Oil Blaze Kills Three.

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 25.—Mrs. Jos. E. Scezda, and a son and daughter, 4 and 6 years old, were burned to death, and Scezda was seriously scorched today in a fire which started from blazing linseed oil which fell on the children's clothing, and the mother was burned trying to extinguish the flames.

Four firemen were slightly injured. The house was destroyed.

Finds Big Buffalo Herd.

A herd of five hundred buffalo has been discovered in the northeastern part of Alberta, Canada, by A. J. Bell, who has recently returned to Edmonton from that district. Mr. Bell who has charge of the northern Indian agencies, has proposed to the Dominion government that it protect these rare animals by building a fence on the peninsula between the Peace and Great Slave rivers. This fence, he figures, would be 163 miles long, and would cost more than $100,000.

Speaking of the herd, he says: "The buffalo have every mark of resemblance to the bison of the plains, but constant living in the heavy timbered country has made them much wilder. Now they are almost unapproachable. As these animals are protected, no killing being permitted, there should be a large increase in their numbers."

Tegeler at Pawhuska.

Pawhuska, Okla., Oct. 25.—The stock tale of the discharged convict who goes back to crime because he cannot get honest work does not apply to Rudolph Tegeler of Oklahoma City, who is soon to be tried the fourth time for the murder of James Meadows, a telephone man, three seven years ago. The case is one of the most celebrated in Oklahoma's criminal history.

Tegeler is an electrician and is here now installing new generators in the city's power plant. He was given a life sentence at his second trial and was in the penitentiary some months before a new trial was granted. While there he took charge of the penitentiary's electrical machinery with such efficiency that when he was let out on bond he was hired back at $125 per month at the same job he had while a convict, and has quit that job for a better one with the Kennedy Contracting company.
