

BOY LIVES WITH SHOT IN HEART

Life in Balance for Several Days; He Leaves Hospital Two Weeks Later.

SHOT WHILE AT PLAY

Doctors Say It is the Most Remarkable Case in History of Hospital—Seven Buckshot Pellets Lodged in Heart Muscles.

Paterson, N. J.—Alive with seven pellets of buckshot in the muscles of his heart, and apparently suffering slight, if any, ill effects, is the remarkable case of twelve-year-old Lawrence Satterfield, of Bloomingdale, N. J., according to doctors of the Paterson General hospital.

The boy was accidentally shot on May 1. He left the hospital two weeks later, having prevailed on his parents and the staff doctors to let him do so, declaring he was all right, and did not want to stay indoors any longer. His pleading won the consent of the attending surgeons, but not before a further X-ray examination was made. The result showed the pellets all remaining in the muscles of the heart. They could be seen moving around when the boy was taking long breaths, according to the statement made by Dr. Samuel Thompson, of the hospital staff.

Remarkable Case.

"When this little fellow was first brought in," Dr. Thompson said, "he hovered between life and death for several days. When he left here he was apparently none the worse for his accident. I find his case one of the most remarkable ever entered in this hospital, or that has occurred in Passaic county during my memory. It is almost beyond belief."

On Sunday, May 1, the boy, with his two cousins, Thompson Yatman, sixteen years old, and William Yatman, fourteen years old, were playing around the grounds of the Yatman home in Bloomingdale. Thompson went into the Yatman barn and brought out an old shotgun belonging to his father. It was the old story, "we did not know it was loaded."

The children began the usual boyish game of "bandits." The old shotgun in the hands of Thompson, youngest of the three, was discharged. Part of the load of shot struck William Yatman in the left leg and a scattering of the shot penetrated Lawrence Satterfield's left side, lodging in the heart muscle.

Life Hung in Balance.

Hearing the report, the father of Thompson and William ran out of his house and found his eldest son and his nephew lying on the ground partly unconscious. Commandeering an automobile he rushed them to the General hospital at Paterson.

Satterfield's case was diagnosed at once as "extremely critical." For two days his life hung in balance. As the little fellow accompanied by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Satterfield, walked out of the hospital, the surgeons who attended him shared his happiness.

Though William, his cousin, was less seriously wounded, he did not leave the hospital, being still confined to bed. The heart is surrounded by a muscular structure that propels the blood by alternate contractions and dilations.

BIG RAT TERRORIZES HOME

Makes Osperate Attack on New York and Cats Flee at the Sight of it.

New York.—While ministering to his five-year-old daughter, Leonore, who had accidentally swallowed a quantity of rat poison, John Bolte was attacked by a gigantic rat.

Shouting for help he fought the rat, which tried to reach his throat, for five minutes when neighbors arrived and killed it. The child will recover.

The rat, which was as large as a cat, appeared in the bathroom of the Bolte home about a week ago. Cats which Bolte borrowed fled at the sight of the rodent. One of the cats jumped through the bathroom window.

CLEVELAND AWAITS FIRST LADY

By Newspaper Enterprise Cleveland, Sept. 20.—Cleveland is waiting to see its "First Lady."

On formal occasions in the past when it was necessary for Mayor William S. FitzGerald—"bachelor mayor"—to do the honors, it was his mother who ably assisted. And all that time, busy with her music studies in the east and in Italy, there was a Mrs. FitzGerald that Cleveland—even the intimate friends of the mayor—knew nothing about.

The mayor has just announced that he married three years ago. Mrs. FitzGerald's maiden name was Miss Margaret Chilton Tucker. She is a grandniece of ex-Senator Chilton of Texas.

"We met in Washington when I was there on official business," says FitzGerald. "After a courtship we went to New York and were quietly married. Mrs. FitzGerald's ambition was for a professional musical career. She wanted to continue her studies abroad, so by mutual consent our marriage was kept secret."

Mrs. FitzGerald probably will not come to Cleveland until after the close of her husband's mayoralty campaign this fall.

QUEEN ANNE LOSES HER CROWN

By Newspaper Enterprise Stickney, Ill., Sept. 20.—A sovereign without a throne—a ruler without scepter or subjects.

She is Annie Stanley, queen of all American gypsies.

Five years ago she ruled, with King Gus Stanley, now dead, over 75,000 followers—a migrating horde who obeyed her command.

And then came the world war with its falling of crowns. The gypsies likewise demanded freedom—and Queen Annie abdicated.

She has laid aside her gold chains of nuggets and is in retirement here, Stickney, during the period of the "gypsy dynasty" was the capital to which all American tribes sent emissaries to pay homage, legislate and receive instruction.

So the ex-queen has decided to spend her last days here. She is 83 years old.

"The war ruined everything for me," she says. "The people all want freedom—but maybe it is for the best."

GOOD HIGHWAYS

IMPROVED ROADS ARE URGED

Permanent Highways Will Turn Tide to Rural Sections and Increase Production of Food.

"Propaganda urging a change of the present method of federal aid in the construction of good roads has made its appearance," said Thomas J. Cusack of Meriden, Conn., to Washington Post reporter. "It is now proposed to establish a national highway system, to be wholly constructed and maintained by the national government. It is doubtful if such a change would ever be advisable, but it is certainly not expedient at this time in view of the condition of the treasury."

"It is desirable to have a system of hard-surface roads throughout the country, and this result can be obtained under the present system. Highway use is very largely a local matter. The growth and development of a community is greatly increased by the construction of permanent roads in or adjacent thereto. No system should be adopted that would benefit a few at the expense of the many. For that reason the local communities should contribute their share of the expense of the construction.

"We are told by competent authority that freight can be transported cheaper on short hauls by motor trucks than by rail, but on long hauls the cost of transportation by truck is prohibitive.

"In April, 1917, the declaration of war caused all road building to cease. All bond issues that had been voted for road construction were held in abeyance, and nothing was undertaken until after the signing of the armistice to resume construction of highways. The war awakened the people to the necessity of permanent road building and demonstrated that it would be necessary in the future to build roads that would withstand the heavy truck traffic.

"The present system of federal aid has not been given a fair opportunity to demonstrate its merits. It began operation under abnormal conditions, which grew worse. The road to be improved must be a 'rural post road,' as defined in the law, to be any public road, a major portion of which is now used, or can be used, as a connecting link not to exceed ten miles in length of any road or roads now or hereafter used for the transportation of the United States mails.

"Nothing will turn the tide of humanity back to the rural communities more effectively than the construction of permanent highways. Nothing will encourage the production of food products more than roads that can be traveled all the year."

STATE ROAD HELP OLD IDEA

First Money Paid for Highway Improvement Made by Kentucky 75 Years Ago.

It is often said that the use of state money for the construction of roads is of quite recent origin, says a bulletin from the American Highway association. The New Jersey state aid law of 1891 is sometimes referred to as the first instance of such use of state funds in this country. As a matter of fact, state money was spent for such purposes more than 75 years ago. Kentucky paid out over $2,000,000 for road improvements between 1820 and 1840 under the direction of a state highway engineer, who drew a salary of $5,000 a year, a very large sum for those days.

The roads built then were 24 to 30 feet wide between the ditches. The surfaces were constructed of broken stone, and the bottoms were of large stones wedged together to make what road builders call a telford foundation. About 1850 business conditions in the country became bad and this work stopped. When it was resumed in 1908 such a long period had elapsed since the earlier state aid work that 1908 is usually fixed as the beginning of state road work in Kentucky.

STRONGER HIGHWAYS NEEDED

Anything Less Stable Than Concrete or Special Road Brick Means Constant Repairing.

It is beginning to be realized that concrete or special road brick set in cement over a concrete foundation must be used for trunk roads designed to carry heavy truck traffic. Anything cheaper and less stable simply means bad roads and constant repairs.

WONT SELL PROPERTY WORTH $750,000, BECAUSE CAT PLAYS THERE

New York, Sept. 20.—A woman who owns a yard facing 50 feet on Fifth avenue at 39th street, in the center of the city's most fashionable shopping district, refuses to sell it because her cat "has to have a place to play in."

The property is worth about $750,000, according to real estate men.

The dollars paid on it each year in taxes would, if stacked dollar on dollar, make a hurdle not to be sneered at by anything short of the cow who jumped over the moon. The cat is "just one of these yere everyday walk-in-round cats." It was never known to take a prize at a cat show.

Other wealthy people have given strange reasons for refusing to sell business district property which was eagerly sought by many buyers. Some time ago a man who owned a building in Broadway just below Times Square wanted contract stipulations that none of the prospective buyers would lease it to certain businesses. His list began with aviary and went right on down the alphabet to xylophone dealers, skipping so few lines of business that none would take the place.

Just above the Times Square section of Broadway an aged property owner had a vacant five-story building that an automobile sales house wanted to lease. The papers were drawn up, and when the interested parties had gathered to sign it, the automobile representative remarked that his concern was going to put "a nice electric sign on the roof." The owner laid down his pen and said no electric signs were going on top of his building. The deal was not closed and the building remained empty for six years when the owner died.

STUDY LAW

Your Opportunity. This Means You.

Mr. Banker, Business or Professional Man, do you recall that business deal you undertook and, not having the time or inclination to consult with an attorney as to the legal questions involved, you guessed and guessed wrong—and lost? It looked like a simple question but it was fundamental—and fatal to the transaction. Perhaps you haven't had that experience but you may. By a small investment of time and money you may avoid that result.

To the Clerk, Stenographer or Other Employee, you are ambitious to enlarge your business opportunities.

Women also are becoming leaders in the business and professional world and are destined to move in the front ranks of politics on account of their voting franchise. To gain a knowledge of law is to enhance your powers of usefulness in the realm of all these activities.

The answer to these needs is found in the offer of the law course presented by the American College of Law, a night school organized in Bismarck a year ago. The school will open in the High School Building, Monday, September 26, at 7:30 p. m. The class periods are from 7:30 to 3:30 Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings.

The four year course offered is equivalent to that of the best law schools or universities. This is a coeducational institution and both men and women are now enrolled.

The faculty is composed of experienced attorneys, each having a Bachelor of Laws degree from a university. They are:
