"Human Bullet" Tells How To Play Football!

Third of a series of pictures, posed especially for the Tribune by Johnny Maubetsch, Michigan captain and All-America halfback, known as "The Human Bullet" of the gridiron, showing how he shakes off tacklers.

By JOHNNY MAUBETSCH.

As Told in an Interview With Harold Johnson, the Tribune's Special Sport Writer.

A forward pass may be made in a variety of ways, but everything depends upon accuracy and judgment. The simplest and easiest is a two-handed toss, either from the waist or from over the head.

The ball is grasped firmly and the position is like that of an overhand throw in baseball. For a spiral pass the ball is driven forward, the grasp of the fingers on the lacing and, as the thumb on the ball, causing the pigskin to fly with a spiral or revolving motion.

Another way of making the forward pass is that of the end-over-end motion, as used in the quarterback's pass, only sending the ball up into the air instead of low. It is possible to make this kind of pass even when the tacklers are almost on the passer, and it is useful when the ball is down within the opponent's danger zone.

Too much practice cannot be had in developing interference for the man carrying the ball. In open field interference, the interferer should not hesitate to leave his feet to remove a man in his path, particularly if the opponent is the defensive fullback.

Make sure of your man and if necessary give him the straight arm, as shown in the accompanying picture. This is a sure means of taking a man out of the way.

The quarterback is an important cog in the interference machine. When the halves or fullback make straight plunges he should aim to get in ahead of the runner or immediately behind. The quarter playing thus is practically a free man and in position to be alert for fumbles. In end running it is a cardinal principle for the quarterback to lead the way.

To do one thing a little better than anyone else is an attainment worthy of universal approval—it is the real definition of success.

Lanpher ambition was to have the name stand for a hat with more virtues than any other at the price. When the Lanpher became such a hat the constant effort was to "hold the lead."

There has been vast improvement in hats during the last forty-four years and the Lanpher hat still holds its lead.

It was never more worthy of your selection than now. A real success is

SPORT DOPE

Magnates owning minor league clubs were promised protection this season. So was Belgium!

Dispatches from the west indicate that somebody frisked Frank Moran's driver, thereby compelling Francis to do all his road work on foot.

You've gotta admit that Wilbur Robinson is an all-around manager every way you look at him.

We haven't noticed any pale-faced battlers staging a stampede to collect return transportation for Sam Langford from South America.

Now that his Red Sox have started to fade, it's up to Bill Carrigan to do or die.

Heinie Zimmerman hasn't been suspended once since he joined the Giants. Who said Heinie was hard to handle?

Those New York Giants have at least one consolation—they can't lose the world's series.

TENNIS PLAYER AT BEST WHEN 30, SAYS CHAMP WILLIAMS

"How long can a man play top notch tennis?"

R. Norris Williams II, gave vent to a modest chuckle before answering this query put to him shortly after he had defeated William Johnston of California in the national lawn tennis championship finals at Forest Hills, N. Y.

"Why I should say until he is 34 or 35. Do you think Morris McLaughlin is entirely broken simply because he is 26? The champion asked, in reply, "Not a bit of it. It is entirely probable, and I shouldn't in the least be surprised to see him come back to the best he ever played within the next six years and regain the title."

"I have no expectations, but only hopes, as to the length of time I can remain champion or a championship contender. I am 24 now. And a man ought to play the very best tennis of his career around 29 or 30, for the reason that at that age he is likely to have retained his stamina and to have played long enough to have acquired the experience which is so valuable in big matches. Look at Karl Behr. He is far from broken."

"There may be this, however, to be said about McLaughlin. It is highly possible that his smashing style takes the physical strength out of a man in his younger years where the game which either William Johnston or I play would conserve it. It is not impossible that a vital difference lies there."

"I expect to keep up with my tennis while in business as much as I did while at Harvard, where I graduated last June. Of course I can't dictate to my employers, but if any man in business has the desire to be can find a way and the time."

IRON MAN SWIMMER JUGGLES MONEY TO KEEP IN TRIM

Charles B. Durborow, the Philadelphia bank clerk who has covered over 4000 miles in swimming since he took up the sport in 1907, and who hopes to swim the English channel as a fitting crown to his career, is in charge of the gold and silver vault at the Quaker city bank.

His chief duties lie in the handling of sacks of coin which he has tossed around for upward of 16 years. One thousand dollars in silver weighs 69 pounds. There are smaller bags for gold coin, quarters, dimes, etc., with which the man in charge of the vault must wrestle.

VAUDEVILLE AT ORPHEUM TODAY

As an added attraction, Manager Bauer, secured the services of German Models, late of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, 1915, San Francisco.

The Germans are two recognized models, almost of physical perfection, and reproduce some of the statuary of the world's most famous artists and sculptors and show you some of the masterpieces which received gold medals at the art exhibit of the World's Fair. Their engagement lasts only one night and this gives the Bismarck people a rare opportunity to see their high class entertainment.

In addition to this high class vaudeville act, the management has not changed his program in the photoplays in the least and the big special William Fox feature in five reels, "A Tortured Heart," featuring Virginia Pearson, will be shown. A good vogue comedy with Rube Miller and an all-star cast will complete this double bill, which will be shown to-night only, at the small prices of 10 and 20 cents. If you wish to see a program that is worth while, then follow the crowds to the Orpheum theatre tonight.

DANCES START TONIGHT.

Commencing tonight, Thursday, Sept. 14th, O'Connor's Orchestra will give three dances a week. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, at Patterson Hall. Admission, the same as usual.

Earl Johnson of Sherwood, had his collar bone broken when he fell from a load of straw. He was hauling straw for the threshers and the team started at the wrong time causing the fall.
