SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink Lots of Water and Stop Eating Meat for a While if Your Bladder Troubles You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and laggard. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then set fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

CHILDREN FIGHT BESIDE THEIR FATHERS IN SERBIAN ARMY!

Baby soldiers of Serbia are here shown after being taken captive. The youngest of these little fighters was wounded in the arm and hand by shrapnel. Two of these little warriors have sacking tied about their feet; the other is barefooted.

Infant Warriors Make Up Large Part of Fighting Force That Is Hope of a Nation!

By K. W. PAYNE.

New York, Sept. 21.—"Save the child soldiers of Serbia!" That is a slogan of the national campaign just opened by New York society women to obtain medical aid for the Serbian soldiers in their new Balkan drive!

Merely children have been sharing the untold hardships of the Serbian army and these infant fighters are destined to suffer still more terribly now, for lack of an army medical service!

Alone of all the armies at war, the Serb force will have to see their wounded perish, their sick succumb, as though in medieval warfare, for lack of proper help from science!

What are these boy warriors like? One man who has brought back a description of them is Fortier Jones, author and former Columbia university student, who went through the turmoil of relief work during the Serbian cataclysm of last year.

"In the early days of the great retreat we made the acquaintance of the 'Little Sergeant,' the youngest soldier in the Serbian army," says Jones, in his new book, "With Serbia into Exile," published by the Century company.

"He was a real sergeant. On his soldier's coat he wore three gold stars. In lieu of a sword he carried an Austrian bayonet, and in lieu of a rifle a Russian cavalry carbine.

"A full-sized, well-filled cartridge belt was slung over his shoulders, because it would easily have encircled his baby waist three times!

"He was ten years of age, and had been in the service for 'a long time.' * * * Whom had he left at home? Why, his mother and little sister, who was five years older than himself.

"His father and brother were in the army. The boy had shot well and been cautious in the trenches, and been promoted above his father, who now, according to military discipline had to salute his son.

"But the boy never allowed this. He always forestalled his father and at the same time conserved military discipline by seizing the hand that would have saluted and kissing it!"

Another of the of the baby soldiers was described by Miss Julia Sabine,

AGED GRAND FATHERS ARE FIGHTING IN THE SERBIAN ARMY

"The Serb seems never too old to fight," says Fortier Jones, author of "With Serbia into Exile," describing heroes whose ages range from 45 years to an indefinite limit.

"They had no uniforms, these patriarchs of the army and, marching by, they presented a beggars' array of tattered homespun.

"To see their grandfathers in dirty rags, unwashed, half-starved, blue with cold, drenched with rain, many of them suffering with rheumatism, scurvy, neuralgia, and in the last days of their nation's life dying by hundreds, of wounds, of cold and starvation, was one of the things the Serbs had to bear!"

field secretary of the Franco-Serbian Field Hospital of America.

"He was a sergeant, too, when I met him," said Miss Sabine. "He had gone to Belgrade as a stowaway on the transport that carried his father's regiment.

"They wouldn't make him a soldier, but he carried water under fire to the men, and when his father was killed in action, he was made sergeant as reward for his heroism!

"He is only 14 years old, but has won two medals for courage and is still fighting with the army!"

Just how many Serb youngsters like these are going to march to the front with their fathers in the new offensive nobody knows. But according to Miss Sabine, a large part of the army might well be called children!

"The poor Serbian soldiers, on whom the fate of a whole race depends, are doomed to suffer helplessly in the coming campaign, without the aid of a doctor or comfort of a nurse, unless medical help is supplied by neutral nations!"

hospitals and receiving stations for these poor, battered relics.

English and French, released in the last stages of famine, compose the bulk of these. Germany, not having food for her own people and armies, cannot feed her prisoners. Unless they get food packages from home they batten on scraps until they plainly can stand little more. Switzerland has arranged with Germany to take them at this stage and intern and care for them.

Also, this country has been from the first the great international mail box and line of communication among the belligerent nations. You cannot mail anything from England or France to England or France. But Switzerland stands between and carries things for prisoners from one hostile frontier to the other.

It can do this great work for humanity because it owns its railroads and can put its highways at the disposal of the world's need.

Great Britain and France pay or will pay the actual cost of maintaining their interned soldiers but this falls far short of the expenditures of the kindly Swiss. A few optimists think that when peace comes to be patched up something will be arranged for the little country that has been injured so much and still has stood true to a high sense of duty to humanity.

Maybe. Meanwhile the debts accumulate and Swiss workers and farmers will toil very long and hard before they pay off this load put upon their country by nothing but another nation's lust for power and markets.

Mad business, is it not? If Switzerland had joined in the war she might hope for a piece of the compensation pie when it is cut. Keeping out she gets nothing but the odd bricks from the field of combat.

It is not alone the way of the transgressor that is hard.

SEVEN CASES OF PARALYSIS IN STATE

Grand Forks, Sept. 21.—Infantile paralysis was reported last night in Grand Forks county.

A child, George Winslow, living four miles from Arvilla, was taken sick last Wednesday and examined by Dr. Heatherington of Larimore. The doctor was not sure of his examinations, but reported the case for further study. Later examinations, however, revealed that the case is infantile paralysis beyond any doubt. Dr. Healy of the Grand Forks county board of health will leave today to make an examination.

Seven in State. Inquiry of Dr. McGurran, secretary of the state board of health, at Devils Lake, last evening, revealed the fact that there are now seven living cases of this disease in North Dakota, and one death has already been reported. There are two cases in Cass county, one of which died; one case in each of Eddy, Pembina and Grand Forks counties, and three cases in Cavalier county.

All Cases Watched. Dr. McGurran said last night: "We are investigating the report of every case, and if the case gives positive reaction we quarantine it immediately.

but any that are only contact cases are put under a modified quarantine. We are doing everything possible to stop the spread of this disease, and we hope we will not hear of another case."
