TOTS LOCKED IN CLOSET 90 HOURS

Paterson, N. J.—Missing for 90 hours, Stella Weiner, five years old, and her playmate, Harry Barber, seven, were found, suffering from hunger and exhaustion, in the clothes closet of a vacant apartment in which they had been imprisoned. After they had been revived, the children explained they entered the closet while playing hide and seek, but had not closed the door. Soon afterward, they said, Ethel Bellinsky, another playmate, slammed the door, and they did not realize they were sealed up until after she had left the room. Ethel, who is only four, either forgot to mention that she had closed the door, or else did not realize they were in the closet. When the children failed to come home to supper, the distracted parents began an exhaustive search for them. Police and neighbors combed the vicinity, but found no trace of them. A few days later Jacob Weiner and Samuel Miller visited the vacant apartment for a game of cards. Strange noises from a clothes closet startled them and they opened the door. On the floor Weiner saw the partly conscious form of his little sister, and huddled in a corner was her boy playmate. Doctors summoned soon revived the children. The fact that the closet door did not fit closely, thus permitting a slight circulation of air, saved their lives, the doctors who attended them said.

MARKETS

FRESH UPURNS Chicago, Sept. 20.—Fresh upturns in wheat prices resulted today from continued wet weather hindering the movement of the spring crop and jamming grain in shocks. Opening figures which were from 1-4 to 1-4 cents higher were followed by material further gains and then something of a reaction. Apparent absence of new export business tended to ease the market later. Price closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to one-half cent higher. 'BAT' MASTERSON'S REVENGE ON THE CHEYENNES

One December day in the early seventies a young buffalo hunter down in the Texas Panhandle was busy skinning a buffalo when five Cheyennes of Chief Bear Shield's band rode up, saluted him with a grave "How!" and sat on their ponies idly watching his work. Although the hunter's Sharps rifle was lying some distance away, he was not worried, for the Cheyennes were supposed to be peaceful at that time.

Presently one of the red men dismounted and picked up the Sharps as though to examine it and, as he did so, another reached across and whipped the pistol from the holster in the hunter's belt. Instantly the first Indian struck the white man a murderous blow across the forehead with the rifle and in broken but emphatic English told him to "git." The hunter was outnumbered five to one; he "got."

The victim of the Cheyennes was "Bat" Masterson. William Barclay Masterson was his name, but his success as a buffalo hunter had won him the title of "Bat," as a worthy successor to Baptiste Brown, "Old Bat," a mighty slayer of game in the old days. Masterson reached his camp in safety. That night he rode stealthily into Bear Shield's village and "cut out" 40 of the old chief's ponies. As he worked he came upon another rider engaged in the same occupation. It proved to be Billy Tighman, a fellow buffalo hunter who later became a famous deputy United States marshal.

When in 1874 a war party swept down upon the Adobe Walls, the buffalo hunters' headquarters, some of Bear Shield's warriors rode with it, and one of the defenders of the little stockade was "Bat" Masterson. Then and there he obtained revenge for the blow which the Cheyenne had struck him.

After the Adobe Walls fight, Masterson enlisted as a scout for General Miles and served with him until the southern plains tribes were subdued. A few years later he was elected sheriff of Ford county, Kansas. Dodge city, the county seat, was one of the toughest cowtowns in the West, but when Masterson resigned in 1881 it was one of the most peaceful. By his courage and his skill he had established a record second only to Wild Bill Hickok as a tamer of "bad men."

Then he left the West never to return, and today "Bat" Masterson is a high salaried writer on a New York newspaper.

THE LONG SHOT MADE BY BILLY DIXON

"The old Sharps rifle ended the North American buffalo," once wrote Theodore Roosevelt, the chronicler of the winning of the West, and he might have added that this famous gun helped write "Finis" to the story of the Indian with a few periods of lead.

One of the most remarkable shots ever made with this rifle took place at the Adobe Walls fight in the Texas Panhandle in 1874, when a war party of Kiowas, Comanches and Cheyennes tried to wipe out a little group of buffalo hunters who had their headquarters there. The shot was fired by Billy Dixon, known to the Indians as "Hasta—Long Hair."

After three charges against the stockade had failed to overwhelm the buffalo hunters, the Indians settled down to starve them out. During the siege "Bat" Masterson, one of the hunters, noticed a group of Indians gathered on a hill nearly three-quarters of a mile away. They could be plainly seen, and were evidently talking over some new plan for overcoming the white men when Masterson called Dixon's attention to the group.

"Billy, it wouldn't be a bad idea to break up that little pow-wow over there, would it?" he said. "Don't know whether the old Sharps is good for it or not, but I'll try it," replied Dixon. He knew the range—approximately 1,200 yards. Fixing the sights of his gun to this range, the scout aimed carefully and fired. The white men saw the conference of the warriors break up hastily and the savages retreat to a safer place.

Dixon served as a scout for General Miles in the campaign against the southern tribes that year, and he was one of the six dispatch bearers who made a heroic stand in an old buffalo wallow against a war party of 125 Comanches and Kiowas. In this fight Amos Chapman, a fellow scout, lost his leg. Although Dixon's shirt front was riddled with bullets, he received only one slight wound. That night he volunteered to go for help and after a perilous trip he brought back a troop of cavalry and rescued his comrades.

For nine years Dixon was a government scout at Fort Elliott, Tex. Then he homesteaded a ranch in the Panhandle, building his log house on the ruins of the old Adobe Walls where he had made his famous shot with the old Sharps. Later he moved to Cimarron county, Oklahoma, and died near the little town of Gresham in 1914.

Seattle, Wash., where the Bolsheviks tried out their first American soviet government and met Ole Hanson, now is in the hands of the American Legion. The state's lieutenant governor, the mayor of the city, the attorney general, the prosecuting attorney and two city councilmen are members of Kaitler-Noble force of the Legion. The city's police force likewise is well represented in the post membership.

Then Why Be Truthful? No man believes everything he's told; no woman believes anything he tells her.

Moquitoes Prevent Rice Production. Although rice is the staple diet of the population of Ceylon, it is nearly all imported. Malarial mosquitoes breed so freely in the rice fields that laborers cannot work there.
