

MISCONSTRUED SAYS GOVERNOR OF TELEGRAM

Announcement of Governor Of Indiana Is Discussed By Governor Nestos

INVOLVES JOUR. OLSON Application for Extradition To Indiana in Bank Case Hangs Fire Long Time

(By the Associated Press) Indianapolis, Dec. 29.—Governor McCray announced today that he had received a request from Governor Nestos of North Dakota to withdraw extradition papers for Jourgen Olson who is under indictment for embezzlement in connection with the failure of the Newburgh, Indiana, State bank.

MISCONSTRUED, GOVERNOR SAYS That Governor McCray of Indiana had misconstrued a recent telegram in stating that Governor Nestos had asked for the withdrawal of the extradition request for Jourgen Olson.

After long delay in which attorneys for both sides had requested an execution, the Olson hearing in which Indiana asked that he be turned over to that state to answer a charge of embezzling about $72,000 was set for December 31. On December 1 Governor Nestos received the following telegram:

"Please withhold action on requisition Jourgen Olson until further advised by me. Letter follows. Have notified prosecuting attorney, Warrick county, Indiana.

Warren T. McCray, governor. On December 18, having received no letter, Governor Nestos wrote to Governor McCray, noting the receipt of the telegram, that he had advised all parties of the postponement of the hearing and concluding:

"I am anxious to get this matter closed one way or the other, as it has been on my desk for a long time and I wish that you would write me immediately to let me know whether you desire the matter heard, or whether at this time you wish to withdraw the request for the extradition of Jourgen Olson."

McCray's Reply To this letter Governor McCray replied in a letter dated December 21:

"I am in receipt of your favor of recent date and replying to same would say that I am not writing me immediately to let me know whether you desire the matter heard, or whether at this time you wish to withdraw the request for the extradition of Jourgen Olson."

"We, therefore, will not ask you for a hearing on the requisition for at least ninety days, as that is the time asked for by Mr. Olson and his representatives. You will therefore hold this in abeyance for the time being and oblige.

"Very truly yours, "Warren T. McCray, "Governor of Indiana."

On December 25, Governor Nestos sent the following telegram:

"Governor Warren T. McCray: "Believe you should withdraw present requisition for Jourgen Olson and later make an application again if it becomes necessary. "Governor R. A. Nestos."

FIRST AID TO BE TAUGHT IN STATE SCHOOLS North Dakota's school children will know more about the ways of taking care of the simple accidents of youth than the mothers of a generation ago used to know as well as having a general view of the health problems of the community if the school teachers of the state are able to cover the subjects presented in the 1922 course of study in physiology and hygiene as outlined for the elementary schools of the state in a newly published syllabus of the school State Department of Education.

The actual study of the physiology is not undertaken under this new syllabus until the seventh grade and before that time the children are instructed by play and precept in the actual working of the health problems. First aid is effected in the eighth grade, where the youngsters do the many things that may be done in case of injury.

Community hygiene is one of the elements entering into the work and this is carried on in the seventh and eighth grades by a course in community civics. The outline for community civics for the seventh grade covers the subjects of neighbor health, clean foods, water supply, sewage disposal, garbage disposal, flies and mosquitoes, clean city, a clean farm, plans, model hygienic community, study of local and state health laws, cost of disease to community, cost of accidents to community, cost of fires to community, accident and fire prevention.

The course also goes into the question of quarantine, the use of hospitals, the use and need of recreation. The syllabus also suggests a course in safety education, based on the work done in the Detroit schools, where the pupils from the first grade up are instructed in measures that may operate to save human life. In Detroit, safety education is linked up with first aid because in the language of the Detroit text book: "Accidents have become far too common and studying how to prevent them is a part of every course in first aid. Every first-aid worker takes care of an injured person should carefully think over the cause of the accident and take all possible steps to prevent a similar accident in the future."

NEW INTEREST IN OIL SHOWN IN NO. DAKOTA

Reported Finding of Oil in Sand in Adams County Renews Life

Several companies which have been organizing for some time and have oil leases in southwestern North Dakota may renew financing efforts as a result of the reported strike of oil in Davis well No. 1 in Adams county. Ft. Pierre, Faith, New England and Marmarth enterprises may again show activity, according to reports reaching here.

Reports which appeared in some quarters to the effect that the Davis Well No. 1 was a gusher are not borne out in The Dakota Oil News, published at Lemmon, S. D. This paper, which is enthusiastic for development of the oil industry says that "The Davis well even if it proves to be no more of a producer than a 25 or 50 barrel well only proves petroleum present and will be one of the largest operators to develop every structure in which they are interested or lose their leases. There is no question but what the next six months will see hundreds of wells in Western North and South Dakota."

After the discovering of oil and gas in the Shannon sand in Davis Well No. 1, Adams county, North Dakota, the company ordered extra drilling casing for continuation of the work. It is expected to arrive about January 10. After this is installed will continue, it is stated.

People in southwestern North Dakota are anxious to see the Davis No. 1 well drilled down to a depth of 3,000 or 4,000 feet, and believe that it ought to be a pretty fair test as to oil prospects in the state. A saturation of oil and gas was found at about 2,100 feet, according to announcement.

Still Conservative The more conservative are retaining the same position that they believe their oil in southwestern North Dakota are they would like to see enough wells down to really determine whether there is oil in paying quantities. The business men of Adams and Hettinger counties taking this position do not favor any misrepresentation of the situation.

The Dakota Oil News asserts that thousands of acres of land has been tied up under long-time drilling leases by big oil interests, under which they would not be required to drill for several years. The hope is expressed that finding of oil in wells put down by smaller companies would force the hands of the big interests. It is reported that A. D. Keeney of Shreveport, La., who owns approximately 164,000 acres of leases in the Lemmon section and about 24,000 acres in the Woodman structure at Belle Faith is a representative of the Shell interests.

Optimism Near Pingree The Jamestown Alert says regarding optimism in finding oil in the neighborhood of Pingree and Jim Lake: "Several parties in the neighborhood of Pingree and Jim Lake are taking much interest and are quite optimistic over the prospects of prospects of striking oil in at least two or more locations. One is east of Pingree, the other west. The latest reason for believing that oil may be found are known to a few and future drilling tests are almost certain to be made in the near future."

Gas at 200 Feet Recently Harry Larson began drilling a well on his own farm, about two miles west of Pingree, and reached a depth of 207 feet when the water rose to within twenty feet of the top. Both gas and oil accompanied the drilling and the rise of the water and the oil is said to be so plentiful that at times horses refuse to drink the water. Mr. Larson is intending to drill his well deeper and possibly the Moran well will be drilled to a greater depth.

PUBLISHERS FIND PROFESSORS ARE POOR WRITERS

Philadelphia, Dec. 29.—College professors were taken to task for errors in spelling yesterday and ineffective sentences by speakers at a symposium on the "Author, the Publisher and the Critic," held in connection with the annual convention of the Modern Language Association of America.

John F. Brown, editor of the MacMillan company, declared professors not only failed to present their manuscripts in acceptable form, but that they write few well organized paragraphs. "Don't you try to bear in mind," he urged "to write paragraphs void of too many irrelevant sentences
