DELAWARE NEGRO LYNCHED

BURNED AT THE STAKE, BODY
RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

Mob Has Battle With the Guards.
Several Citizens Shot in Attempting to Get the Prisoner—The Negro's Crime.

Wilmington, Del., June 23.—A mob of 2,000 men broke into the jail at 12:30 tonight, tied the negro George White to a stake and started a fire. He confessed and was riddled with bullets. Four citizens were shot by jail guards, one fatally. The guards, who were reinforced yesterday, after two small mobs had been driven away, defended the workhouse, which is a strong building. They were armed with revolvers and riot guns, and used them. A man and a boy, members of the mob, were shot and slightly injured. Others are reported to have been wounded. Besides using their fire arms, the guards played a strong stream of water from a hose into the crowd, which stubbornly held its ground, the leaders declaring they must get the negro. The place where he was burned is three miles from the workhouse, which is on the outskirts of the city.

White was accused of having assaulted Miss Helen A. Bishop, the 17-year-old daughter of Rev. E. A. Bishop, on Monday last. Rev. Mr. Bishop and other members of the dead girl's family have deprecated every suggestion of mob violence and have repeatedly urged that the law be permitted to take its course.

The first attempt to lynch White was made Sunday morning. Two mobs were organized, but for some reason failed to meet and were defeated in detail by the guards of the workhouse, who were reinforced after the first attack.

The second of these Sunday morning mobs was led by a negro, and there were many blacks in the two small mobs, which numbered in all probably 175 men. Even had they joined forces they were not sufficiently strong to storm the workhouse.

TO OPEN SECTION LINE ROADS.

Will Destroy Pastures and Drive Cattle From Territory.

Muskogee, I. T., June 23.—The Indian agent's office has asked for $10,000 with which to prosecute the work of opening roads along section lines.

Some action of the sort is greatly needed, as the allotting of lands enables the allottee to fence his holdings through which the old road, in its devious course, may have passed. It is claimed, however, that section line roads must be opened before the old roads are closed. Having a corn or oat crop is no excuse for not opening a section line, as the road order was originally issued in February, before the crops were planted.

The order may possibly be enforced for another purpose as well. The Creek authorities are threatening to use this as a weapon against the offending cattlemen who are said to have violated the terms of their leases. The Creek citizens living near the big pastures may demand the opening of the section line roads through them, and thus destroy the availability of the pastures, cutting them off from water and reducing their size so that the lessee may be practically forced out of business by this means.

Millions Still Tied Up.

St. Louis, June 23.—All efforts to open the time lock at the United States subtreasury today again proved futile and the $35,000,000 in the vault is temporarily withdrawn from circulation. It is believed that the lock has been broken on the inside in some unknown manner. This will not be known, however, until the arrival Monday of an expert from New York. The lock was set to be opened at the proper time yesterday morning, but it failed to respond. The arrival of a heavy consignment of cash from Washington yesterday saved the officials from their embarrassing position, and tellers were able to meet all obligations.

New Jail Plans Completed.

Washington, June 23.—The architects have completed the plans of the four United States jails which are to be built in the Indian Territory and the plans are on exhibition at the department of justice to be approved. Contracts will be let at once and it is expected that the work of breaking ground will commence within ninety days. The jails will be located at Vinita, Muskogee, South McAlester and Ardmore.

EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS.

President Intends Calling National Legislature Together Nov. 9.

Washington, June 23.—Congressional callers at the White House during the last two days have received renewed assurances from the president that it is his intention to call the congress in extra session November 9.

The program of the Republican leaders will be, unless there is a change in their present indications, to permit the Democrats all the opportunity they desire during the extra session to discuss the questions of tariff and reciprocity and kindred subjects. After the regular session begins little opportunity will be allowed them. The Republican policy will be to keep the tariff from attaining a top-notch place from December until the close of congress. What the policy and attitude will be on the tariff in the presidential election will depend on future developments and on the position of the Democrats next year.

Senators and representatives regret that their vacation is to be cut short by a month, but hope that the extra session will be productive of results. The president, of course, shares this hope.

Among the senators who called on the president today were Mallory of Florida, Culberson of Texas and Borah of Michigan. Senator Burrows, with a big handful of papers relating to demands of his constituents, called on the president to talk with him about a variety of matters. Senator Mallory had a matter pertaining to the navy department and was accompanied by Secretary Moody in making his claim.

LEVEE SYSTEM CONDEMNED.

Mississippi River's Present Flood Barriers Declared to Be Worthless.

Memphis, Tenn., June 23.—A convention of land owners from the western counties of Tennessee and Kentucky was held in this city today, in which resolutions were adopted against the present levee system on the Mississippi river, and at which a committee of five was named to go before the Mississippi river commission at its annual meeting in St. Louis, and enter a protest against the levee system in toto. Farmers, who say they represent more than 1,000,000 acres of land in Kentucky and Tennessee, claim they have suffered great damages from the overflows of the recent years because of the building of the levees on the Arkansas side of the Mississippi.

Farmers' Institute at Madill.

Prof. J. H. Connell, president of the Texas Farmers' Institute, assisted by an able corps of lecturers will hold an institute in Madill, I. T., the 30th and 31st of July. Madill is in the heart of a fine agricultural belt and surrounded by a class of farmers that will appreciate the advantage of having a scientific school taught in their home town. The Madill commercial club will take the matter of advertising the institute in hand.

FARM NOTES.

Diversified husbandry nearly always pays best.

Try to make every acre produce something.

A good constitution is one of the prime points in breeding animals. If an animal gets off its feed, the best thing to do is to try a change.

Weeds are the bane of good farming, and are the precursor of poor crops.

True economy in farming is a wise use of every resource.

Sheep greatly improve the land when too many are not kept on the acre.

A deep soil, the deeper the better, should be selected for the orchard.

A growing pig should be fed so as to never be in the least stunted.

Breeding from immature stock has a tendency to generate the offspring.

Excessive growth is not favorable to early maturity in any class of stock.

The work horses should not be allowed to pass the night with the accumulation of the day's sweat and dirt upon them.

Dry sawdust makes a good bed for the horses during the summer, and is a good absorbent for the liquid manure.

Be ready to cut the clover as soon as the larger portions of the plant are in bloom.

Strain the milk as soon as it comes in. A few minutes means hours of waiting for the rising of the cream.

A salt brine forms a sort of enclosure around each globule of butter without breaking it.

Even when growing corn just for fodder, it is best to plant the rows far enough apart so that the cultivator may be used.

The simple fact that stock is out of condition physically does not always demand a course of nostrums and medicines.

A heifer that is to be used for the dairy should be handled and made accustomed to all necessary manipulations from the start.

To profit by mistake is the beginning of all systematic farming. To learn from the experience of others is an aid in culture and improvement.

Before hot weather comes see that plenty of shade is provided for the stock. An old shed will be found to be a very profitable investment to protect them from the sun's hot rays.

One mischievous, tricky cow will soon spoil all of her companions. Such an animal is apt to transmit her bad habits to her offspring, and it is not always safe to rear her calves.

In transplanting plants it is not always safe to run a knife around the pot. The better plan is to invert the pot and rap sharply on the bottom, when the plant will fall out in your hand.

Clean the boxes and mangers well before putting fresh feed in them. When a horse does not eat all that is given him what is left should not be allowed to remain in the box, as it is sure to sour.

In managing clover for hay, while it is important to cure well, it should not be allowed to become too dry, as it is apt to become brittle.

The mare that is sucking a colt is doing double duty, and should not be expected to do as much labor as the other horses.

To improve the quality of the dairy herd select bulls from the best milkers. The milking qualities of a cow depend more upon those of a sire than upon those of her own.

An egg beaten up well and fed in milk to calves night and morning for a day or two will usually cure scours. A table spoonful of lime water added to it for a week will also help the cure.

As a rule a good appetite indicates good health. It is no disadvantage for an animal to be a hearty eater. Such animals produce proportionately to the amount consumed. The food is simply the material to be converted into produce.

Even for market the moderately fat animal is the most profitable. Every excessively fat animal has been fed at a loss during the latter part of the feeding. When an animal is ready for market sell it. There is nothing to be gained by feeding it longer.

In buying cattle to feed, if the flesh and skin are hard and inelastic to the touch, look out for a hard feeder. An animal that is hard to fatten is slow in maturing. While the flank is of little value in itself, an animal with a long, deep flank will be a good feeder, with thick flesh and a good constitution.

A good depth in the girth is a good thing, but if a horse is wide in the chest he is generally not so deep in the girth as if narrower. A wide chested horse is stronger than a narrow one, though he may not look so deep in the girth. Always measure a horse's depth or girth with a view to his width of chest.

Cows should be milked with regularity. With those that milk largely it is painful when the udder is filled to its utmost capacity and the milker is not on hand to relieve them, and as a consequence they become nervous and restless. This causes a cow to dry up prematurely, because nature rebels. Cows should be milked dry at each milking, otherwise they will dry prematurely.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

President Issues Orders for Thorough Investigation in Allotment Frauds.

Washington, D. C., June 23.—The president has ordered a thorough investigation of affairs of the Kiowa and Comanche Indian reservation in Oklahoma and has appointed Francis E. Leupp of this city to make investigation. The investigation is based on a charge made by certain Kiowa Indians, including Delos K. Lone Wolf, a Kiowa, living at Hobart, that of 2,759 allotments made to persons purporting to belong to the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache tribes, under the act of June 6, 1900, hundreds of allotments were illegal and more allotments were made than were Indians. Philip Soper, United States attorney for the Northern district of Indian Territory, Colonel Randall, Indian agent at Anadarko, Sterrett, Washington correspondent Dall-a-Galveston News were subpoenaed to appear before the interior department.

The Hill allotment will receive the first attention from Mr. Leupp. The department has been gathering evidence for months on the charges preferred by Indians, and one brief shows that some Oklahoma officials at Guthrie and Oklahoma City hold allotments under Indian names.
