Ardmore, Wednesday, July 23.

The dust problem, during the remainder of the reunion, is solved.

The general understanding is that the grand reunion parade will take place at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The croaker who said this reunion had not been advertised will find his answer by going out to the park, if there is enough cigarette smoke in his head to drive him there.

The rain today is worth thousands of dollars to the Chickasaw nation. It will insure a bounteous cotton crop, materially benefit late corn and give the farmer and pasture man another hay crop.

"Drowned out, but not disheartened," was a general expression at the reunion grounds this morning. The rain was accepted by the old veterans and visitors as cheerfully as by our average farmer, who seemed delighted.

A business session of the reunion is being held in the court house this afternoon, and the election of officers and selection of location for the next annual reunion will be acted upon. Tishomingo is an aspirant for the next reunion, but we are told that that town has no Corbett camp, and, such being the case, the good old town will not receive the deserved consideration she is entitled to.

Outlaw Tracy has eluded his pursuers most effectively. He has disappeared entirely and the great man hunt which has been persistently followed up since June 11 has been declared off. Thousands of dollars have been spent to effect his capture, and something like a dozen men have fallen victims to his deadly aim. He has baffled skilled detectives and bloodhounds, and probably will, like Pat Crowe, at some remote date, dictate terms of surrender for a money consideration.

Contractor John Burke is in the city today from his contract east of Madill on the A. & C. road. Mr. Burke says that by the latest arrangement he has made with the road—in which he can borrow and waste—he will be able to finish his contract within a month.

ENROLLMENT OF VETERANS.

Members of the Lost Cause Who Still Respond to Roll Call.

Although Time is devastating the ranks of those who fought and lost, the heroes of the Lost Cause who still respond to roll call do so with a spirit of pride. They are proud that time has dealt kindly towards them. They are proud to be the heroes of the Southland today, and the people of the South almost worship them.

Those who enrolled on the morning of the first day of the reunion were:

DR. PRICE'S Cream Baking Powder

Each time the United States Government has officially tested the baking powders the report has shown Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder to be of superlative leavening strength, free from alum, absolutely pure and wholesome.

This is gratifying, for Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder is depended upon by millions of people to raise their daily bread.

PRICE BAKING POWDER CO., CHICAGO.

Note.—These Government inquiries also developed the fact that there are many cheap imitations upon the market made in imitation of baking powder, but containing alum or other caustic acid, whose use in food is dangerous.

The Gun Club Shoot.

One feature of the great reunion is the live bird shoot under the auspices of the Ardmore Gun club. Sportsmen are here from Kansas City, Cleburne, Fort Worth, Dallas, Temple, Durant, Davis and other cities and towns.

This is by odds the biggest shoot ever pulled off in the Indian Territory, and the local sportsmen have acquitted themselves with credit. Ed Roberts of this city is wearing the handsome gold medal worn last year by Jack Conlisk of Cleburne, Tex. The medal was won by Roberts in the ten-bird medal contest, in which he scored ten straight, while his opponent, after scoring nine straight, missed the tenth bird.

In the shoot today Spraggins scored 23, Allen 24, tying Conlee 24 and Havens 23—47 out of 50. The score is incomplete at the hour of going to press, on the champion team shoot, but the full score will be published in these columns tomorrow.

FLOWER FRAGRANCE.

A Mysterious Sympathy Between the Essence and the Bloom.

One of the leading manufacturers of perfumery declares that he is quite certain that flowers possess souls. The fragrance of a flower is actually its soul, and it exists when the flower itself has perished. This is not a poetical fancy, he maintains, but is fact. Certainly the fragrance of a flower is not a dead thing. This seems to be a curious statement to make, but it is a fact that when certain conditions are fulfilled a part of the life of a flower never seems to die.

Although the fragrance of flowers dead years ago may have undergone all sorts of manufacturing processes to extract it and to fix it, yet it never dies. When the flowers of the kind it was extracted from bloom, it exhibits a marvelous sympathy.

Take, as an example, the case of jonquils. At the end of the year the smell of the perfume is constant, but in spring a change appears. In May, when the jonquils are in full flower, the colorless liquid has its scent exalted to a surprisingly high degree. When the flowers are in bloom, the bottled essence is very perceptibly stronger in odor. As the flowers droop, so does the perfume lose its potency in strict agreement. This mysterious sympathy between flower and essence never dies, but ever responds to the proper seasons.—Petterson's Weekly.

Makes It Good.

"That fellow makes mighty good money."
"Indeed?"
"Sure; he works in the mint."—Baltimore News.

Every base occupation makes on sharp in its practice and dull in ever other.—Sir Philip Sidney.

Negative Virtue's Poor Reward.
"Why, papa," she argued, "you know Arbutnot never drinks, chews, smokes, gambles or sweats."

"Yes, I know," the rugged unromantic old man answered, "but I don't want a chap for a son-in-law who merely doesn't do things."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Charge.

Blobbs—I hear you lost your suit. Was the judge's charge unfavorable?
Slobbs—Oh, I'm not kicking about that. What makes me sore is my lawyer's charge.—Philadelphia Record.

Wrinkles come, the face fades, but the soul speaks just as eloquently from the eye where hope has conquered care.—Schoolmaster.

TISHOMINGO REPRESENTED.

Special Train Brings in Hundreds, Accompanied by Band.

The westbound Choctaw special arriving this morning brought about 500 people to Ardmore. The greater number were from Tishomingo and wore badges with the inscription: "Tishomingo, the Capital of the Chickasaw Nation."

Tishomingo did not send a small delegation—the town is here. They are accompanied by pretty women and one of the best bands in the Chickasaw nation.

The great reunion was at the mercy of the rain when the delegation arrived, but, headed by Charles S. Stevens, G. W. Burris, Silas Boyd, William Lucas, Dr. Hedlin and many other prominent citizens, they went to work to get in touch with the reunion headquarters, to place in nomination their town for the next annual reunion. They have out a neat folder setting forth the advantages of Tishomingo as a reunion town, giving assurance of a hearty, generous, whole-souled hospitality, and promising that nothing shall be left undone to make the stay of the Confederate soldier in Tishomingo "one of the bright spots in life's journey, to be treasured in memory's casket in the years to come."

General Coleman.

Gen. R. B. Coleman, who for five years has been the major general commanding the Indian Territory department of the United Confederate Veterans, with his sponsor and chief maid of honor, are at the Banks hotel. General Coleman is an enthusiastic veteran, and his work in this command stands as a monument to his executive ability and to his love for the Lost Cause.

General Cabell.

Gen. W. L. Cabell of Dallas, lieutenant general commanding the trans-Mississippi department, United Confederate Veterans, is registered at the Banks. He was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Kate Cabell Currie, who is the guest of Mrs. T. Y. Morgan. General Cabell, affectionately known as "Old Tige," is a prominent figure in Southern history. He is now 75 years old, and, while his step is not so steady as in former days, yet he has that strength of character that makes men love him as a friend and fear him as an enemy.

At the business session of the U. C. V. in the court house, this afternoon, Gen. R. B. Coleman was re-elected commander of the Indian Territory division, a position he has ably filled for a number of years.

To the Confederate Soldier:

You drank the bitter cup in the sixties and now we are going to offer you the
