ring and have it out. Our sympathies will be with the good old days.

The many admirers of Clara Kimball Young will have an opportunity of seeing their favorite in a somewhat different role in "The Heart of the Blue Ridge" based upon a story by Waldron Bailey.

As Plutina, the mountain maid, with a pet bear, the female center of attraction in a lawless moonshining district, Miss Young has to endure all kinds of hair-breadth escapes and striking adventures. She has two lovers, an admirable young countryman, and a vicious moonshiner. The men quarrel over her, and in the end the villain is killed in an encounter on the cliffs with the hero, who rescues and marries his Plutina. There are some beautiful settings in this picture. It is a fine and exciting offering.

As an added attraction, the management of The Grand have arranged to present to their patrons the Universal Weekly, a "reel" newspaper. This big picture, covering all the chief events of the world, will be presented at The Grand theater every Tuesday in addition to the regular feature program. The Grand Unexcelled Orchestra will be in full attendance at all presentations of this popular place of amusement. The special attraction booked to play The Grand tomorrow, matinee and night, will be the famous dramatic actor, Henry B. Walthall, in "The Birth of a Man" with an added attraction of a laughable Selig farce comedy.

BOB CAT KILLED BY AGED WOMAN
 Center, N. D., July 31.—Mrs. Wm. Rehou, 70 years of age, living southwest of Hannover, had an experience a week ago that could have proven very serious, but as it was, resulted in her becoming a heroine. The lady killed a monster bob cat with a stick. Dogs had discovered the animal near the farm buildings, and Mrs. Rehou thinking it was a coyote after her chickens, picked up a small stick and gave it battle. A well directed and timely blow did the business.

Despite her advanced age she picked it up and carried it fully a quarter of a mile, though it was extremely large, standing higher than an average dog.

She was quite unconcerned about the affair until she learned the identity of the animal and its ferocious nature.

BISMARCK

"Green Stockings," the latest Blue Ribbon feature to be released by the Vitagraph company of America, maintains the high standard of excellence set by this class of film classics. It numbers in its cast the greatest collection of motion picture stars ever seen in a single production. The play is a comedy of English life, introducing many humorous characters, which the director has filmed in a manner that called for originality, interest, action, scenic and costume accuracy. It had a successful run on the legitimate stage in New York, but those who have seen the film agree that the screen portrayal is more effective and humorous.

STEEL ROD CAUSE OF FISHERMAN'S DEATH

Carlisle, Pa., July 31.—The Rev. William Perry Eveland, missionary bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church for the Philippine Islands, who had been missing for some time, having started on a fishing trip, was found dead recently near Mount Holly Springs, having been electrocuted when his steel fishing rod came in contact with a high tension electric wire. He was passing under a railroad bridge when the accident occurred. At first it was believed he had been killed by lightning.

Rev. J. G. Moore of Bismarck was well acquainted with Bishop Eveland. The bishop was to have sailed soon for India.

Dog Days!

Put ice in my coffee and ice on my head, ice in my pockets, and ice in my bed! Melvina, come hither and blow on my brow; I want to get cool and I do not know how! Fasten the buzz-fan in front of my plate; pour lemonade on the roof of my pate. Bring me that book on Doc Cook at the pole, bring me the bill for our last ton of coal. Sing about Norway, Alaska and gold, put on that record, "Your Love Has Grown Cold." "Even the frieze on the capitol dome has melted away," says a message from home! Winter, come back from your ice-crusts shore! I won't complain of your cold any more! Yes, I remember last winter I squealed whenever my breath on my whiskers congealed; I hollered whenever the north breezes blew; I won't any more, Winter, honest and true!—Charles B. Driscoll.

RUN CAMP LIKE STATE EXPOSITION

Concessions Have Right of Way at Mercedes Tex

TOO MUCH POP CAUSES SICKNESS

By Staff Correspondent.
 Camp Llano Grande, July 31.—The United States government is conducting more or less of a state fair at Llano Grande, the camp where the First North Dakota regiment is located.

Concessionaires, operating in little frame buildings on grounds controlled by the government just west of the camp, are selling pop, lemonade, pie, cakes, smoking tobacco, tinned goods, curios and other things.

Regimental exchanges have been established but the men operating the refreshment stands have first call on the Mercedes ice supply and drinks in the stands are colder and more popular.

Pop Causes Illness.
 Regimental physicians with whom I have talked are unanimous in declaring that much of the illness in camp comes from men eating and drinking at these refreshment stands. They wonder that the government has permitted their establishment.

Here is why the government permits the stands to operate—in a way it is another chapter in unpreparedness:

When it was determined some four weeks ago to bring militiamen to Llano Grande the problem of a water supply faced the federal authorities: One quarter of a mile from the camp ground is a main lateral canal of the Mercedes irrigation project. This was the nearest water.

Promised Water Supply.
 The government asked Mercedes citizens about water. In Mercedes are a number of hustling business men. For the last two years their business has been disrupted and the settlement of this country has been held up by bandit outrages. The business men naturally wanted the troops to come to Llano Grande. They collected $5,000 and told the government they would lay pipes and supply the camp with water.

The government, instead of laying its own pipes at a cost of $5,000, accepted the offer. Then, in order to enable the business men to get some of their money back, the government permitted the establishment of concessions.

Nobody can blame the business men of Mercedes. In fact to the town's credit it must be said that prices have not been raised in Mercedes as they have in some of the towns, where the militia are camped. The people of the town are doing everything they can to make the stay of the soldiers pleasant.

But how about the government? Penny Wise Policy Again.
 Physicians say the men should be limited to camp rations and to emonade made under official supervision. They say that this is particularly so at this time when the men from the north have undergone a climatic change.

For $5,000 the government could have established its own water supply and limited retail business in camp to the post exchanges.

Following the run of ptomaine poisoning in the Third regiment the men of the First and Second regiments and the Second battalion of the First Minnesota Field artillery are "trapping on wood." The health of the other two regiments is good and the officers are taking no chances. Even the cooks have attended school. They have been told how to watch for tainted can goods and other food not fit for the men.

Kitchens Are Unscreened.
 The cooks are somewhat handicapped, however, for they have no screens for their kitchens and are compelled to handle meats and other food in the open. Flies are numerous and latrines are still missing.

The fault does not rest with the camp authorities. General E. H. Lewis, who is a lieutenant colonel in the regular army and who is camp commander because he is brigadier in charge of the Indiana brigade, is on the job at all times and is doing his utmost to get the camp into shape. Captain W. A. Carleton, camp quartermaster, has requisitioned everything the men will need. But the supplies have not arrived. The men are still sleeping on the ground.

Some of the army officers here say things are all right and, "if the troops go into Mexico things will be much worse than this."

So far as can be learned, however, the troops here are not in Mexico and this is to be a permanent camp where the militia will stay for months.
