

BOSTON & MAINE DEAL UNCOVERED

Mellen Explains That Purchase of Road Was a Protective Move.

PAID OUT $20,000,000

Defense Asks That Jury Be Taken on an Inspection Trip Over Lines.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The trial of the Boston & Maine Railroad directors entered into a new phase today when the government began the presentation of its testimony to show how the New Haven acquired control of the Boston & Maine railroad, which yesterday completed the alleged conspiracy which the directors are charged with having conspired to create.

A Protective Move. Mellen said the American Express interests were reported going to sell any way, chiefly because they were dissatisfied with their treatment and that he (the witness) regarded the situation that might be created so serious that he had decided to buy the stock rather than have it go into the hands of other interests.

in order to provide the necessary New Haven stock for the exchange. Mellen said that the New Haven's stock listed in the Boston & Maine railroad company, at New Haven, had been bought by the New Haven, for which $20,000,000 New Haven stock was issued and paid.

in the treasury for the purpose of the exchange.

Valued at $20,000,000.—The witness added that the stock which he had purchased for the Boston & Maine Railroad was worth more than $20,000,000 at the time.

The government placed emphasis on the activities of Lyford in its forerunners' testimony that he had purchased the stock of Lyford, after correspondence with Mellen, secured the removal for a long term of a profitable contract which the American Express company had with the Boston & Maine. This contract would have otherwise terminated at a comparatively early date and would have automatically gone to the Adams Express company with which the New Haven operated.

Mr. Lyford told me, said the witness, that the American Express did not propose to sell itself out of business.

Jury on Inspection Trip. Negotiations also were held in the deal, Mr. Mellen said, with the New York Central which had a controlling interest in the American Express company and there was an agreement made prepared for the operation of the Boston & Maine by the New Haven in such a way as to control it with the Boston & Albany, a New York Central road. This agreement was not made effective, however, he added, owing to the trouble which the New Haven got into with the Massachusetts legislature as the result of which it was for a time prevented from keeping the Boston & Maine in its possession.

Consent for the defense was given today of its intention to move that the jury be taken on an inspection trip over the New Haven lines. The motion probably will be made after the prosecution has completed its case, which it is said, attorney for the government, said he hoped to finish next week. The trial adjourned until Monday.

CHARLES W. CLARK RECITAL TONIGHT

"Danny Deever" Will Be One of His Barrack Room Ballads.

STARTS AT 8:30 SHARP

Popular Prices Should Bring Out Big Crowd for Contest.

Do you know they are going to have "Danny Deever" tonight at Convention hall? Well, they are, and Charles W. Clark will be the hangman. And when we come to think about it who could fill that position with better grace than the greatest American balladist? With Clark's voice, Camerone's music and Kipling's words one cannot conceive of a more perfect combination. Very often Mr. Clark is forced to repeat this very popular ballad again and again, for it is so wonderful in his tone production and interpretation.

A Regular Man. Beside being a world famous singer, Mr. Clark is "just a man," one of those affable creatures whom the world admires: a man who loves the business world, the business man; a man who has the grace and glow of a man who has not the freakish nature, but derived of stability. It was once the prevailing idea that a musician or an artist should be pictured in the mind's eye as an individual with long hair and flowing locks. But that is just history, and the musician of today is the business man in the pursuit of his chosen profession. Such a character of musician is Charles W. Clark. And if all singers had the color, the dramatic instinct, the intelligence, the perfect control and the charm of Mr. Clark, the musical critics' world would be a paradise.

An amusing story is going the rounds now which revolves about Mr. Clark.

Wanted Clark's Record. An admirer of the singer, recently asked in a Chicago music store for one of his records, and Gannon's "Oh, Divine Redeemer" was played for her, but so rapidly that she remarked that it did not sound like Mr. Clark's voice.

"Well, it is," said the clerk. "Will you play some others, but not quite so fast," asked the miss. "Here's another on this side," said the salesman, turning the record. "Want to hear it?" "What is it?" questioned the girl. "That's 'Nuff from 'Laza," answered the clerk with authoritative air. The young lady was astounded. Mr. Clark singing "Nuff!" "He doesn't sing such things," she indignantly declared. "Well, I guess he does," calmly replied the clerk, and began playing "It is 'Nuff from 'Laza." My "Nuff" recital will begin at 8:30 o'clock sharp, thus giving those attending revival services at the various churches an opportunity to be present. Tickets are on sale at the local drug store at the very moderate price of $1, 75 cents and 50 cents. Special price of 25 cents for children.

The resolution was prepared and adopted during the regular Monday luncheon of the general council at Hotel Tulsa, yesterday, and after provided for the appointment of a committee of ten to advise with the commissioners regarding the expenditure of the $600,000 necessary for the installation of an adequate water system in this city, provided the bond issue carries. The committee follows: Lee Kunsman, Robert Kemp, J. W. Sanders, G. N. Wright, C. A. Mayo, J. M. Berry, E. W. Sullivan, J. J. Kelly, William Strickland and Eugene Gaudin. Practically all those in attendance at the meeting were in favor of a more adequate water supply, but the unanimous opinion was that something should be done to prevent the matter coming to an issue at this time.
