Spring Glove Exposition

This important introducing of the glove fashions for spring is due to commence tomorrow. One of the important style features of the gloves is the color. The darker tones of beaver, sable and African, and the lighter shades of ivory, honey and bisque, being considered very stylish. Wrist length gloves occupy the main line of style popularity, but fashion is glancing with new favor on the gauntlets. For evening wear the long glove is the thing. The following types of gloves embody part of the spring showing—Main Floor.

The NEW SEASON of FASHIONS

Informal Spring Showing at Vandevors

Fashioned according to the developed ideas of the originators, taking all the originality of line, form and color in the importations from Paris, adding the brilliant conceptions, innovations, duplications and adaptations of the New York houses. Such is the history of the fashions we are now ready to disclose for Spring, 1919. The end of the war left Paris and New York short of some of the brilliant novelties of ante-bellum days, but not of the brilliant artistry and skill of the creators of fashions. Ample proof of this will be given on every side during this informal showing of spring fashions. The season's figure silhouette will be slim and narrow, and the fashions accentuate and bring into popularity several style tendencies observed in Paris and New York recently. Particularly in the suits and more tailored frocks. The informal displays are of most carefully selected types and is educational in its intent, as offering not merely a display of beautiful styles—though it does that in a royal way—but rather a series of types that will lead this season, each having its recognized followers, and altogether making a diversity that insures that individuality of dress. Most every department participates in the informal showing tomorrow.

The Leading Spring
Suit Types Will Be Shown Tomorrow

The style classifications, each with their variations, are the box coat suit, the bloused suit, the suit with the Eton front, and the long tailed back.

The colors are quiet and sombre of tone, with blue predominating. Other colors represented are tan, mole, grey, with a sprinkling of mixtures and checks. Materials include many old favorites, poret twill, serges, tricelines and duvetyne. Prices range from modest $27.50 to $165.00.

The Kimono Sleeved
Coat and the Belted
Straight Lined Coat

The kimono-sleeved coat, narrow at the hem, will be much worn because of its becoming lines and the fact that it serves the double purpose of street and semi-dress wear.

The belted straight line models in all the newest colors and materials are also conspicuous in the stocks. Principal materials are tricelines, serges, tweeds, Bolivia and French serge. Prices range from $35.00 up to $125.00.

Spring Dresses of Authentic Style

A collection representing the master makers' best efforts, and their decree, "straight and slender" is the fashion silhouette for the spring season—analyzing the style we find that most stylists choose the round, square or oval neckline, and the frocks are collarless. The waist line is slightly below normal. The skirts of the new gowns are mostly ankle length. Materials are taffeta, georgette crepe, crepe de chine, foulards and fantas. Colors are henna, rose, grey, taupe and navy. Prices range from $18.75 up to $95.00.

Skirts a Wide Range of Styles and Materials

A veritable potpourri of styles and material combinations. Wool, taffeta, georgette, baronet satin and faille—sport and dress up skirts. All from makers who represent the better efforts of the stylists. One particularly attractive model dedicated to Marshal Foch, is of Mallison's silk, dark blue ground, with printed oak design and a succession of stars, typifying victory. Priced at $30.00. Others from $8.50 to $45.00.

The Inspiration of These Paris Copied
Hats

It is not only the fact that the hats are new in shape and material, but the inspiration of this millinery section is the unmistakable air of high-class "professionalism" of the various type shown. That is because they come from the hands of milliners of experience, guided by designers who divide their time between New York and Paris. Many new models in the Italian and Swiss Straws; some so intricate and fancy in design as to stimulate hand work, are just coming into the show room, on third floor, for tomorrow's customers.

Silks for the Well Dressed Woman

Silks as never before will be worn this season—even so early in the season re-orders have been placed, for the supply hardly equals the demand.
