Exclusiveness—that characteristic which distinguishes our stocks—is a quality which places the article possessing it beyond the possibility of counterfeit.

We sell the famous lines of silverware that are manufactured by GORHAM, TOWLE, and REED & BARTON, having this individuality not found in ordinary lines.

VICTORY FOR MERCHANTS

NEW SCHEDULE ON ROCK ISLAND GIVES SHOPPERS ONE HOUR LONGER IN THE CITY

The fight made by Secretary Spaulding of the commercial club for another hour on the Rock Island has ended successfully for the town. This road recently announced that its schedule on the line from here to McAlester would be changed so the train would arrive here at 12:15 and depart at 2:15 in the afternoon. Out of town people who came here to do their trading, would be given two hours in the city before their train left. Mr. Spaulding was of the opinion that this was not a sufficient length of time and he began work asking three hours. His efforts have been rewarded. Today he received a communication from W. S. Tinsman, manager of the Choctaw and Southern division of the Rock Island, stating that the schedule would be changed next Sunday and that the passenger train would arrive at 12:15 and would depart at 3:15 in the afternoon. The schedule as arranged will be of much greater benefit to Ardmore than the former schedule announced.

Stump Ashby will speak at the court house tonight at 8 o'clock.

PICKUPS HERE AND THERE.

Dr. J. F. Young has returned from a visit to Dallas. He says the Fair is the greatest ever and was almost as interesting as that grandson he has in Dallas.

Chas. D. Carter will arrive from his trip through Indiana Friday before the election. He will make one or two speeches in Carter county and will close the campaign here the night before the election. The local democrats are planning to have Lee Cruise and Charly Carter speak in Ardmore on the night of the 2nd.

A special Santa Fe train bearing President Kipley of the Santa Fe and other officers of the company passed through here this afternoon. The train was on an inspecting tour and was traveling toward the south.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Barriek are here from Bartlesville visiting with Capt. and Mrs. W. C. Kendall. They will leave their son here in St. Agnes' Academy. Mr. Barriek said he lived in the portion of the country where the Prairie Oil & Gas company was operating and that before Gov. Haskell took the action that has been so bitterly criticised his town was full of idle men. Now the oil company is employing hundreds of hands, and there are no idle men and laborers are receiving $2.25 a day.

The Ardmore Electric Light and Power company began yesterday to pump the water for the city with electric power. The plant is working well so far and no trouble of any kind is expected. Chief Slaughter is pleased with the pumping arrangements for the reason that the pressure will be greater.

W. A. Shelton, pastor of the Carter Avenue Methodist church, who has been attending Gail College at New Haven, Conn., has written to his friend here, Alvin Page, that he will arrive in New York tomorrow and will sail for Galveston. From Galveston he will come here and is expected to arrive in Ardmore next Saturday or Sunday week. Rev. Mr. Shelton has many friends here who will be pleased to know that he will return here.

Local cotton opened this morning at 8.85 and during the morning hours the price dropped to 8.75. Not many bales were offered for sale. The creeks are up, the roads are muddy and it will be some days before the usual amount of cotton is on the streets.

Nell Carter who was placed in jail here yesterday, waived examining trial today and Judge Winfrey placed his bond at $2,500. Several of Mr. Carter's friends had signed the bond up to press hour this afternoon and in all probability he will be released from custody before morning.

Judge R. E. Roberts is in the city and is preparing to locate here. Mr. Roberts is a Kentuckian and about 18 months ago moved from his native state to Ryan. He will form a partnership here with W. F. Davis in the practice of law.

The Man Behind the Plow.
"I've heard a heap o' noises, An' a lot o' braggin', too, Bout our heroes past and present What they've done for me an you.
Bout George Washington and Lincoln,
An' of slavery such a row,
But the hero of the nation Is the man behind the plow."

Where would Holmes get his taters Where would Dewey get his bread, If us heroes didn't hustle Every mornin' out o' bed?
Would they git their cake an' gim-cracks?
If they would, just tell us how,
If us heroes didn't truckle Every day behind the plow.

Even Roosevelt would suffer An' the government would be Just a blame sight lean and lankier Than a feller'd want to see.
I don't believe in belin' jealous, But I'll tell you this right now That the hero of the nation
Is the man behind the plow.

—Ex.

Did you ever run across a bunch of girls who were madly and wildly enthusiastic over a matinee idol?
We ran across two the other day, and they raved, they pursued, and they jabbered and they giggled at the mere mention of the magic name. They meant nothing. It's a stage in a girl's life through which they all have to pass—just the same as the army enlistment in the boys' life. They are both dangerous, but keep a sharp eye on them and they will pull through however the pretecting arm of Uncle Sam might prove more satisfactory to the fond parent than that of the theatrical star.

This little incident leads one to think of the evolution of a girl's ideal and the contrasting steps from sixteen to twenty-three. After dolls are laid aside and mud pies attract no longer and hair comes up and dresses go down, then the evolution begins. Did you ever know a girl after she had gone through the Laura Jean Libbey, the Bertha Clay stage and after she had seen actresses with a superfluity of paste diamonds, who didn't want to stand at the top of a broad staircase in a black velvet evening gown with a diamond tiara. That's stage one.
Then she wants to be a nurse.
She doesn't want to assist in operations, she doesn't care particularly about the amputations, and she isn't especially keen about being up all night with a delirious patient. Oh, dear, no. She wants to pull down the shades and read to a good looking male patient who spends most of the time making love to her. She wants to visit with the doctors and enter into a matrimonial alliance.
That's stage two.

Then she goes wild over fraternties and matinee actors and football players and her chief topic of conversation is "Isn't he perfectly lovely," and isn't he dear in that "Merry Widow"—but "I shall never marry any but a tall man with stunning blue eyes." And—well she covers a little dark complected man with black eyes and hair who doesn't belong to a fraternity, and never dreamed of being a doctor, and the mere mention of an actor's life is something foreign. No she married none of these. She laid all those frivolities aside, and willingly—so willingly—she settled down and married the man "behind the plow." That's the last stage in her strange eventful history —best of all the game.

The members of the Christian Aid Society will have a market tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at Coleman Bros. drug store. They will have on sale all kinds of good things for a Sunday dinner.

Mrs. J. E. Humphreys returned last evening from an extended visit with relatives and friends in the north and east.

Mrs. Roy G. Bradford of Galveston who is here visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stuart, is quite sick this week. This is much regretted by her many friends with whom she was reared and was a social favorite. Mr.
Bradford is expected today.

Jane Howard Latimer says in a recent magazine article that one reason men accomplish more in a business way than women is because they do not waste any time because of lack of system. Women waste time and rack their nerves on non-essentials, caused often by lack of system. She wants to know how many women know the amount of money earned each year by the husband that goes to the buying of food and how much goes to buying clothes. Keep wisely and spend judiciously the money that means so much in the earning in many cases.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions of the Interrior, W. B. M. I., will be held in the First Congregational church on Delmar avenue, St. Louis, October 27-30. The delegates to the meeting will come from the states between Missouri and Ohio and a large delegation is expected. Several missionaries will make report of work done in foreign lands.

American Labor Federation, Denver, Colo., Oct. 21.—One of the most important conventions of the year will be held in Denver, beginning November 9, when the American Federation of Labor will hold its annual session. The session will doubtless be of greatest interest, since it will follow the national election, and the result of the Gompers declaration in favor of Bryan will be apparent. The coming election is looked upon as a crucial test of the political influence of organized labor. If the results of the federation's venture into politics should not be satisfactory to the rank and file of the members, an attempt may be made at the convention next month to return to the old policy of abstention from participation in political activity.
The Socialist delegates will probably make an attempt to oust President Gompers from the position of executive head of the federation.
