North's Challenge is Called--Thanksgiving Eve Card Schedule

Joe Novak Heats of Challenge and Covers Amount With Agreement Between Two that the House Receipts Go to Winner--Season's First Wrestling Class to be in Army

The fuss which E. North of Minot, champion of the middleweight wrestling championship of the state kicking up in Bismarck Monday night, when he stepped into the office of the sporting editor of the Tribune and placed $25 with a challenge open to Joe Novak, the home-guard, has been called. The show down comes on the evening of November 29. The event, which will open the wrestling season here, will be staged in the armory. The time, 8:30 o'clock.

Novak Gets Wind of the Challenge. Joe Novak, who during the summer months has been traveling with the Cash Carnival company, meeting as many as eight men a day and having a season's pedigree which shows that only three men succeeded in staying with him more than 15 minutes, returned to the Capital City last Wednesday. Novak was in the new Van Horn hotel, where he is making his headquarters, when friends showed him the article in the Tribune. It was too much for the sporting blood of the home pride. He threw on a big coat, whirled around the corner, dashed into the Tribune office and slapped down $25, calling the North "pot" and offered to go into the match on condition that the winner should take all. That was agreed upon.

Some Bout is Predicted. "Some bout" was the prediction made by fans when they heard that the two men had been matched. Followers of the game know that North and Novak are evenly matched both in size and weight. Both are fast, can sail on the mat and give action which the fan wants. Most wrestlers go into the game on a 25 or 75 per cent basis, but this bout is to be for the house receipts. It means work, it means fight and it means that the spectators will see every ounce of good sporting blood tested before them. That's the menu for the Thanksgiving eve card in Bismarck.

Men of All Walks to Attend. In the mass of spectators who, no doubt, will attend the first card of the season, one is apt to see men of every walk of life in Bismarck--state and county officials, professional, business and laboring men. There never was a man yet who could step onto a mat in Bismarck and have the local following that always turns out to see Novak. The home "boy" tipped Robert Wagner at Wilton last Wednesday night, in his first match of the season in his home territory. Tonight he grapples with Alex Bean for the best two out of three falls at Wilton. Bean is a partner of Tony Bernard, the South Dakotan, who is making Jamestown his headquarters for the winter, and will meet Al Ottes there on Thanksgiving afternoon.

The defeat of "Sailor Jack," in two straight falls, at Minot last winter by North, put the Minot fellow into the public eye. Since then he had been tipping all comers with ease. Six bouts were staged in Minot last winter with North as one of the principals. He won every one. On these victories he makes claim to the middleweight championship of North Dakota. Whether it belongs to Minot of Bismarck--whether it belongs to the northwestern part of the state or the southwestern--that will be decided definitely and decisively here Thanksgiving eve.

Following the match at Wilton to-night, Novak stated last night, he will cancel all engagements until after the North grid. He will go into training here to defend the title he holds for the southwestern part of the state against that of the northwestern.

North's Father in City. North's father is in Bismarck. He came with his son. The pioneer sport fied hugged as large a roll of bills the night the $25 was flashed as his son. The elder North's sporting blood was boiling. He was anxious, yes, so anxious that he might have purchased an armory in order to see his son jump and struggle with Novak. The father is staying at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Wilcox, 1290 Broadway. He was a happy man this morning, when he learned that the two men had agreed.

It's Minot Vs. Bismarck. Thanksgiving eve should be a great night for a match. It means a crowd that should equal, if not surpass, any that has turned out for a wrestling match in the western part of the state. Walter Miller of St. Paul, now defending himself in Montana matches, for the most part being at Billings, has been known to get a crowd wherever he hangs his lid, but it is doubtful if Mr. Walt could begin to strike up so auspicious a flirtation with the sporting element of Bismarck as will the match between Novak and North. It's Minot against Bismarck. It will decide who has the right to carry the title of the middleweight champion of the state. There seems to be many sporting the title. A few must be weeded out before the season closes.

Women at the Matches. "You might realize how interested Jamestown was in wrestling last year," said Kellogg recently to a newspaperman in Jamestown in commenting on the season of 1916. "We had women at our matches and some took as much of an interest as the men. I firmly believe we had some of the cleanest matches ever staged in the northwest."

With a big armory as the place, Jamestown sport fans find themselves well equipped to have good matches. And under the promotion wing of "Dad" Kellogg the game is not going to suffer in that city.

Winner Might be Seen Here. Pending the outcome of the match between Ottes and Bernard, it is very possible that Bismarck fans will be given the opportunity to see the winner in action here. Both are middle-weights and "princes" in the line of clean sports.

KELLOGG AGAIN HEADS THE PROMOTION GAME FOR YEAR

Interest in Wrestling Not Going to Wane as Long as Kellogg Gives it Wing Protection

The prestige of Jamestown as a wrestling center in North Dakota promises to be upheld again this winter, due to the clean promoting on the part of Frank Kellogg, prominent real estate dealer of that city. Kellogg and Bailey promoted the wrestling game in Jamestown and while it is not as fascinating as other lines of sport, nevertheless these two men worked it up to a pitch which the public began to appreciate and would attend.

Thanksgiving Card Booked. Kellogg has booked Tony Bernard, South Dakota champion middleweight, and Al Ottes of Fergus Falls, western Minnesota pride, for the Thanksgiving card which will open the wrestling season in Jamestown. Both Ottes and Bernard are winners in their class. The latter will meet Jamestown his training headquarters for the winter. The match is booked for the afternoon of Thanksgiving day. Every indication now points to a big attendance with a rush for reserve seats as soon as the reservations can be had.

Army And Navy Prepare For Greatest Football Classic of the Year

Annual Conflict Between the Marines and Land Men to be Played at Polo Grounds Saturday--Coaches Take Their Charges Into Secrecy of Locked and Barred Football Fields

CRIMSON SQUAD TO LEAVE TOMORROW. Cambridge, Mass. Nov. 21.—The Harvard football management announced today that the Crimson squad, which will go to New Haven for the game with Yale next Saturday, will leave Thursday morning. The Harvard players plan to work out in the Yale bowl. The last home practice today and tomorrow probably will determine the final makeup of the eleven which will be started against Yale.

New York, Nov. 22.—Preparing for the annual conflict at the polo grounds army and navy football coaches have taken their charges into the secrecy of locked and barred football fields, where today will open the most strenuous practice of the season for Saturday's battle.

The old armor has been taken down and dusted, the army mule has been stung on oats and the navy goat has had his horns sharpened. At Annapolis they refuse to believe that the army is going to repeat this year. Tales of Oliphant and Vidal, flanked by stories of Gerhardt and McEwan do not hold the slightest fear for the navy. They declare no one ever saw the dog give up to advance notices when the army and navy football teams meet.

The navy will have a set of green backs to send against the army. Roberts, a former Colgate player, is the only experienced one of the lot and he will have alongside him Welshell, Perry and Ingram. These men have seen some tough games but their youth may tell. Oliphant and Vidal the two star performers at West Point, comprise as nearly as possible a two man football team. Given a football and a set of signals, either in capable of meeting and outturning half a dozen of another good team. Vidal is a fast runner and if he ever breaks away from a first defense he has a bad habit of breaking up second defense for a touch down. Oliphant is a fast runner and a great passer. Both are stars at kicking field goals.

BREAKS ARM SECOND TIME IN SAME PLACE

Ralph Landis of Jamestown College, Falls Down College Steps After Extinguishing Lights

By Special Correspondent) Jamestown, N.-D., Nov. 21.—Taking his arm out of a sling for the first time yesterday after having the collar-bone broken in the Wahpeton Science football game, Ralph Landis had the misfortune to break it again last night. He had attended a party in science hall at the college and was feeling jubilant over his recovery and the use of his arm.

Upon leaving the hall, it became his duty to turn off the lights. In going down to the first floor he slipped on the stairs and fell with his weak arm under him, breaking it again in the same place.

BETTER FOOTBALL CAMPAIGN TALK

Attempt will be Made at Purdue To Organize for Higher Athletics Standard

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 20.—A campaign for better football at Purdue university is to be instituted by Cleo O'Donnell, head coach of the boiler-makers. A part of the plan is to hold a big mass meeting of alumni after the Indiana game on November 26, and organize the graduates to work for a higher athletic standard. The various alumni organizations from Maine to Washington will be asked to encourage football players of ability to attend Purdue.

"The trouble with the Purdue alumni is that they never had anything to do but criticize," O'Donnell said. "Now, I am going to put them to work and increase their interest in their alma mater. Purdue is entitled to a winning team and I am going to give it a winning team."

The "pop" riders have had a great season. Johnson returns with the Montana state record in his possession establishing a mile mark at Missoula when he clipped the circuit off in 1:07 three seconds under the previous mark. Seat sale now on for popular concert at Auditorium tomorrow night.

N. P. BOWLERS ANXIOUS TO DEFEAT SOO PLAYERS

Members of the Northern Pacific bowling team are already predicting a victory for themselves in the approaching game to be played Saturday evening against the members of the Soo team, who last Saturday won two out of the three games. The return game for this reason will be watched with much interest in bowling circles here. The game scheduled to have been rolled last night between the high school and The Tribune was called off and will be played Thursday.
