

THE CORRALLED CHEYENNES.

THEY EXPERIENCE THE DISCOMFORTS OF DEFEAT.

A Terrible Storm Visits the Camp, and Victors and Vanquished Suffer Alike—Hunger Attacks the Party and There is Trouble All Around—News From the Brave Seventh Cavalry.

A letter from THE TRIBUNE's correspondent with the Seventh Cavalry, under date of October 27th, reports the regiment camped on Ash Creek, Nebraska, and the men plodding around in four inches of snow with their summer clothes. The writer describes the clothes as worn out and the men suffering severely. The night before, twenty-two men in Lieut. Wallace's company of thirty-three were frost bitten, principally in the feet. Lieut. Edgerly's company reported four victims, and so on, the writer supposes, throughout the regiment. These unfortunate men have few blankets, fewer stockings, and no suitable tents. The soldiers bear their hardships cheerfully, and only anticipate a continuance of what they have gone through. THE TRIBUNE correspondent gives an account of the capture of the 160 Cheyennes and their chief Dull Knife. They first surrendered without much ceremony to Capt. Johnson, of the Third Cavalry. The captives were all corralled in Chadron Creek bottom, to protect them from the blinding snow storm then prevailing. After passing the night on this bottom and receiving rations from the troops, because they were starving, they suddenly changed their minds and refused to go farther with their captors. They said they would die before they would go to Camp Robinson, whither Johnson was bound. They wanted to join Red Cloud. While the officers were parleying over this change of heart, the squaws busied themselves making rifle pits. The lay of the land, the trees and heavy underbrush afforded such good protection that it appeared impossible to rout the braves without bomb shells, or a great loss of life. Word reached Lieut. Edgerly and Lieut. Wallace, commanding companies of the Seventh Cavalry, that there was fun ahead on Chadron bottom. They pushed forward to the scene. During the night of the 26th, Lieut. Garlington, with a detachment of the Seventh, arrived with a mountain howitzer. Soon after, a company of the Third Cavalry with a number twelve Napoleon gun came up. The Indians heard of all these arrivals, and began to think seriously of their fate. It looked as if the heat of hell was in store for them, and after revolving the matter over in their benighted intellects for a few hours, they concluded to cave, and cave they did. The Indians were remarkably well defended by their pits, trees and weeds. The soldiers had dug pits and were well protected. The Indians are now prisoners at Camp Robinson. THE BISMARCK WAYS.

President Emmons on the Prospects and Possibilities.

James A. Emmons, President of the Marine Ways and Dock Company, can read interviewing about as well as any other man in town. He lives in Gilded Age, however, and rolls forth his ideas in golden periods. He is a man, who dwells upon the golden hills, bathes in golden streams and drives in a golden chariot through fields of golden grain. It may be all flat gold for aught THE TRIBUNE knows.

"What about the new dock and ways, James?" asked a TRIBUNE reporter of him.

"They will be completed sure pop and have a capacity for docking at least six steamboats. Our general manager, Capt. Braithwaite, is a worker."

"What effect will this new departure have on our business interests?"

"There are but few men, who appreciate or correctly estimate the effect. I confess I cannot. It means millions though to our town, the Northern Pacific and our steamboat lines. The Steamer McCleod has just arrived from Benton, leaving there in the middle of October. The McCleod, Benton and Key West will repair on our ways and be ready to leave for the golden mountains forty days earlier in the spring than ever before. It has virtually settled the question of Montana, Idaho and northwestern freights if the Northern Pacific does its whole duty."

"You have always had big ideas of the prospective mineral development on the upper Missouri, have you not?"

"Yes sir! Dakota and Montana mountains are chuck full of gold, silver, copper, tin and coal. That country is the caphor of America as far as valuable minerals are concerned."

"To come back to steamboats, do you intend to do anything besides repairing boats?"

"Yes sir. I have mapped out something like this: I shall try and induce our company to double the capacity of the ways next year. We will grade three hundred more feet and then have six hundred feet river front. The extra room I intend for a ship yard, which we will lease to a construction company that will build steamboats. The timber will come from the vast forests of oak and pine along the line of the Northern Pacific and in the valley of the Missouri. It has cost more to bring steamboats from Pittsburgh than it would cost to build them at our wharf. We can build the steamers here and ship the engines, boilers and tackle at a great saving to boat owners."

"Bismarck in the next twenty years," said Mr. Emmons, "will become the largest town on the Missouri. No other city on the river has the natural advantages that Bismarck has. Her river front will soon be lined with stock yards, ship yards, foundries, saw mills, smelting works and grain elevators. The opening up of the Upper Missouri River country and the Yellowstone region make all these things necessary." "I was," concluded Mr. Emmons, "the originator of the steam ferry idea years ago. People didn't believe in it."

pay, but it has been a bonanza for the owners." Vote for Bartlett Tripp for delegate.

Horton County Politics.

A mass convention of the citizens of Horton county was held at the store of Capt. Wm. Harmon, Saturday evening, Oct. 27, Mr. M. B. Doyle in the chair. Mr. T. J. Mitchell was elected permanent chairman, and made a brief speech of acceptance. The convention went right to business. Mr. P. M. Eckford was elected secretary, and the following county ticket nominated: County Commissioners, F. F. Gerard, Joseph Cady and Chris. Nolan; Register of Deeds, M. B. Doyle; Sheriff, J. M. Ayers; Assessor, Carlos Mann; Treasurer, P. M. Eckford; County Surveyor, Charles H. Green; Superintendent of Public Schools, William Cannon; Probate Judge, John L. Mann; Coroner, Fred Helbringer; Justices of the Peace, C. H. Mitchell, Joseph Richardson, T. J. Mitchell; Constables, Michael Barrett, H. A. Fox, Henry Sherman and Mike Cadie.

For the Legislative Council F. J. Mitchell was nominated and Jeremiah Duane for the House.

After adjourning, Capt. Harmon addressed the convention on the subject of county indebtedness, and a resolution of thanks to the county board was passed; also one endorsing the action of the board in locating the county seat at Lincoln City. The following County Central Committee were appointed: William Harmon, chairman; F. F. Gerard, secretary; W. B. Doyle, J. M. Ayers, and T. J. Mitchell. Vote for Bartlett Tripp for delegate.

From the Frontier.

A letter from a TRIBUNE Correspondent at the mouth of Squaw Creek, emptying into the Yellowstone, ten miles below Glendive, reports a new colony of frontiersmen, flourishing and happy. Calamity William has built a store and dwelling that is a credit to any frontier town. The new telegraph line is reported as running directly through the colony. The country is full of buffalo, elk, deer, bear, mountain sheep and millions of birds. The lakes are black with ducks. The prairie fires destroyed thousands of acres of fine timber, only the heavy fall of rain, hail and snow put the fires out. The valley cannot be surpassed for stock-raising. Potatoes yielded four hundred bushels to the acre the past season. Watermelons as big as Indiana pumpkins were raised.

A party of 100 Indians passed north with plenty of stock. Vote for Bartlett Tripp for delegate.

In a nutshell.

[Deadwood Enterprise.] The Republican party created a vast national debt and caused hard times. Radical office holders, for a long time, had high carnival off the people's money, but the people becoming incensed are speaking in thunder-tones throughout the length and breadth of the land, for reform and trenchment. Their voice is being heard in State after State, and county after county. The Democracy is giving the relief which an outraged people seeks. Vote for Bartlett Tripp for delegate.

Go For 'Em, Old Man!

[Roscoe Express.] To any man who will prove that we ever received one cent from Bartlett Tripp or any of his friends for supporting him in this campaign, or that we have been promised any money for said support we will give a clear title and interest in the Roscoe Express. Now, gentlemen, go to work; hunt up the evidence and get your reward. We are ready to step down and out whenever you furnish the proof. Vote for Bartlett Tripp for delegate.
