RIVAL OUTFIELDERS RANK AMONG BEST IN DIAMOND LORE

 can's .962, the averages being those of the first part of September.
 Roush will be pitted against Felsch in the center garden. Both these players have thousands of admirers for each is one of the stars of his league and a real battle is expected. Roush, who one time tried to make the White Sox team but was found wanting, has climbed the ladder of fame and today is one of the best hitters in the National league, having an average of more than .300 almost the entire season. He is a good fielder, with a mark around .957, has a good arm and covers a lot of ground. This will be his first world's series.
 Felsch, on the other hand, suffered a slump in his batting this year, but has been a dangerous man in the pinch and has boosted his batting mark to about .359 while his fielding average for the greater part of the year is .974. He is rated by many experts as the greatest outfielder in the American league. Felsch is a player who can go to any corner of the field and there has a lot of speed and a powerful arm. Toward the close of the season Felsch showed signs of recovering his batting eye. Roush's mark during the first part of September was .319.

In comparison, these two players will about break even, as where one outshines the other in hitting, the other will outfield his rival.
 The right field position seems to favor the Chicago aggregation. Liebold, Chicago's "lead off" is one of the hardest men in the league to pitch to, and is a patient waiter at the plate. He will invariably make work for a pitcher to count two and three, and when they cut off plate is a capable batter. He is fast on the field, has a strong arm and is a brainy player and a clever base-runner. Neale, on the other hand, while favoring in the right field garden may experience some difficulty fielding, especially in the White Sox park, owing to the shadows which have affected many American leaguers. On his home grounds, however, he will have the advantage over his White Sox rival. Liebold has been hitting at a .293 clip while Neale's mark has been around .247. In fielding Neale has hung up an average for the greater part of the season of .951, while Liebold's mark is .923.

John Collins in Reserve.
 As a reserve in right field, the White Sox have John Collins, one of the fastest and surest fielders in the game. "Shano" has been with the Sox 10 years, and is a hardened player. He is one of the gamest men in baseball and dangerous at bat and on the bases, although his batting average does not indicate that he is a heavy hitter. "Shano" has been crowning the pill for about .262 and has been fielding around .944. Magee, the Red's veteran substitute outfielder, has been hitting around .225 and fielding .988. The White Sox also have Eddie Murphy as an alternate. However, he may not break into the out field, but may be injected into the game as a pinch hitter, a role he has successfully filled many times this season. Murphy, like Liebold, is a hard man to pitch to and will worry almost any pitcher. When on the bases he worries a pitcher more than any player in the league and he may break up a game whenever he is sent into the field. He has been hitting better than .475 for the greater part of the season. On the other hand Moran has a dependable pitcher in Bressler, who has played the outfield a number of times and is capable of holding down the job. Bressler in the few games he has played has batted around .312 and his fielding mark is around .965.

The records of the players for the greater part of the season just closed, showing batting and fielding averages, follow:

Chicago White Sox
	Batting	Fielding
Murphy	.478	.478
Jackson	.352	.974
Liebold	.293	.923
J. Collins	.262	.944
Felsch	.259	.974
Cincinnati Reds.
Roush	.319	.987
Neale	.247	.951
Duncan	.255	.962
Magee	.222	.988
Bressler	.212	.965
