

HUNS OBSEQUIOUS TO ALLIES ON RHINE

Sense of Humiliation Shows in Their Eyes, Says a Newspaper Correspondent.

NEED LESSONS IN CIVILITY

Ravages of Hunger Are Fearful to Contemplate—Worse in French Land.

LONDON, March 25.—The emotion and impressions of British people taking part in the congress in Germany appear to differ widely. "I find that I am getting the habit of not looking people straight in the face," writes a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian at Coblenz. "There is a kind of fear of something which is just behind their eyes. When a man looks at me across the table in one of the cafes I have to look away, and the only reason I can think of for this is because I have won and he has lost. I am afraid of him because he is helpless and cannot hurt me. Many people would think that they would not feel like this, but they do."

Another point of view is given by a correspondent of the Westminster Gazette at Cologne. "The Huns love us dearly," he writes, "because we save them from themselves. Also they think us wealthy because we tip waiters. Every time I go to the municipal baths there is a crowd of Huns of them. Makes them furious, but if they would give the attendant half a mark I dare say it wouldn't happen unless I did as well as a proper chairman's gentlemanly do."

An Englishman who has visited Bonn, Cologne and other Rhine points, tells the Guardian that, although fraternization between the English troops and the German inhabitants is forbidden, there is a good deal of friendly intercourse between them. "The Germans say they were deceived concerning the war, but that they would have won if the United States had not been forced into it."

The visitor was impressed by hearing factory girls who were leaving work about "good night" as they passed some English soldiers and he adds: "The Hun is always as 'stiff' as the Boer and clearly sees now that gentility is better than poisoned gas."

Arthur Pollen, the naval writer, says: "It is in the suburbs of Bonn and Cologne, in Duren and in the villages that one sees the real devastation of these people. The fat man is gone and all adults seem peaked and thin, but the children are really a horrible sight. Those who have been both here and in the occupied parts of France say the state of the French children is worse."

"These seem to be plenty of children but none under three years old and never once did I see a woman with a baby in her arms. The smallest children are the worst to look at—pallid, hollow-eyed and dreadfully feeble. The boys are far less animated than the girls."

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 25.—Two men held up the Iowa State bank in the heart of the business district here shortly before nine a. m. today and escaped with more than $20,000 in cash.

LOS ANGELES, March 25.—Two men who burned their way into the vault of the First National bank of Artesia near here last night, escaped with $3,000 in war savings stamps and $25,000 in liberty bonds. They used a gas torch and opened 25 safe deposit boxes. Fifty thousand dollars in cash in an inner safe was not taken.

PITTSBURGH, March 25.—Theft of $20,000 from the First National bank of Silver Springs, Mo., was admitted, according to the police, by W. B. Jouvenal, 18, former bookkeeper of the bank who was arrested here today.

HOUGH BROTHERS HELD ON ROBBERY CHARGES

Arrested on the charge of joint robbery, W. H. Hough and James Hough pleaded guilty before Justice H. J. Gray Tuesday afternoon and were committed to jail under bonds of $1,000 each to await their preliminary trial before the justice on April 8.

The Hough brothers were wounded in a revolver battle with negro deputy sheriffs last Saturday night near the Oklahoma Iron Works, after the defendants had fired on an automobile in which the officers were riding. W. H. Hough was shot through both legs and his brother received a minor wound in his hand. The former was captured immediately after the shooting and the latter was taken in custody by deputy sheriff's Sunday.

ANSELL TELLS MORE ON ARMY INJUSTICE

Former Acting Judge Advocate General Reveals Methods Employed in Inflicting Heavy Sentences.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Lieut. Col. Samuel T. Ansell, former acting judge advocate general of the army and storm center of a controversy between Secretary Baker and members of congress, made a speech vigorously attacking the existing court-martial system here today. "The court-martial," said Colonel Ansell, "is one that leads to injustice, logically, naturally, inevitably. It is an inheritance from the old British code which was adopted in 1774 and never changed. It is not a court in the proper sense, it is simply the executive arm of a commanding officer."

"A man is arrested, brought before the tribunal. He has no counsel in the proper sense. A fellow second lieutenant without any knowledge of law, easily intimidated, is assigned to defend him. The lieutenant makes a perfunctory defense but never insists upon the rights of the man. He is convicted by a court which has no knowledge of law. The sentence is reviewed by an authority some times equally ignorant of law and the man is forced to undergo the sentence imposed."

"One instance I want to relate from the records of trials by court-martial. It is of a man who was arrested and charged with desertion. He was sentenced to forfeit all pay, be dishonorably discharged and serve 99 years at hard labor. The reviewing authority in sustaining the court naively remarked that it would not enforce the part of the judgment providing for the man's dishonorable discharge until he had served his prison sentence."
