

PLANNING TO BRING BACK THE U. S. DEAD

Movement Launched in Pittsburgh — Protest Issued Against French Action.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 8. — "An American tomb in America for every American hero who died on foreign soil."

That is the slogan of a nationwide movement for the return of America's soldier dead recently started here.

Unimpressed by the promises of foreign governments, especially France, and the peoples of foreign countries that the graves of American soldiers will be cared for, nearly 100 parents or next of kin of boys who gave their lives for the cause of democracy met here and demanded that the United States government keep its solemn word that the bodies would be brought back to this country.

An organization known as the "Bring Home the Soldier Dead League" was formed to bring pressure on the government, and it was announced that the campaign would be pushed to the limit.

mined upon by the department of justice. Attorney General Palmer announced today.

Included among the material and literature seized by government agents in the raids were quantities of articles used in making bombs, a complete counterfeit plant, a large quantity of counterfeit bank notes.

4. Thousands of pieces of literature, documents and scores of red flags, drums and revolvers.

5. Five Collect Evidence. If the department of justice bureau of investigation collecting evidence in similar cases for two Palmer said. Practically all of those arrested were Russians. In the course of their investigation, the government agents according to Mr. Palmer's announcement have found that the Union Russian workers conducting an active propaganda for a social revolution. The agents arrested were all leaders in this union, which was described as the worst anarchistic organization in the country. Its membership numbers more than 7,000 with many locals estimated by officials to run well above 100, scattered throughout the nation.

Of the activities of members of the Union of Russian workers, Mr. Palmer said.

"The Union of Russian workers is even more radical than the bolsheviks. It was organized in New York in 1907 by a group of 11 men led by William Martov, at present the chief of police of Petrograd. The purpose of the society was to amalgamate all of the Russian groups in the United States into one organization. With the aid of newspapers and other responsible persons, the membership of the Union of Russian workers grew until at the present time its membership is about 7,000 and its branches number more than 100 located in the principal cities of the country.

"The various locals are organized for the sole purpose of spreading the doctrine of the organization among the Russian immigrants working in the mines, shops, factories, logging camps and saw mills and other centers of labor and the propaganda is conducted by means of literature and lectures as well as through the national newspapers. Lectures are sent out by the executive committee of the group and cover all parts of the country. Funds of the organization are derived from dues, lectures and concerts and the sale of radical literature."

Eight Russian Union. Officials declared that in last night's raids they had found more forms of anarchistic propaganda, teaching the overthrow of government by force and violence, than in any previous nation-wide raids. Apparently, according to officials, the Russian organization bids fair to supplant some of the other radical groups to which more attention has been paid in the past. The announced determination to rid the country of all aliens participating in the spread of doctrine against the government was believed to be an effective means of stopping the growth of the Russian union.

In the literature seized was a portion of the "constitution" of the Russian society, which officials declared was the most inflammatory of any documents yet taken. This section of the constitution was divided into two opposing classes. These, it said, were:

"The proletarian workers and peasants on one side, producing by their work all the riches of the world, on the other the rich people who grabbed all the riches into their hands. Many a time the class of oppressed stood against the rich parasites and their faithful servant and government, to conquer its full liberation from the yoke of capitalism and political power. But every time it suffered defeat, not being fully conscious of its own final goal and means by which victory can be accomplished. This remaining only a weapon in the hands of its enemies.

The "constitution" said further that there was a prime importance in the necessity of building up a wide revolutionary organization of toilers, which, by conducting a direct struggle with all the institutions of capitalism and government, must train the working class to initiate an independent action."

This training, the "constitution" explained, was necessary if the people must be educated to the absolute necessity of a general strike.

the report. "It is unfair to men who are struggling for their rights to be represented by such leaders if Mr. Foster has the real interest of the laboring man at heart, he should remove himself from any leadership. If he will not remove himself, the American Federation of Labor should purge itself of such leadership in order to maintain the confidence which the country has in it under the leadership."

In fixing the blame for the steel strike the investigating committee finds that both sides were guilty of wrong.

Reprimands given. Judge Robert H. Gary, of the United States steel corporation, was publicly reprimanded for failing to meet with the steel workers' delegation and for other minor things considered faults in the senator's eyes.

Senatorial reprimand. Senator Stephen M. Phipps, president of the American Federation of Labor, was similarly treated to a gentle spanking. "We regret," the committee writes, "that Mr. Phipps did not take a firmer position as to postponement of the strike," as requested by President Wilson.

The report, with copies of testimony and various exhibits is voluminous. The committee, headed by Senator William S. Kenyon of Iowa, and with Senators Thomas Sterling, Lawrence C. Phipps, Kenneth McKellar and David I. Walsh, all republicans, save the last two mentioned, aided by a subcommittee, visited the strike regions, went into workers' homes, examined witnesses on the scene of the strike itself, in Pittsburgh, Washington and elsewhere, and based their findings upon what they saw and heard.

WAVES WASH AWAY THE GRAVE OF SOAPY SMITH

SKAGWAY, Alaska, Oct. 15. — (By mail.) — "Soapy" Smith's grave, for years a spot pointed out to Skagway's visitors, was washed away by recent high waters. "Soapy" Smith, known as the worst of the "bad men" of the days of the Alaska gold stampede, became notorious throughout the north when he and his associates "finned" scores of miners who passed through Skagway on their way from the interior diggings to their homes. Smith was killed during a battle with officers.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8. — Completion of land purchases and construction work at more than a score of army camps and fields over the country was approved today by the house military committee, which recommended passage of a bill granting the war department authority to spend approximately $4,500,000 additional on these camps.

The Economy of Madansky Methods—

IT is a well established fact in the retail clothing and all other business that the concern which buys most goods pays lowest prices, secures quantity discounts and prompt shipments. The three Madansky stores are able to take full advantage of this fact, since they are the largest distributors in Oklahoma of men's and boys' clothing.

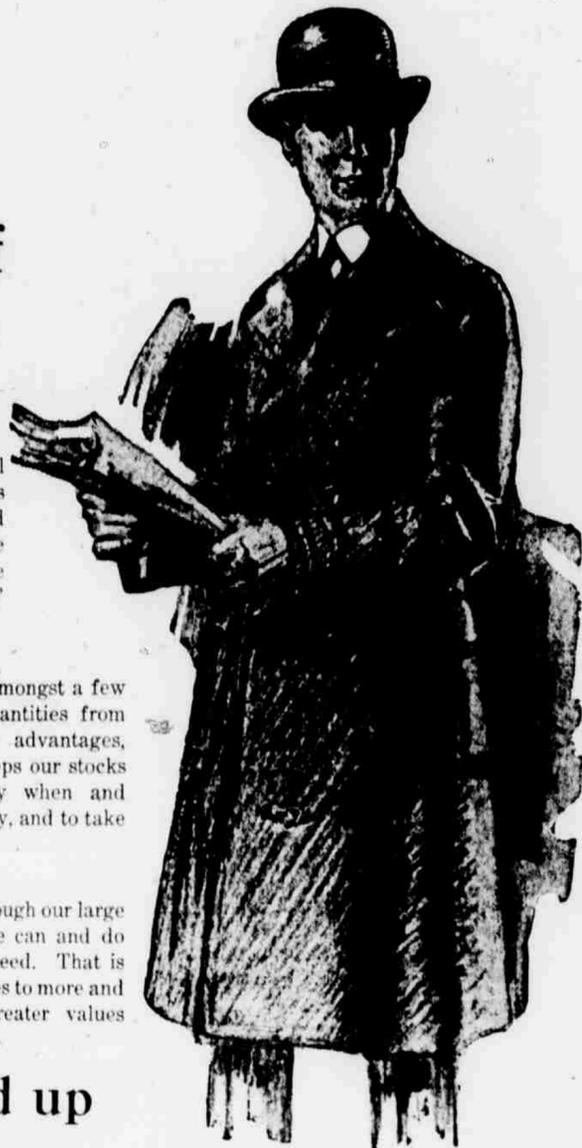

WE have for many years concentrated our buying amongst a few of the best makers, rather than to buy small quantities from many makers. This policy brings us important price advantages, makes us favored customers of leading makers and keeps our stocks complete at all times. We have ample capital to buy when and where it is most advantageous, a year ahead if necessary, and to take all cash discounts.

THESE are but a few of the advantages we enjoy through our large volume of business, yet it is very apparent that we can and do conduct our stores upon a very small profit margin indeed. That is why we find it so easy to extend the service of our stores to more and more men each year. If you want to benefit by the greater values here come now for your
