

GUN MAN AVOIDS POLICE DRAGNET

Hi-Jacker Who Shot W. C. Meacham Still Free After Search.

DETECTIVE IMPROVED

Wounded Officer Has Chance of Recovery; Statement to Assist Capture.

Police have been combing the city since early yesterday morning in a search for the hi-jacker who shot and seriously wounded W. C. Meacham, city detective, early Tuesday night at Main and Archer streets, but without success.

County Attorney Thomas I. Munroe visited the hospital late yesterday evening but was unable to obtain a statement from Meacham as to the identity of the man who fired the shot. Munroe said that he will visit Meacham again this afternoon, and since the man's chances of recovery are good, a statement would be only a safeguard for the county attorney's office in case police fail to identify any suspects who might be arrested.

Meacham rested easily at the hospital, it was reported, and his chances of recovery appeared last night to be better than was at first feared.

Hunt Relatives of Dead Men in Tulsa

Two telegrams were received by the police department yesterday. Both were asking aid in locating relatives. The first message was from Mackayton, Mich. It said that W. M. Weatherford was found dead there. He has a sister here and was himself known here, according to the telegram. The police so far have been unable to locate either his sister or anyone who knew Weatherford. The other telegram was from Joplin. It requested that J. B. Houck be notified of the death of Vanderpool from this city to a funeral to be held at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. The message was signed by O. A. Singleton. No trace of J. B. Houck can be found.

SHOT SELF ON CAR AFLAME

Alleged Incompetent Fires Box Car Home and Took Own Life.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 2.—Mrs. Anna A. Bludell, wife of a Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway employe, this afternoon barricaded herself on their box car home when deputy sheriffs went to take her into custody on charges of mental incompetency, set fire to the car and killed herself by firing a bullet through the brain. The fire department was called and extinguished the flames. The woman's body was not burned. A wallet containing $3,000 which the husband said his wife had in the home was not found.

WORK IS REMEDY BANKER BELIEVES

John Fletcher Says Greater Production Needed; Not Investigations.

KANSAS CITY, June 2.—The remedy for the high cost of living to which he ascribed present industrial unrest is greater production, John Fletcher, vice president of the Fort Dearborn National bank, Chicago, said, speaking on "The Business Outlook" before the 13th annual convention of The National Association of Real Estate boards, which convened here today.

"Get to work," Mr. Fletcher said. "No amount of hunting for the goat where there is no goat—no matter how many congressional investigations—will correct things. Get to work."

The greatest menace the United States faces today is the agricultural situation, he said.

Associating the labor unrest with crop shortage, Mr. Fletcher said he believed labor, in its manner of protest against the high cost of living, was sincerely doing what it believed right.

The immediate creation of agencies in each urban community to prepare and distribute educational matter "revealing the necessity for maximum production" and the turning of the advertising brains of the country to selling "production" for a period, until the over-sold condition of "products" is corrected, was the remedy Mr. Fletcher offered for the general economic situation.

Speaking on the attitude of business toward labor, he said, business had learned that it can no more thrive automatically "than can a kaiser or czar."

"I don't believe it does any good to go without eggs for a month or wear old shoes, particularly when the preaching of such doctrines usually is done over banquets costing $2 a plate and by men who spend $200 to $400 to ship their automobiles to California," he said.

Grant Request of Dying Girl to Marry Man Who Shot Her

CHICAGO, June 2.—Under guard of policemen, Viola Carpenter and Robert M. Taylor were married late Tuesday night in a hospital where the girl was dying, a victim of Taylor's revolver marksmanship. After the strange ceremony Taylor was returned to his cell in a police station and three hours later his bride was dead.

The two met in Akron, Ohio, two years ago, after Viola had left her home at Cedarville, Ind., to look for work there. They fell in love and lived together as man and wife, finally coming to Chicago. Last Thursday Viola was shot in the apartment where they were living. She told the police she had shot herself accidentally, but Taylor finally admitted he had done the shooting, that it was accidental. He was lodged in jail.

Knowing that she was dying, Viola last night said that it was her last wish that she and Taylor be married. The police consented and Taylor was brought to her bedside, bringing with him a marriage license he had obtained several weeks ago.

"Viola always wanted a marriage ceremony," he explained. "I always intended to marry her, but kept putting it off. A priest was sent for, then Taylor sobbing this country to teach people how to buy. There seems to be a sort of psychological notion that the greatest economy lies in buying the highest priced things."

"The future," he said in conclusion, "does not depend on the government of the United States. It depends on the business men of the United States."

knelt beside the bed and took Viola's hand in his. "Do you take this man to be your lawful husband?" began the priest. "I do," answered Viola with great effort and in a voice scarcely audible. "I do," sobbed Taylor. "Then I pronounce you man and wife."

The two embraced. The hardened policemen turned away to hide their tears. The priest administered the sacrament of extreme unction. "Good bye, dear husband," "Good bye, dear wife," and Taylor was led away. Three hours later the news of Viola's death was brought to him.

RE-PAVE TERRACE DRIVE

City Will Replace Old Pavement With New for Residents.

After a tour of inspection over Terrace Drive at the request of property owners in the vicinity yesterday afternoon, City Commissioners C. S. Younkman, O. A. Steiner, City Attorney Frank Duncan and City Engineer C. E. Griggs, reported the pavement on the drive to be in very bad condition, and announced that it would be repaved by the city at the expense of the property owners.

Terrace Drive was paved first by private contract before the addition was taken into the city. Work of taking up the old paving will be begun as soon as possible.

GOVERNOR IS TULSA GUEST

He and His Family Will Be at the Ketchum (Y) Several Days.

Gov. and Mrs. J. B. A. Robertson and children, Miss Olive and Brooks Robertson, will arrive in Tulsa on June 4, to remain through the tenth and will be guests of Judge and Mrs. Paul S. Riddle at the Ketchum hotel. The visit of the governor and his family is purely social.

It is stated authoritatively that Governor Robertson intends to spend a great portion of the month of June visiting different points in the state that the people may meet him and his family other than in an official vein. Their Tulsa hosts are planning to entertain them informally and affairs will be arranged for the young members of the family to the school and college set.

CLAIM OIL WASN'T DELIVERED

Post Power Co. Sues for $32,228 on Alleged Breach of Contract.

Damages of $32,228 were asked in district court yesterday by the Post-Texas Power company against the Magna Oil & Refining Co., in which it alleged the latter failed to deliver fuel oil to the power company under a contract dated September 1, 1919.

The power company claims it contracted for the oil to be delivered in consignments of four tank cars a week for six months, and that the Magna company in violation of this contract has refused to carry out the agreement after delivering oil for five months.

Presenting a Specially Priced Suit Collection—$34.75

—Vandever's

—There have been many price readjustments in the New York suit market recently and this suit collection is a reflection of lowered prices, both in the cost of materials and the final show room prices.

—Typical as they are of the latest design and style motifs such as novel effects in inverted pleats and pin tucks, belts, pockets and collars, they nevertheless are lower by many dollars than the prices we fully expected to have to place on their price tickets.

—Practically every suit in the group of thirty is of navy serge; just the kind for traveling and street wear.

—At the price of $34.75 every suit represents a saving of more than half.

—On sale Thursday.

—Suit section, third floor.
