From what Lon and her mother said, the difficulty came up beeause Lou's husband, Adam Bacy, was drunk, and his father-in-law, King Simmons, was repremanding him for such conduct.

Words led to blows, and Adam South McAlester. Bacy had received one or two scratches from Simmon's knife, when Bacy's wife. Lou, interfered, and, it seems, got out accidently. At any rate she has a long gash across her breast, and Dr. Hatcher, colored, says that the knife touched one of the lungs, and, while she may recover, it is very serious-
