INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT IN SOUTH ENCOURAGING BUSINESS CONDITIONS

The Tradesman this week says October rolled up a new record for the hardware trade in the south, exceeding the expectations of the most experienced dealers. Business was unusually good all through the month and what was equally as interesting, collections were also unusually good.

Alone at the close of the month jobbers began to feel slightly the effects of short cotton crops in certain districts, but this is so slight as to amount to little. The high price of the staple has made good the shortage in strictly cotton neighborhoods and the general improvement in other lines of trade has helped to even matters in sections not affected by the cotton crop.

The feature of the hardware trade this week is the beginning of the holiday movement, which is materially felt in the larger jobbing centers; specialties and articles incident to the holiday trade have moved at a lively gait. Retailers have had a pleasant experience thus far and are ordering as if they were fully confident of the closing months of the year. Caution on the part of manufacturers has prevented the jobbers securing large stocks and some have been inconvenienced by delay in shipments, but this caution promises to be a blessing for the coming spring season and preliminary preparations indicate that the manufacturer sees no storm clouds ahead for the business. The average dealer professes now to see in the next year a building boom for the entire country and they are making preparations accordingly. Prices have remained pretty steady for the past month and few advances are anticipated.

Lumber.
Save for the car shortage that has existed in numerous points the past month, October closed with few unpleasant features for the lumbermen of the south. In the pine sections business has been unusually good and the month witnessed the heaviest movement of the year. Railroads are still buying liberally and car manufacturers are actively in the market, indicating that there will be no shortage of demand for some months. The building season in the north is nearing a close but manufacturing consumers are making good what is lost in yard trade. In the south, building operations appear active and earnest as at any time this year.

In the hardwood sections operators are well pleased with their lot, although in some sections timber is getting scarce and the harvest season has curtailed stumpage operations materially. Logs are very scarce in many mill centers but country mills are making their maximum cut. Prices in hardwoods are gradually climbing, both for choice dimensions and for common stock. Poplar, quartered oak, cherry, and chestnut have brought record prices this week and the tone of the market is excellent.

Iron and Coal.
Southern pig iron manufacturers are holding pig iron steady at $15 per ton. Reports have been current recently that some concessions have been made on this price, but a canvass of the various offices either in person or by other means of inquiry elicits but little information in this score. The $15 per ton rate appears to be a level that has been reached and will be maintained for awhile at least. While some mention has been made that foreign iron has been landed in the east, there is no apprehension that this fact is going to disturb the future conditions. It may have the effect of keeping down the quotations for awhile. The manufacturers of pig iron in the Southern territory have repeatedly announced opposition to a runaway market any way and therefore at the $15 per ton price a large quantity of iron is going to be sold. Orders are now being taken for iron with delivery into the first half of the coming year, beyond the first quarter. The probable make for the last two months of this year and the first three months of next year has been nicely covered. The make is going to be held up in this territory. The production for October went above 150,000 tons in Alabama with a corresponding increase in the output in the other southern states. The blowing in of the Chattanooga furnace of the Southern Iron and Steel company was one of the features of the Southern iron market for the latter part of the past month.

statement is made that southern manufacturers of both commodities are feeling the effect of a pronounced improved condition. Basic iron in large quantities has been sold recently, while charcoal iron will be shipped to northern markets in the near future. The railroads of the north have been making an inquiry as to southern charcoal iron. The price of this commodity is going up some $22 to be the level ere long. These car wheel wicks are melting a large quantity of iron, the charcoal product being their supply. There are not many charcoal furnaces in the south but what there are are doing a ready demand for the goods.

Cast iron pipe and foundries and machine shops interests throughout the entire south appear to have a good line of orders in hand and which will, with them will be holding for some time to come. This active activity at the furnaces.

The raw material supplies for iron-making are holding reasonably, the only interest therein being the least apprehension being felt and this is resulting some concessions.
