Mrs. Louise Clinton, 63, Found Dead in Home Here Yesterday.

HEALTH WAS FAILING

Leaves Three Sons and One Daughter, All Well-Known Tulsans.

Mrs. Louise Clinton, mother of Dr. Fred R. Clinton, Paul and Lee Clinton, and Mrs. J. H. McBirney, was found dead in bed, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at her home, 118 South Houston avenue.

Mrs. Clinton had been ill for the past two weeks, and had been able to be up only the last few days. When seen Sunday night, she seemed to be much improved in health.

Mrs. Clinton was one of the pioneers of Tulsa, having lived near here all her life. She was born near Kankakee, in October, 1857. She was educated at the Wesleyan Mission, Wealaka, Okla. Before her marriage to Charles Clinton, her name was Louise Atkins. She is survived by one brother, Robert Atkins, who lives in Red Fork. Mrs. Clinton lived in Red Fork 30 years, and moved to Tulsa 12 years ago. Her husband died 30 years ago.

Mrs. Clinton had been a member of the Presbyterian church since childhood, and always took an active interest in church work. She was greatly interested in the work of Kendall college, and displayed special interest in young men working their way through college. She often had groups of these young men as dinner guests in her home and spent many hours telling them of pioneer days in Oklahoma, and offering them assistance and encouragement in their college work. Mrs. Clinton attended almost every rental at the college.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.
