Workers Flocking to State Responsible for Surplus Says Connally

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19.—Claude Connally, state labor commissioner, said this afternoon that unemployment complained of in other parts of the country has reached Oklahoma. Although the labor surplus is not so large as it once was, he said it has come into existence definitely in many parts of the state.

Connally said that the greatest surplus of labor in the state, with Oklahoma City holding almost a balance between supply and demand, is in the country. "I do not think the surplus is so much the result of laborers being laid off or work being suspended by Oklahoma as it is the result of workers who were discharged elsewhere coming here for employment."

Illinois River Fish Bite Good in Chilly Weather This Fall

Special to The World. TALLUQUAH, Nov. 19.—Bass fishing is said to be very satisfactory at this time. Several fishermen who have been out on the banks of the Illinois river have caught fine strings of bass of good size. It is used to be thought that fish would not bite when the summer season was ended and rods and lines were laid away until the coming of next spring and summer seasons.
