LIVES OF MEN AT STAKE

Where Capital Purchases Ignorance and Under Throat Performs
Deeds of Most Diabolical Nature.

Boise, Idaho, May 14.—Whether William D. Haywood and his alleged fellow conspirators will be acquitted or hanged by the neck until dead depends to a considerable extent upon an illiterate miner and farmer named Stevens Adams.

Under the Idaho law, the confession of a co-conspirator, such as Harry Orchard, is not sufficient to convict unless corroborated by the evidence of others. Adams, a former member of the Western Federation of Miners, made a confession in which he corroborated the statements of Orchard, but later denied its truth, declaring that it was secured by means of threats made by Detective McPartland, Governor Gooding and others. What weight the affidavit of Adams will have with a jury under such circumstances is an interesting subject of discussion in Boise. It is the crucial point on which the prosecution rests, with life or death hanging in the balance for the accused labor leaders.

Steve Adams was arrested on his farm in Oregon, shortly after the kidnapping of Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone, and brought to Boise. Despite the fact that no charge had been filed against him, he was lodged in the state penitentiary, to be held as a witness against the Federation officers. Shortly afterward Detective McPartland announced that Adams had made a confession corroborating that of Orchard, and incidentally admitting other crimes, including the murder of two claim jumpers in Northern Idaho. During the time that Adams was kept in the prison his wife was with him, being kept in communication against her will, she now declares.

During his stay in the penitentiary, Adams was deprived of nothing but liberty. The "best families" of Boise visited him in his cell and dined with him in his kitchen's corner. Although a confessed assassin, he became a social hero and was praised inordinately as one who had dared defy the terrible powers of the "inner circle" of federation assassins. Adams occupied a cell with Harry Orchard for a considerable time, and that bloody partnership shared in the popular adulation. Governor Gooding was a frequent visitor and is known to have had several long interviews with Adams.

The confession of Adams was made in February, 1906. In September of that year he was visited by an uncle, in disguise, who secured his liberty through habeas corpus proceedings. Once outside the grim walls of the Idaho prison, Adams at once denied the statements made in his confession. In an affidavit he declared that he had been coerced by Detective McPartland into signing a document, and that he had no knowledge of its contents. The affidavit was of a sensational nature and accused Governor Gooding of backing up McPartland in his threats of death unless he adhered to the confession. Adams also asserted that while confined in a cell with Harry Orchard, the latter had admitted that he was to receive a "piece of son" for implicating Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone in the murder of Steinberg, and that he was to be allowed to escape and make "a get away across the pond."

The reputation of his confession by Adams caused great consternation in the ranks of the prosecution. The document secured by McPartland was the trump card of the attorneys for the state. With it, the conviction of the labor leaders was almost a certainty. Without it, the threat attributed to the prosecutors, that Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone would never leave Idaho alive, was only so much wind. Adams was immediately re-arrested, charged with the murder of Fred Tyler, a claim jumper in Shoshone county. At the trial, which was held in Wallace early this year, the jury disagreed, seven voting for acquittal and five for conviction.

Clarence Darrow, leading attorney for the defense in the present case, defended Adams declaring that the accused man was only a pawn in the prosecution of the labor leaders held by the state authorities, but it is generally believed that the prosecution will be dropped when the Haywood case is ended.

Whether the Adams confession was the truth, as claimed by the prosecution or a mess of lies "cooked up" by the versatile McPartland, as Adams now declares, is a question of great importance in the trial of the labor leaders. That the original confession which is couched in good language, was at least "doctored" to a considerable extent is made evident by the fact that Adams is illiterate and uneducated.

If any one has any doubt as to the virtue of Foley's Kidney Cure, they need only refer to Mr. Alvin H. Stimpson of Willimantic, Conn., who, after almost losing hope of recovery, on account of the failure of so many remedies, finally tried Foley's Kidney Cure, which he says was "just the thing" for him, as four bottles cured him completely. He is now entirely well and free from all the suffering incident to acute kidney trouble. Hoffman Drug Co., and City Drug Store.

WEARS A WONDERFUL GEM.

Chinese Mandarin and His Daughter the Sensation of New York.

New York, May 13.—Probably no jewel ever seen hereabout has aroused so much comment as one worn in the cap of Kang Yu Wei, former adviser of the Emperor of China. With his beautiful daughter, Kan Yu Wei was a guest at a recent peace dinner in the Waldorf. His gorgeous robes, proclaiming him a mandarin of the highest class, the peacock embroidered on his mantle of turquoise blue, the curious jewels his daughter wore were as nothing to the jewel which flashed and flashed in the front of his blue skull cap, with the pearl button at its top.

In contrast with other Chinese women, wives of dimitaries, who have been seen in public in this section of the country, like the wife of Wu Ting Fang, the daughter of Kang Yu Wei had put off her Chinese robes and wore a beautiful gown of blue, which was just as Parisian as was her own French. The guests paid little attention to anything other than the Chinese visitor until the speaking began. Kang Yu Wei is the grand president of the Chinese Empire Constitutional Association, and is at present touring the world in the interests of the Emperor. He has advanced ideas, and is allied with the reform movement, without, however, arousing the hostility of the Dowager Empress.

D. P. C. Chen, the mandarin's private physician, and C. S. Linn, his secretary, who is a graduate of Harvard, were asked what was the history of the wonderful jewel. Linn said that there are only nine perfect stones of the sort in the world, and that the one which adorned the blue cap of Kang Yu Wei had been in his family for six centuries, and was esteemed by him as his most valuable possession.

First Sulphur Editor.

Ardmoreite Special.
Sulphur, I. T., May 14.—Octogenarian William Covington of this city, edited and published the first newspaper in this town. The sheet bore the suggestive name of Sulphur Herald. Captain Covington got his military title while officiating as chief boss on several Tennessee steamboats. He has been publishing about nine different papers, all intensely democratic. He was a personal friend of Senator J. J. Ingalls. Mr. Covington says that he put about $5,000 into politics and never got back a dollar. Grover Cleveland, however, made him postmaster at Lehigh, E. T., and McKinley let him remain in office two years.

My Best Friend.

Alexander Benton, who lives on Rural Route 1, Fort Edward, N. Y., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is my best friend. It cured me of asthma six years ago. It has also performed a wonderful cure of inept consumption for my son's wife. The first bottle ended the terrible cough, and this accomplished, the other symptoms left one by one, until she was perfectly well. Dr. King's New Discovery's power over coughs and colds is simply marvelous. No other remedy has ever equaled it. Fully guaranteed by W. R. Frame, druggist, and the City Drug Store, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free."

It is impossible to love a man for the enemies he has made if you are on the list.

For a cold or cough take Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup. It contains no opiates and gently moves the bowels, thereby driving the cold entirely from the system. Conforms to the National Pure Food and Drug Law. Sold by Hoffman Drug Co.

AMONG SECRET SOCIETIES

Fraternism is Afloat Today All Over the Country in a Variety of Secret Organizations—Eagles, Elks, Oddfellows, Woodmen, Etc.

Ardmoreite Special.
Norfolk, Va., May 14.—What will undoubtedly be the most largely attended meeting in the history of the Virginia grand lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows was inaugurated today on the grounds of the Jamestown exposition. The convention will last until Friday, which has been set apart as Odd Fellows day by the exposition management.

Ardmoreite Special.
Decatur, Ala., May 14.—The matter of the location of the $100,000 Odd Fellows' home for widows and orphans to be erected by the Alabama members of the order, is the principal matter to be considered at the annual convention of the state grand lodge, which opened here today. A special committee appointed for that purpose, has visited Cullman, Edwardsville, Albertsville and Florence, each town having made offers of money and land to secure the home, but no recommendation will be offered by the committee other than statements as to the advantages offered by each place. The grand lodge meeting has attracted hundreds of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs from all over the state. The program of the opening session includes addresses of welcome by Mayor Henry A. Skaggs, Jr., of Decatur, and Mayor Samuel Blackwell of New Decatur, on behalf of the city, and the Rev. George L. Jenkins for the local Odd Fellows.

Ardmoreite Special.
Iola, Kan., May 14.—Several hundred Eagles are congregated in Iola today for the opening session of the state lodge, and it is expected that the total attendance during the three days will reach 1,000. The initial sessions will be devoted to the appointment of committees for the state lodge and the transaction of other business, which will extend through tomorrow. Thursday will be devoted to entertainment, including a trip over the city and to the oil and gas fields and smelters in the vicinity. The Eagles now have sixty-one lodges in Kansas and nearly all have sent delegates to the meeting while from the larger cities scores of visitors are here.

Ardmoreite Special.
Emporia, Kan., May 14.—The first annual convention of the Kansas herd of Elks began here today, with nearly all the twenty-three lodges of the state represented by large delegations. The Kansas branch was organized at a meeting held in Wichita last year. The convention will last through tomorrow.

Ardmoreite Special.
Springfield, Mo., May 14.—The Thirtieth Pythian district meeting in this city today has attracted hundreds of members of the Knights of Pythias from all over southern Missouri. Many important business matters are up for consideration, and the encampment will close with a contest in the rank of page.

Ardmoreite Special.
El Paso, Texas, May 14.—The Texas state council of the Knights of Columbus began its fourth annual session in El Paso today and will extend through tomorrow. The local council has prepared an elaborate entertainment program and the meeting promises to be a huge success. The officers of the council include H. J. Blaeney of Dallas, deputy; the Rev. Joseph Lynch of Dallas, chaplain, and T. P. Fenech of Fort Worth, secretary.

Ardmoreite Special.
Norfolk, Va., May 14.—The sovereign camp of the Woodmen of the World convened here today, with thousands of delegates, representing every state and territory of the nation, in attendance. Headquarters for the visitors have been established at the inside inn on the exposition grounds and the business session will be held in the convention hall. The sovereign camp meeting will have under consideration, during the ten days or more of the session, many matters pertaining to the progress and improvement of the order, including the proposed amendment of several laws and the election of officers. The present sovereign officials will likely be retained.

Reports of the transactions of the John T. Yates of Omaha, Neb., set last two years were presented by John T. Yates of Omaha, Neb., sovereign clerk of the order, and show great progress, the gain in membership since the last session in 1905 being 93,468.

The Woodmen Circle, a woman's auxiliary of the Woodmen of the World, will also hold its biennial convention here during the week. Next meeting of the sovereign camp in 1909 will probably go to the west and several cities are contesting for the honor, with Topeka apparently having the best chance of success.
