TO ADVERTISERS! The DAILY TRIBUNE circulates in every town within one hundred miles of Bismarck reached by a daily mail, and is by far the best advertising medium in this part of the Northwest.

MONTANA MINING INTERESTS.

In the summer of 1874 Helena and other settled portions of Montana sent little bands of miners into the spurs of the main belt of the Rocky mountains, known as the Judith, and Moccasin and Snowy ranges.

The democratic central committee of Burleigh county in their anxiety to complement a townsman appear to have been entirely too previous in their nomination of a candidate for the territorial council.

BURLEIGH county will make a mistake if the republicans do not take advantage of the disaffection existing in the democratic ranks to nominate a strong ticket—a ticket that can be elected—one that will be elected.

DAKOTA products are astonishing the world. At the state fair in Toledo, Ohio, were some fine specimens and the Bee says: "The expected exhibit of products of the rich farming lands of Dakota, arrived yesterday and to-day, and were arranged in the cereal department, where the display is even better than was hoped."

THE tax-payers association has placed in nomination a candidate for county officers, as noted elsewhere. Their ticket appears to be a combination of excellent their grip on the municipal and county government. If Bismarck keeps such men as J. W. Raymond, C. A. Lounsberry, Alex. McKenzie, C. H. Williams, M. H. Jewell, James A. Emmons, Col. Thompson, Farmer Wallace, E. H. Bly, J. A. Rea and Geo. P. Flannery and others who might be mentioned, to the front, there need be no limit to her future possibilities.

THE enterprise of the North Pacific in sending a couple of carloads of the products of Burleigh county and other sections through which the road passes through the middle states and New England, is beginning to bear substantial fruit.

THE tax-payers association has placed in nomination a candidate for county officers, as noted elsewhere. Their ticket appears to be a combination of excellent elements, and has in its make-up a wonderful degree of strength. It combines the Scandinavian and German elements without antagonizing the sons of Erin, and commends itself to the independents who care more for good men in office than for party supremacy.

RANSOM county has harmonized its differences and presents a solid republican front for the legislative, judicial and county ticket. There is no evidence of disaffection in Barnes county on anything but the county ticket.

COL. JAMES E. WHITE, superintendent of the Sixth division of the railway mail service of Chicago, and Chief Head Clerk Bean, of the U. S. mail department, St. Paul, came down the North Pacific road to Oriska yesterday on an inspection tour.

COL. P. DONAN, the brilliant writer, warm hearted friend and genial gentleman who has so long held the position of managing editor of the Fargo Argus, has retired from journalism and gone into the real estate business.

THE registry law which has been regarded so essential by many of the good people of Burleigh county is more than likely to prove a dead letter. Yesterday was the day appointed for the board of registration to meet, prepare lists of voters and post them.

THE surveys of the Manitoba railway have completed the line connecting the Casselton branch to Mayville with the Breckenridge division at Everest, in Cass county.

JUDGE BROOKINGS will make a thorough canvass of North Dakota, and will doubtless try to make his democratic friends believe that he will carry everything before him in the south.

THE political crop at Glendive must be good. The Press of that city contains a column of announcements from different parties who are anxious to become targets for the voters of Dawson county at the coming election.

IT is to be hoped the republicans of Burleigh county will not permit the primaries to go by default next Saturday. Every precinct should be fairly represented and let a ticket be nominated that will be a credit to the county in every sense—that even if defeated will reflect honor on the convention placing it in nomination.

ONE of the best weekly papers for farmers is the Farmer's Union and Weekly Tribune, published at Minneapolis, Minn. Next to the Bismarck Weekly TRIBUNE the Farmers Union should be read by Dakota farmers.

DENNY MANNING says the Tax Payers' ticket is a jackscrew that will move the republicans into position, and uncover their candidates. The general sentiment is that it is a strong combination.

THE Fargo Evening Post has made its appearance. Although its columns are principally filled with "snakes," commonly called plates, the paper looks very well and is an advertisement of Fargo.

HON. MARTIN MAGINNIS is pretty certain of re-election as delegate from Montana for the fifth time, despite the Helena Herald to the contrary.

CURRENT COMMENT.

THE Duluth Bee has dropped into vituperative poetry in its campaign against Nelson. JOSEPH W. DOLPH, republican, has been elected senator from Oregon, after a long fight.

It cost the St. Paul Dispatch probably $50 to make an ass of itself in publishing a cut of Senator Window's new residence.

The St. Paul Dispatch betrays a malignity equalled only by that of the devil himself in its warfare on Senator Window.

The directors of the St. Louis exchange have raised $12,000 wherewith to lift a mortgage on the family of the late Col. Slayback.

The editors of southern Dakota propose to meet at Huron some day next month and talk over advertising rates, "journalistic probity," and "vitch."

MANY of the TRIBUNE's exchangers have written articles denouncing the recent ridiculous and mendacious remarks of the Chicago Times on Dakota.

The American Agriculturist for November is upon the TRIBUNE table and is replete with choice matter and appropriate illustrations for the farm, the garden and the household.

The place of the Fargo Sunday Bee, which lately gave up the ghost, is now ably filled by the Sunday Republican. The Republican evidently savants all piety for the Sunday issue.

THE Lake Superior News, published at Duluth, says: The Bismarck weekly TRIBUNE has been greatly enlarged and improved. It always was one of the best papers on the line of the North Pacific.

MINNEAPOLIS Journal: Dorsey hints that Attorney General Brewster was born out of wedlock. This is doubtless a powerful argument—but what has it got to do with the star route pensions?

MARY HALLOCK FOOTE commences a serial story in the November Century entitled "The Led-Horse Claim," which promises to equal in excellence the late novels furnished by Howells for this magazine.

THE magazines are at present discussing the advantages and disadvantages, the effects and defects of the jury system in America with a good deal of earnestness, some steps toward its abolition being advocated.

THE Jamestown Alert thinks the Bismarck banner boom has been thrown into the shade by the Bismarck bridge boom. The Bismarck bridge boom, however, will knock out of time anything ever seen even in this land of booms.

It is unofficially reported that the Egyptian government is about to abandon the prosecution of Arabi Pasha. It is charged that this action is due to the expressed wish of the authorities at Constantinople. Arabi seems to be playing in luck.

A CORRESPONDENT down in Arizona tells the Scientific American that the comet is plainly visible there until after the full sunrise, and the editor of the aforesaid publication doesn't syllogize a single word about the kind of staff they drink down there.

Mrs. LANGRISH, the Jersey Lily, is now in America, and Americans will be treated to another tour after the fashion of the one made by Sarah Bernhardt. The extortionate prices will be paid grudgingly if it be true, as reported, that Mrs. L. will not wear dresses of the usual shortness as Rosalind.

IT may be lots of fun for the two Duluth editors to fight and fight, and then, like game chickens, get up and fight some more, but it is glad when that "cruel war is over," and peace sits perched upon one of those big pine trees they tell us so much about.

THE extraordinary ambition of Dakota papers in the matter of telegraphic news facilities leads the Grand Forks News to remark: "The journalistic graveyard is full of little mounds above which may be read the epithet 'Gone to meet the paper that bit off more than it could chew.'"

THE authorities at Lyons, France, suppressed the Sunday opera, and the mob failed to approve of the action. Consequently they made an attempt to blow up the theatre and a restaurant in connection, but their bombs were not big enough and they only injured several persons and broke up the mirrors.

Now that the Fort Benton papers have abandoned their warlike attitudes, the Helena papers are trying to get up a little matinee of their own. The independent thinks it's lucky for the editor of the Herald that the soldiers sent around there is something wrong with journalism in our sister territory. Contact creates combat.

THE common belief that preachers are out of their element when running a newspaper is at last exploded. One of the TRIBUNE's best weekly exchanges is the Portland, Ore., Polar, which is a recent venture made by a retired minister of that city. It is clean in tone and appearance and has an original idea once in a while, which is worthy of remark. It is thriving.

OUTRAGES are not on the decrease, apparently, and neither are the lynchings. The hot blooded beasts who recognize no such article as virtue in woman, continue to come to the front and as soon as they make their appearance they are transformed into decorations for telegraph poles, which is the best use that can be made of them. "What fools these mortals be."

ANOTHER walking match for the "championship of the world" was commenced in New York Monday, with all the big pedestrians on the score slate. And the people will throng to see these strikers for muscular supremacy just as though this did, in reality, settle the matter of the championship, and the exhibition's coffers will be filled to overflowing, which will cause the walkers, one and all, exceeding great joy.

MARY MCCARTHY brought suit for $20,000 damages against the Hon. Walbridge A. Field, a justice of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts, because he would not grant her a writ of habeas corpus. Judge Knowlton of the supreme court, now decides that the granting of a writ of habeas corpus is not a matter of right, but is discretionary with a judge, and that it is a well established principle of law that a suit cannot be brought against a judge.

THE gore drinker of the Black Hills Pioneer says: "Every newspaper throughout the land, as every one has published the killing of Col. Slayback by the editor of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, hence the account, 'killed by an Editor,' just as though it was a remarkable occurrence that an editor had killed somebody for once. The fact is editors are killers as a rule. There is not one west of the Missouri who is not 'on the out and shoot.' People who write their sins generally 'die with their boots on.'"

THE centennial anniversary of the landing of Wm. Penn was celebrated Tuesday in Philadelphia, and the entire set played over again, the impersonator of Wm. Penn, again stepping ashore at the same identical place, among the Swedes, Dutch, Indians, and others who were congregated to receive the gentleman so many years ago. The scene was lively beyond description. One hundred and fifty vessels formed in the river and came up to the place of landing with colors flying and the streets windows and house tops were crowded. The Philadelphians did it brown.

MILWAUKEE is not a prohibition town. It is not necessary to state the above if it is known that Peck's Sun is published there. The Sun doesn't advocate prohibition at all, scarcely, and this may possibly be the reason that strange things, like the recent matinee at the academy of music, occur there. The actors came on the stage drunk, the manager fell into a fit through mortification, the performance was stopped, the audience was given back their money, the theatre was closed and the engagement was cancelled.

At a christian convention in Chicago a few days ago, prayers were offered for Paris and Chicago. No two cities on the face of the globe need more of this kind of thing except it may be Fargo and Bismarck.—Eastern Exchange.

The above is an unkind allusion to our neighbors. The two latter places are certainly not in need of prayers. Maj. Edwards will take care of the reputation of the one, and Col. Lounsberry we know, will be responsible for the good behavior of the other.—Valley City Times.

THE south will have her affairs of "honah," even though they may not always be honorable affairs. The latest duel is reported from Raleigh, N. C. and was fought with horse whips to a audience of fifty. These brutes in human shape lashed each other for four hours until their flesh hung in strips. The cause of this barbaric display was, as in the case, a young woman, with whom they were both in love. It is strange that a charming woman, a type of angelic loveliness, should "inspire" two persons to do such horrible things, instead of exalting them in spirit and making them better.

PROBIA, (Ill.) Journal: "The rush to the northwest still continues. The little town of Fargo, Dakota, is the scene of unwonted activity. Land changes hands with wonderful rapidity, sometimes as often as three or four times a day. Emigration has set in at a terrific rate, and wheat lands are held at enormous prices. The past prosperous years have sent everyone crazy. Many farmers have paid for their land with one season's crop. The railroads have created such additional facilities for shipping that wheat always commands a good price and finds ready sale."

SOME intellects develop rather too quickly—so much so that the intellect in question cannot convince a skeptical world of its maturity. A little miss of fifteen years the other day created a sensation in the Palmer House, Chicago, by taking a room there, having lots of money and nothing to do. The stupid people thereabouts thought this was suspicious, and consequently a chambermaid of the hotel succeeded in making her out the daughter of a wealthy Cleveland, from whom she had run away to have a nice time and write a book. The chambermaid will receive $2,000 for her part of the transaction.

THE Miles City Press, which is democratic, a few days ago announced that in political matters it proposed "for the present to remain as silent as the grave—but in a few days we will endeavor to blow the trumpet and raise the dead." To this the Helena Herald rejoins: "As the last election was lost by a chambermaid who referred to the late Major Maginnis it can be regarded as a frank acknowledgement by a prominent democratic journalist whose name is on the party ticket, of the feeling of utter and entire hopelessness pervading the democratic ranks. It is a warning that the democratic cause will not be able to put the breath of life in the political corpse of the defunct Martin."

SOMEthing appeared to be in the air in the northwest on Monday last. To be poetical it was "the very error of the moon; she came more near the earth than was her wont, and made men mad." A young man in St. Paul shot at a woman with whom he was riding and then killed himself from jealousy. A young Englishman in Rochester, Minn., killed himself on account of the non-arrival of remittance from home. In Grand Forks, a Chicago gambler left this world by a morphine route, because luck turned against him. In Fargo a man who had visited and fell in love with Bismarck, tried to die by an electric shock because of his inability to get loose down there. In Mandan a man wanted to die and couldn't, and a vindictive man ought to have been killed that wasn't.

HEMOIS in the humbler walks of life doesn't always pass without recognition and substantial reward. Sometimes the vigilance and "nerve" of men in subordinate positions are exercised in the interests of other men who happen to possess riches and a generous sense of gratitude. Such a case occurred last month on the occasion of the westward journey of the John Pender party. As the train was nearing Big Horn station the engineer, Joel Gleason, discovered an open switch which threatened a disaster. Gleason reversed his machine and applied the air-brakes, and the train was brought to a timely standstill. A few days ago the engineer received a handsome watch, manufactured by Tiffany, New York, bearing on the front case the inscription: "Presented to Joel Gleason, by John Pender, M. P.; Times, F. Bayard, S. S.; Abram S. Hewitt, M. C.; Henry Goringe, U. S. N.; and others. On the reverse side appears the following: "Souvenir, Sept., 7, 1882, engine No. 40, N. P. R. R."
