SHOWING THE MOST EXCLUSIVE STYLE TENDENCIES OF THE COMING SEASON

From the foremost makers—establishments who supply America's finest shops—we have selected apparel of superiority and refinement. While basically they conform to the trend of the mode, they reveal those marks of originality, unusual ideas in designs and trimmings that set them apart from the average.

The New Spring Suits

A wealth of distinguished Suits that embody the finest in faultless tailleur or sport effects. The colors are almost tropical in their variety and vividness, though the more neutral and deeper tones have not been omitted. The materials—wool and silk jerseys, tricotine, gunniburf Poiret cords and Khaki Kool as well as serges, gaberdines and novelties. Popular prices prevail.

$20 $30 $40 and up

Exclusive original Suit models by Premet and Marcel, Paris and Michael of New York.

The New Spring Coats

The spring coats take liberties with the color card, and where is the woman who would deny them the right, once she sees how effectively the colors are used?

There are vivid greens and soft toned greens; there are blues we have not known before; there are many shades bordering on tan; this is chartreuse, gold and many rose shades. These colors are all used individually in a wealth of new fabrics—Burella cloth, spring weight Bolivias, new wool velours, jersey and basket weave materials.

Many of the coats fit loosely—flaring a bit from the shoulders; others are gathered in as snugly as you please in belted effects. Three-quarter and short length coats prevail. All are priced popularly at

$15 $25 $35 to $60

NEW AFTERNOON DRESSES of Georgette crepe and Novelty Silks, in various new spring shades at $17.50, $25.00, $30.00 and $37.50

THE MAGAZINES. Good fiction and a number of powerful articles are the leading features of the March American Magazine. One of the articles is by J. Ogden Armour, who writes on "Armour Men Who Got Ahead—and Why." Another American Achieves the Impossible," by Walter V. Woelke describes the work of Daniel C. Jackson, the Utah mining colossus, who has doubled the world's supply of copper and saved electrical industries from serious embarrassment. Other articles are "Do You Eat Enough Roughage?" by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds; "The Pope and the Lone Crusader," an interview with Benedict XV by George Barr Baker; "Preventing Men From Becoming Misfits," by Merle Crowell; "A Good Apple," by David Grayson; "How It Feels to be Thirty," and an article by Annette Kellerman, who tells how she attained her perfect physique against great odds as she was a cripple in her girlhood.

The fiction includes "Robinson's Trousseau," by H. C. Witwer; "The Unknown Goddess," by William Almon Wolf; "The Village Orator," by Leavitt Ashley Knight; "The Destiny of Dan VI," a dog story, by Samuel A. Derieux; "Cinderella Jane," by Marjorie Benton Cooke and "Sadie's Opportunity," by Anne Cameron.

"Sid" tells when it is better to be a bore than to make yourself too interesting. There is a great deal of useful matter in "Getting Ahead" and "The Family's Money." "Interesting People" includes sketches of O. P. and

M. J. Van Sweringen the Cleveland real estate genius, Simon Bamberger, the Governor of Utah, Katherine Stinson, girl aviator, who has instructed one hundred of England's flyers, and Earl Carroll, the composer. The prize letters in the contest entitled "The Greatest Hero" are published. This number of the American Magazine is excellent.
