

ENGLAND MAY SOON FACE MONEY CRISIS

Government Preaches But Doesn't Practice "Strict Economy."

PEEL SCORES THEM

"We Cannot Go on Indefinitely and Maintain Financial Solvency."

LONDON, Nov. 10 (AP) (Special)—During the debate in the house of lords this evening on a motion of Viscount Peel...

Lord Peel in support of his motion said that the figures which were given as to the expenditure on war...

No Real Economy. He doubted whether the government was sufficiently serious in enforcing economy.

Lord Haverford thought it likely that the government would have to resort to a forced loan.

Could the government, he continued, close the door to goods not essential to the country's existence?

He estimated that the country imported from $25,000,000 to $30,000,000 worth of goods which could be done without.

Should the government, he continued, close the door to goods not essential to the country's existence?

Across The Brook

The bridge was drenched with sunlight, and at its foot a brook murmured merrily before it plunged over the rocks and disappeared at the foot of the second bridge.

Grace Pitt dipped her face in the brook when the drops from her pink nose and with a contented sigh, looked back at her reflection in the water.

"You forget the chocolate," exclaimed a masculine voice.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I forgot it. I'll get it for you."

"No, thank you, I came to bring you some letters," he said, crossing the stream in the same and dropping a bundle of papers in her lap.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I forgot it. I'll get it for you."

"Why, what is the world do you say?" she demanded in amazement.
