REVISED RAIL BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Measure Is Given Majority of Even Hundred Votes.

ROADS BACK MARCH 1

Each Says Return Is Sure Regardless of Action Congress May Take.

TAKE PROTEST TO WILSON

Workers Submit Memorial to Him Against Pending Return Measure.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The compromise Eech-Cummins railroad bill was approved late today by the house, which adopted the conference report after four hours of debate.

The house adopted the conference report by a vote of 259 to 159—a clear margin of 100 votes. Adoption of the conference report came after the house had defeated, 228 to 171, a motion to re-commit. Chairman Eech of the interstate commerce committee then called for the previous question and there was a buzz in the chamber as the voting began.

The mover was any doubt as to the outcome, leaders said, although the effect of pressure from labor leaders against adoption of the bill was variously interpreted. Representative Kitchin, democrat, North Carolina, in the closing argument against the bill, declared that labor leaders had caused at least a dozen members opposed to it to rally to its support.

Go Back in March. During the debate in which more than a score of representatives took part, Chairman Eech declared that the railroads would be handed back to their owners on March 1 regardless of whether the interstate commerce legislation meanwhile, but he warned the house that defeat of the bill at this stage would put half the railroads of the country in the hands of receivers in three months.

Representative Poy, democrat of North Carolina, painted a more gloomy picture by declaring that the country would see the greatest financial disaster in years if it gave up the railroads without enactment of laws which would give them the right to earn a fair return.

Representative Kitchin said his opposition was not in "compliance with the demands of Mr. Gompers." He attacked the "insidious propaganda" which he said railway interests had conducted and declared the question of government ownership was not involved.

"Whether this report is adopted or rejected," he said, "we have it from Mr. Eech that the roads will go back to their owners on March 1."

Among the Votes. The vote for the adoption of the conference report showed 205 republicans and 45 democrats supporting it. The opposing vote included 125 republicans, 22 democrats and independent and anti-prohibitionist.

Gain in Population Made by Cincinnati and Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The first population announcements for the 1920 census were issued tonight by the census bureau and were as follows:

Cincinnati, 401,154, an increase of 27,867, or 7.2 percent. Washington, D. C., 437,414; an increase of 106,345, or 32.1 percent over 1910.

Cincinnati ranked as 13th city of the country in 1910, with a population of 363,591. Washington ranked 16th with a population of 331,069. Census bureau estimates of Cincinnati's population July 1, 1917, were 416,748 and Washington's on that date 369,282.

In making the announcements tonight, Director Rogers stated that the figures were preliminary and subject to correction. The final figures will be those certified to congress.

The city of Washington is co-extensive with the District of Columbia. In counting the national capital population only the actual residents were enumerated. All transient persons, members of the diplomatic corps and the members of congress and their families being omitted. A police census of Washington seven months ago placed the population at 455,428.

While months may elapse before any official returns concerning Tulsa census figures are given out, local persons who have been interesting themselves in securing a satisfactory enumeration will be disappointed should the final count show Tulsa to have less than 75,000 people. Some even believe that it will reach near 80,000.

Oklahoma City boosters are commending that Tulsa will run a close race for first place in the state.

Most of the debate preceding the roll call revolved about the treaty as a campaign issue and drew from the republican side a volley of criticism against the republican nomination, pronounced "utterly silly" the declaration of Mr. Root that the United States should enter the league of nations with reservations and then move to reform it later after a new president is inaugurated.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the republican floor leader, declared amendment of the league covenant once it was ratified, would be "practically impossible," and Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader among the republican irreconcilables, gave notice that he would carry on his fight with the treaty regardless of the party's national convention.

The reservation on which the senate acted relates to withdrawal from membership in the league providing that this nation shall be the sole judge whether its obligations have been fulfilled in case it decides to withdraw and that notice of withdrawal may be given by a concurrent resolution of congress.

The vote on its adoption was 45 to 20, 10 democrats joining in the republican lineup supporting it. Four of these, Senators Aldrich, Arizona, Fletcher, Oklahoma, and Nevada, and Nugent, Idaho, had stood on all previous roll calls steadfastly against any qualification of the treaty.

Join Reservationists. One of the four, Senator Ashurst, announced to the senate beforehand his intention to go over to the reservationists. Having become convinced that ratification of the treaty was a prime necessity, he said he was ready to vote "for any reservation or amendment that will ratify this treaty."

"We will vote our own convictions and not those of the president," he said, "we will have a treaty."

DEADLOCK IS TIGHTENED

Pact Is Step Nearer Campaign; Johnson Declares Proposal "Silly."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—The first of the reservations attached to the peace treaty last November were accepted unchanged and by an increased majority today in the senate, after the treaty's irreconcilable foes, holding the balance of power, had balked the efforts of republican and democratic leaders to secure compromise.

The outcome, although involving the defection of four more democratic senators from the ranks of those who have stood against all reservations, generally was accepted as tightening the deadlock and bringing the question of ratification one step nearer the political campaign.

Most of the debate preceding the roll call revolved about the treaty as a campaign issue and drew from the republican side a volley of criticism against the republican nomination, pronounced "utterly silly" the declaration of Mr. Root that the United States should enter the league of nations with reservations and then move to reform it later after a new president is inaugurated.

Eulogy by Abraham Lincoln on George Washington Found

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Seventy-eight years ago tomorrow, in Springfield, Ill., where his tomb is now a shrine before which a nation bows in reverence, young Abraham Lincoln paid tribute to George Washington. The words he uttered there, perhaps as eloquent as his world famed Gettysburg address, have been lost for three-quarters of a century in the pages of a country newspaper hidden away in the files of the Congressional library. They were brought to light to be given to the world for the first time almost on the eve of another birthday of the first president.

"This is the one hundred and tenth anniversary of the birthday of Washington," he said. "We are met to celebrate this day. Washington is the mightiest name on earth—long since mightiest in the cause of civil liberty; still mightiest in moral reformation. On that name an eulogy is expected. It cannot be. To add brightness to the sun or glory to the name of Washington is alike impossible. Let none attempt it. In solemn awe pronounce the name and in its naked, deathless splendor, leave it shining on."

The text of this unknown example of Lincoln's eloquence was found in Washington by Lucien High Alexander of Philadelphia, who gave it to the Associated Press today. An account of the ceremony at which Lincoln spoke was contained in the copy of the Sangamon Journal published at Springfield on February 25, 1842, and the tribute to Washington was the final paragraph of an address upon another subject and the address in full was published in the journal of March 26.

Mr. Alexander, a student of Lincoln, came upon the unknown address while on historical research work. He declared that in his judgment it is destined in the years to come to be read or recorded at virtually every celebration of Washington's birthday the country over.

2 MEN ARE DEAD IN GUSHER BLAZE

Driller and Tool Dresser Burned to Death Near Jennings.

LOSS OF OIL IS HEAVY

Total Damage at Slick-Jones Well on Prairie Lease Is Close to $100,000.

JENNINGS, Okla., Feb. 21.—Two men were burned to death and thousands of dollars in oil consumed when the Slick-Jones oil gusher near this city burst into flames early this morning.

Caught in the flood of burning oil ignited by sparks from a nearby forge where tools were being repaired and whirred, John Stout, 40 years old, and Cyril Schram, 27 years old, driller and tool dresser, respectively, were unable to escape from the first pit. Men working nearby watched them burn to death without being able to approach them.

The flaming oil from the gusher ignited in turn the adjoining storage tank containing 55,000 barrels of crude oil. This tank was still burning at a late hour this afternoon.

Total damage could not be estimated today, but it is expected to be close to $100,000.

Stout's wife and two children living at Oilton, Okla., Schram leaving only a child, his wife having died two years ago. His home is at Jennings.

The well was No. 3 on a Prairie lease located on 34-29-7, about two and one-half miles from Oilton. The well was drilled in ten days and was making close to 2,000 barrels a day when the fire occurred.

WIFE KILLED IN CROWD

W. C. Barnes Shoots Mate at Crowded Corner and Is Placed in Jail.

DESERTION IS CLAIMED

PAWFURCA, Feb. 21.—The green-eyed monster was responsible for two tragic deaths here today.

William McGraw, a stockman, residing on the outskirts of Bigheart, died here this morning from wounds received last night when he was fired on while seated in the home of his former wife, Mrs. Tom Glendinning. He was seated near a window, and 25 shot struck him in the face. At the time he was shot he was holding in his arms the infant child of Mrs. Glendinning, and a small boy was seated on the arm of his chair.

The authorities at Bigheart and Pawhuska were immediately advised of the shooting and McGraw was rushed to a hospital here when it was seen that his condition was dangerous. He was operated upon, but on account of the great loss of blood could not rally and died about daylight.

The second tragedy occurred at the corner of East Main and South Osage streets here, the busiest corners of Pawhuska, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, when the streets were crowded with people.

A woman started to enter a taxicab, and just as the driver was closing the door a man darted forward and began shooting at her. The woman screamed, arose in the car, opened the door and started towards the man. She had been shot twice as she reached the sidewalk, collapsing in front of him. His then struck her on the forehead and fired two more shots into her quivering body. Death was almost instantaneous.

and deputy sheriff rushed forward, and seeing them approach, the man raised both hands, with his smoking gun pointed to the sky. He was quickly disarmed and hurried to the county jail for fear that the crowd might attempt to lynch him.

At the jail the man gave his name as W. C. Barnes and occupation as laborer. He said his wife was attempting to flee with her baby and children for a man at Wynona.

He declined to make any further comment.

The police learned that Barnes had six children, the eldest 15 and the youngest 3, who is said to be at a Oklahoma City hospital, sent there to have a leg amputated.

Bloodhounds were sent to the scene of the McGraw shooting by P. J. Hayes, detective of Tulsa, and 400 yards from the Glendinning home the dogs took up a trail which led to an abandoned home, identified as belonging to Dr. Tom Glendinning, divorced husband of Mrs. Glendinning. The dogs then kept on and trailed to the home of Sured Spurgeon, where McGraw said he had taken supper at a children's night, and then to a house where Glendinning was staying. Both men were then arrested and charged with the shooting.

Investigation leads officers to believe that jealousy was the cause. Both McGraw and Glendinning had been married to Mrs. Glendinning, and both had children by her. After she and Glendinning separated Mrs. McGraw and McGraw and the woman made up and were about to be married again.

Two light oil pipe lines, one to the lakes and the other to the gulf. This is the answer of the executive committee of the Western Petroleum Refiners association to the final report from Clifford Thorne, commerce counsel, that another advance in fuel rates is inevitable.

The meeting was held in Kansas City on Friday when this action was decided upon and a committee organized to undertake the gigantic task.

Pat. Hally, president of the association, announced to the senate beforehand his intention to go over to the reservationists. Having become convinced that ratification of the treaty was a prime necessity, he said he was ready to vote "for any reservation or amendment that will ratify this treaty."

"We will vote our own convictions and not those of the president," he said, "we will have a treaty."

TEACHERS ASK MORE

Proposed Amendments Drafted—Wilson Carries Day Against Asking for Unlimited Levy.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Feb. 21.—With the adoption of the six proposed amendments to the constitution by voters in Oklahoma, the Oklahoma Education association convention adjourned here today shortly after noon. The amendments were read by W. C. Canterbury, secretary of the association, and passed with little discussion.

An address by Walter Sargent, professor of art education at the University of Chicago, made the closing hours of the convention.

"Sweeping with him the entire assemblage of teachers who packed the high school auditorium during the morning session, R. H. Wilson, state superintendent of public instruction, outlined between storms of applause, a plan for initiative legislation to obtain an additional $-mill blanket levy for educational purposes.

Wilson quashed the "unlimited levy" and "action from the special session" groups which were finding additional money for the state early in the day by telling the convention "Governor Robertson will be for you when he understands. Do not insist upon his submitting this matter to the special session unless he thinks it advisable. Go home and get the population of the state on your side. He will think it advisable if the people are on your side."

"I am for the state-wide 'millage' tax, which when submitted to the people will carry two to one," said Mr. Wilson. "If the legislature does not act for you I will submit it to the people myself," he concluded.

Declaring that the unlimited levy proposal will not carry and that it is not suitable because only one-third of the districts need it, Superintendent Wilson said:

"The six-mill additional levy would double the funds now available. Funds are seriously handicapped by not being able to contract with teachers, or make definite promises, until after the annual election."
