

VON BERNSTORFF FAVORS THE NOTE

Hopes It Will Be Accepted By the German Government.

BERLIN'S ATTITUDE

Note's Tone Has Caused No Alarm, It Is Understood.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Count Von Bernstorff, German ambassador, left Washington today to remain away from the capital until instructions from his government of new developments make his return necessary.

It was learned that the German interpretation of the statement in the American note that the lives of non-combatants were not to be put in jeopardy unless a special request for such to be made, was expected to satisfy the German military authorities that the United States had not intended to an abandonment of submarine warfare as such.

Hopes Germany Accepts. Count Von Bernstorff viewed with satisfaction the statement that the United States would insist upon the freedom of the seas "from whatever quarter violated."

Conflicting reports reached the German embassy on the 24th. Some passengers declared no torpedo was fired by the German submarine from which the liner escaped.

TAGGED YOUNGSTER WITHOUT A TICKET

Humane Society Investigating Case and Foster Parent May Have to Provide Transportation.

Wallace Forney, aged 8, who was placed in the custody of a woman at Tulsa, Okla., with a tag pinned to his clothes stating that his destination was St. Louis, but who was not provided with a railroad ticket, it will be recalled by the authorities at Okla. City, where he was picked up by the Humane Society, A. W. Welch, is investigating the case at the request of the police department here.

The youth is said to have been taken out of a child's home in St. Louis, Mo., recently by Miss Ethel McDonald of West Tulsa. Miss McDonald is said to have picked him up on the train Friday.

It is found that Miss McDonald adopted the youngster and then tried to send him back to St. Louis without paying for fare, she will be compelled to provide transportation for him, it is said.

IT IS TIME TO ACT ON THE WATER QUESTION

THE time has arrived when Tulsa should do something in the matter of getting the water question settled once for all. A great many things have come up to occupy the attention of the public mind the last few months and nothing has been done toward solving the water question.

The World now proposes to begin an active campaign that will not permit the matter to rest longer. Something must be done or Tulsa will suffer from the effects of deferring action toward getting good water.

The World was inclined to favor the proposed conditional contract with Layne & Bowler, the very successful well supply firm which has made an excellent reputation in solving water problems in many parts of the country.

Following the practical abandonment of that plan, The World was persuaded that the next best method of getting water was to go to the Grand river or the Spawnyaw mountains east of the Grand.

The World always has been skeptical of the reservoir project in the Osage hills. It has made considerable inquiry as to this method of obtaining water in this section and the reports have been about equally divided favoring it above all other methods and condemning it unconditionally.

The World believes that this project, if its promoters are able as they appear to be, to make good their proposals and the city is fully and amply protected in any contract that may be entered into, offers a plan to secure water without the necessity of incurring any additional indebtedness on the taxpayers until after it has thoroughly proved to be everything that is claimed for it and actually furnishes the city good drinking water.

Let us begin now and consider without further delay any and all practical methods which may be proposed and let the best be come up for consideration by the private reservoir.

Warrant Issued. The name of the conductor of the orchestra was ascertained and a warrant issued for his arrest.

Chief Burns No Longer Will Tolerate This Sort of Violation. The city ordinance provides that a crossing cannot be blocked for more than five minutes at a time.

BELGIANS FLOCK OUT OF COUNTRY

World Evade Complying With Demands of Germans.

FIGHT FOR BRITAIN

Men and Women to Work in the Munition Factories.

PARIS, July 24.—Scarcely a boat leaves Holland for England these days without its contingent of Belgians.

Among the former there are various groups wearing bits of colored tape in their hats, scarves, or pinned to their clothing, some purple, some green, some yellow, by the representatives of the British munitions firms who are to employ them.

Those who are going for soldiers are generally younger men, in their early twenties for the most part. They have lived in Holland, and are well educated and adduced by what has passed in their country since last August.

Their talk just now is all of the proposed annexation of Belgium by Germany, which they are convinced is imminent. They are anxious that this is the only possible measure on the part of the invaders—that Belgium once annexed and become thereby an integral part of the German empire, all Belgians of military age will be called upon to serve in the German army.

On each boat, also, may be found generally one or more prisoners of war who have escaped from one of the German prison camps, of which a few are not far from the Dutch border. Most of these are French, whose language being the same as that of most Belgians renders their flight through Belgium less difficult.

Both were still in the full uniform of Russian private soldiers when they had neither been able to change nor to disguise during their flight. With their trousers thrust into high boots and the conspicuous round, khaki hats perched on the side of their heads they were unmistakable as far as they could be seen.

Warrant Issued. The name of the conductor of the orchestra was ascertained and a warrant issued for his arrest.

Children Drown in Shell Creek.

Presently the campers were startled by a woman's scream, to which they responded at once. They found Mrs. Windom waist deep in the water and pointing frantically at the spot where she had seen her daughter disappear a few seconds before.

Fearful that the woman would drown herself, Dewey and Gambell, before they attempted to rescue the bodies of the children, advised her to return to the bank. When Mrs. Windom refused and started further into the stream the men picked her up bodily and carried her to safety. Then they returned to where she said the bodies were and dived for them.

Owing to the seven-foot depth of water and considerable current, it was not without difficulty that the campers located the bodies, and before they were able to bring them to the surface about half an hour had elapsed. The bodies were side by side, which bore out Mrs. Windom's assertion that she had arrived just in time to see her daughter disappear while attempting to save her brother.

Lives Were Extinct. Everything possible was done to induce artificial respiration after the bodies had been taken to the bank. Latham, an official of the boy scouts, had been instructed in first aid methods, and all were brought into use. At first it was thought the girl would be revived, as there were signs of life, but eventually it became apparent death had taken place and the work was abandoned.

While Dewey and Gambell were engaged with the girl, O. V. Depall and others devoted their attention to the boy, while some were busy in an effort to prevent Mrs. Windom from rushing back into the creek. The boy, however, exhibited no signs of life from the time he was taken from the water, indicating that death probably had occurred soon after he sank for the third time.

In the opinion of Mrs. Windom and all others who were attracted to the scene, the boy had removed his shirt and contents of trousers pockets that he might take a swim. A short distance from the bank there is a "step-off" from three to seven feet. It is thought the youngster stepped into deep water and sank immediately. It is presumed his sister, realizing his danger, rushed to his assistance and also stepped into the hole.

The father of the children is a section foreman in the employ of the Katy railroad. The bodies will be sent to McAlester, Okla., for burial.
