LET US GIVE THANKS!

We in the United States have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving Day; but perhaps it has not occurred to many of us what really is our greatest blessing.

America is developing, has almost developed, a national conscience so different from the national consciences that hitherto have wagged the world, that its influence must be felt by all humanity and by all posterity.

There are material things for which we may and do give thanks; but those we have had always in greater or less extent. Our greater blessing is not of the forum or the marketplace; not of the factory or of the mint.

Peace is a blessing; but a greater blessing lies in the fact that we, the people of the United States, have demanded peace, when other people went to war for lesser causes than we have had; in the fact that America, conscious of her might, has refused to accept the aggressions and insults of temporary madmen as sufficient excuse to bathe another hemisphere in blood.

Prosperity is a blessing; but a greater blessing lies in the fact that we, the people of the United States, are demanding prosperity for all, when the precedent has been to regard hoards of gold in banks, increasing shekels in the coffers of the over-rich, as sufficient reason for nation wide thanksgiving.

The war has taught us to do for ourselves, and this, too, is a blessing; but a greater blessing lies in the fact that in our new independence we have developed not only in material things, but in matters of the mind and spirit, as well.

Not for the things we have in abundance should we be most thankful; but for the fact that at last we are beginning to use our abundance for the benefit of all humanity.

For this, then, let us thank the Lord Our God: America is thinking, and thinking right!

FIRST THANKSGIVING DAY.

Many of us have probably forgotten how the turkey came to play the star part in the Thanksgiving dinner. For that matter, how many ever knew the true significance of this delightful custom?

The father of the day, pious old Gov. Bradford, thought it would be a great thing if the folk of Plymouth should eat together when the frost was on the pumpkin and the fodder was in the shock.

Not being a vegetarian, and Chicago dressed beef not yet having come into vogue, he commanded the colony's valiant sons to go into the forests and shoot a sufficient mess of venison and wild turkey.

Next arose the problem of a common eating place. But that solved itself, for colonial Massachusetts had but one common place of adequate community assembly, the outdoors.

So the wild turkeys, duly stuffed and baked, and the venison were taken, with fitting accompaniments, under the trees and joyously despatched at a feast for all, including King Massasoit and 90 friendly Indians. So well did they enjoy the common feast that they kept it up for three days, consuming also, we fear, quite a quantity of strong waters.

It was not, therefore, as with us, primarily a family, but a community, function; the nearest that the pious Pilgrims could come to a democratic festival. When we modify it to a service in a sectarian church and a spread around a family board, we reduce the fine old function to less than its original intent.

The family dinner and the church service have grown into traditions too well rooted to be upset, even if there were any anxious to upset them. They give a useful and intimate spiritual touch.

But lately, in a few places, there has come into usage an added celebration more in keeping with the founder's intent.

Some folk are opening our common meeting place, the public school house, symbol of this age's all-inclusive fellowship, for social center spreads, to which everybody in the neighborhood may come by simply giving notice and contributing equally to meet the modest cost. Such feasts in our temple of democracy restore to our time much of the significance which the first Thanksgiving day had for the hardy colonists of Plymouth Rock.

For the battle of our period, in fortunate America, is not with painted savages, armed with scalping knives, nor with the rigors of the wilderness. Much less is it Europe's battle with high-powered tools of slaughter by wholesale. Our battle is with prejudices, misunderstandings, the evil spirits which spring up among folk who are artificially kept apart.

They who eat together in equality discover in one another too many fine interests and traits in common to want to spoil the fellowship by hate and murder.

JAPS IN MEXICO.

The Japanese legation in Mexico gives out some figures which should do much to allay the alarm some nervous folks in the United States feel over the repeated rumors of a Jap army of 200,000 trained soldiers being assembled in Mexico to join Carranza's army, in case of war between the two republics. The Japanese minister says there are 2,000 Japanese in Mexico, all told. Three hundred of these are women and children. Eight hundred of the adults are mine employes, four hundred are farmers and the remaining hundred scattered about in miscellaneous occupations.

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL.

The bountiful harvest is gathered, and today, with a common accord, all the people have ceased from their labors To give thanks to Jehovah, the Lord.

For Thee, Everlasting, All-seeing, What can our narrow universe hold; For our lives are a watch in the night-time, And our years as a tale that is told!

Yet, today, as a nation, all-grateful, We approach to Thy presence divine, To acknowledge Thy infinite blessings, For the Earth and its fullness are Thine.

For another year Thou hast preserved us From the war which is wrecking the world;

Over us, through Thy infinite mercy, The great banner of Peace is unfurled. Preserve us, protect us, defend us, For our guard without Thee would be vain!

May Thy Spirit enlighten our councils, And Thy Peace evermore with us reign!

A PRAYER.

Though we be Blinded, still may we see Thy Handiwork and know Its Worth; Though we be Dumb, still may we speak Thy Word in Thought and Deed; Though we be Deaf, still may we hear Thy Voice and do Thy Bidding;

Though we be Halt, still may we walk Thy Way, nor go astray; And though we see and hear and speak and walk as men, Still may we know these things as but of earth; of only passing need; And if these gifts be ours through Thee, It needs must be that we can wrong no man. Almighty God, grant this be our Thanksgiving.

WHEAT MARKET STILL NERVOUS

General Feeling of Uncertainty Responsible for Irregular Quotations

Chicago, Nov. 29.—General feeling of uncertainty kept the market nervous and irregular today. Much of the long wheat is now liquidated and developments at any time may start new advances, after a sensational break yesterday. December opened steady and was later up even with today's opening, 1 1/4 to 1 3/4; May, down 1/4 to 1 1/4; July, up 1/4 to 1 1/4. Corn had a better tone at the start and showed good gains on persistent buying. December was up 1/4 at 86 1/4; May, up 1/4 at 91 1/4; July, up 1/4 at 91 1/4. Oats rallied quickly, after a lower opening, and December was up 1/4 at 52 1/4; May, 1/4 at 57 1/4. Provisions were steady.
