

DISCRIMINATION AGAINST SLOPE COUNTRY SEEN

Effort to Handicap Proposed Dickinson Normal Reveals Hands of the League

DRUGGISTS PROTEST AGAINST LADD BILL MAKE NO FIGHT.

When the senate convened at 1:00 p. m. today, the minority of the appropriations committee did not renew its attack on the $131,000 appropriation for the normal school. The majority report, requesting this amount, was unanimously adopted.

The League showed its hand Saturday afternoon, when Nonpartisan members of the senate appropriations committee brought in a minority report recommending that the appropriation for the Dickinson normal school, approved by the people by a majority of 20,000 at the last general election, be cut $81,000. The budget board recommended that $252,000 be appropriated for the Slope country institution. This total was pared down to $181,000 by a majority of the appropriations committee. The minority appropriations report recommended a cut of $100,000.

The budget board trimmed down the Dickinson normal estimates to the lowest possible figure, finally recommending the same amount appropriated for the Minot normal several years ago, when the cost of materials, labor, equipment and everything else was from 25 to 50 percent less than today. The action of the majority of the appropriations committee in lopping almost $100,000 from this estimate was radical enough to satisfy the most rabid opponent of further progress for the Missouri slope, but it did not content league members of the committee—Sikes, McCarten, Benson and Morikrid—who signed the minority report recommending that the total be still further reduced to $100,000.

Members of the senate announced before the opening of the session today that they intended to stand by the budget board report, reject both committee recommendations and insist upon the full amount of the Dickinson normal estimate. "If our budget board is worth anything, and it surely ought to be, considering the time it has spent on these matters, we should abide by its recommendations," said Senator McLean, "and I for one intend to insist that the budget board report on the normal be accepted."

Protesting that the measure will do no one any good and that it may do many a lot of harm, druggists from all parts of the state appeared before the senate committee on health Saturday night to protest against Dr. Ladd's house bill requiring patent medicine manufacturers selling their products in this state to reveal their formulas.

Another effort to curb illicit liquor traffic failed in the house Saturday when Representative Bowman's house bill 39, requiring receipts and affidavits from recipients of liquor designed for personal use was indefinitely postponed.

Hurrah! How's This

Cincinnati authority says corns dry up and lift out with fingers.

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority who tells you that a quarter ounce of a drug called freezeone can be obtained at little cost from the drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You simply apply a few drops of freezeone on a tender, aching corn and soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, without pain.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

Resolution Asks Right to Take Home Their Chairs

Representative Sydney F. Smith of Kidder county, is some "kicker." At least that is the light in which members of the house look upon the resolution he introduced in that chamber Saturday afternoon and which was tabled.

The Smith resolution asks that the speaker be presented with the chair "which he has graced and the gavel with which he has preserved order." It also asks that members of the house be permitted to take home their chairs.

At the previous sessions of the state legislature it has been the custom of the house to present the speaker with the chair and the gavel. In the state of Nebraska the chairs are given the legislators, according to Representative Stinger. The Smith resolution follows:

"Whereas, it has been the custom since time immemorial to present to the speaker of the house of representatives of the state of North Dakota the chair which he has graced during the session and the gavel with which he has preserved order;

"Whereas, the members of the house of representatives should also be permitted to take to their homes and keep permanently the chair in which each member sat while attending the present session of the legislature as a remembrance and as an heirloom;

"Now therefore, be it resolved that the speaker be presented with the chair which he has occupied and also the gavel he has wielded, and each member of the house of representatives be presented with the chair in which he sat."

State Affairs Committee of House Considers Constitutional Amendments

Senate Bills Nos. 117 and 118, the same being concurrent resolutions for amendments to the constitution which would enable the state to own and operate a combined elevator and flour mill and a packing plant, were before the house committee on state affairs this morning, and after some discussion were laid over until tonight.

Whether these bills will go the way of the Fairmount terminal elevator dream tonight's session probably will tell.

The league caucus this morning heard Rev. Finwall of the law enforcement league on the merits of House bill No. 127, which provides that organized baseball may be played on Sunday. It is anticipated that the measure will pass the house with little opposition.

The house state affairs committee will report out the senate bill creating a state board of electricians, which will go on general orders tomorrow.

Senator Gibbons of the appropriations committee reported this morning that his committee has all of its bills ready to "shoot" over to the house today—the latest date upon which appropriation bills may be presented to the lower chamber. The appropriation of $781,000 recommended by the Dickinson normal includes all items asked except the dormitory and its equipment and one-half of the estimated maintenance for the first year.

The Dickinson normal cut is greater than that of any other state institution. The University, for instance, asked $60,000 for a new building and $15,000 for equipment, while it was allowed by the appropriations committee $30,000 and $20,000, respectively.

The agricultural college asked $60,000 for an addition to the science building and $125,000 for an administration building. It was allowed the full amount for the science building. Valley City gets $50,000 for new building; Minot $51,000, and Mayville $25,000, which with its accumulated funds makes a total of $75,000.

The senate committee had planned to eliminate work at the Hebron experiment station for the next two years, applying the $30,000 thus saved to building up institutions elsewhere in the state. Dean Babcock of the school of mines is here today to protest against any interruption of the valuable work which is being carried on at Hebron.

Aid to the rural and graded schools has been increased in this year's senate appropriation bills from $120,000 to $225,000, while the high school aid remains the same as heretofore.

In the state departments the biggest single increase is in the office of Attorney General William Langer, who estimates it will cost him almost twice as much to run the office as was appropriated for Attorney General Linde two years ago.

Teeth!

More Defects Are Result of Bad Habits

Most of the troubles of the teeth are the result of uncleanness. Clean teeth do not decay.

When particles of foodstuffs are left between the teeth for some time, a chemical action takes place in which an acid is produced. This acid is called lactic acid. It destroys the enamel and dentine—the main tissues of which the teeth are made up—forming cavities in the teeth. These cavities, if not attended to in time, grow larger and larger. Soon the whole tooth is undermined by decay and becomes practically useless.

Bad teeth are the cause of much trouble, aside from the severe pain which often results from a decayed tooth. Bad teeth cannot chew the food properly and poorly chewed food cannot be properly digested. This gives rise to indigestion and other stomach disorders.

In addition to the remnants of food there may be deposits of tartar on the surfaces of the teeth. Tartar is a precipitate from the fluids of the mouth. It accumulates around the necks of the teeth at the margin of the gum and has a tendency to attach itself to the tooth structure. The lower incisors and upper molars are most commonly affected.

If the tartar is not removed it irritates the gums and makes them inflamed and spongy. They bleed upon the slightest touch.

Often it makes the gums unhealthy and becomes a predisposing cause of the most terrible of all dental diseases—pyorrhea. In this disease there is a constant discharge of pus from the sockets in which the teeth are imbedded, the teeth become loose and the jaw bone is absorbed.

Tartar makes the saliva impure and in this way leads to stomach derangements, for the food must be mixed with pure saliva in order to be digested readily. Tartar also gives a very bad odor to the breath.

In order to avoid these troublesome conditions every individual should clean his teeth thoroughly after each meal, before going to bed and on getting up in the morning. The tartar should be removed and the teeth polished by a good dentist at least once every six months.

HEALTH QUESTIONS ANSWERED. E. L.: "I am troubled with hives and cannot get rid of them. What shall I do?"

Hives result from substances absorbed from the intestines. If you are constipated that must be overcome. If your diet is the cause that must be changed. Generally it is advisable for a person with hives to go on a diet of watery vegetables, some fruits, but not berries, and bread and then experiment in gradually broadening the diet list.

Keep Well Editor: "With raisins help constipation?" J. L. Mc. Yes, if you eat them regularly.

Keep Well Editor: "Please print a remedy for the odor of perspiration under the arms." H. O. B. Bathe the parts with a mixture of one-half teaspoonful of household ammonia in a bowl of water.

Representatives of every state in the Union were among the 150 branch and district managers who attended this sales conference. An elaborate four-day program extending from February 12 to 16 kept the visitors busy every hour of each day. A trip through this immense 30-acre plant of this big tire manufactory was enjoyed by every conference delegate and the process of tire making was observed first-hand through every step, from the crude rubber to the finished product.
