

STOP REPRISALS, ASQUITH DEMANDS

Opposition Party in Commons Attacks British Irish Policy

PACIFICATION IS URGED

Independent, Liberal and Labor Elements All Support Move Against Government

LONDON, Nov. 24.—In his speech on the Irish situation in the house of commons today, Sir Hamar Greenwood, the chief secretary for Ireland, said detailed plans for the destruction of a large power house in Manchester and docks in Liverpool, had been discovered, the Liverpool plans involving use of 800 pounds of high explosive gelignite at 21 points.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The eagerly awaited debate in the house of commons on the Irish question was inaugurated this afternoon when former Premier Asquith, leader of the opposition moved his resolution, expressing abhorrence of the recent Dublin assassinations, condemnation of reprisals and urging the taking of immediate steps to bring about Irish pacification.

The motion was a composition resolution, combining the independent liberal and labor motions, and sponsored by Mr. Asquith, Donald MacLean and Arthur Henderson.

Mr. Asquith, amplifying the subject set forth in the resolution, condemned what he termed the "government's policy of reprisals, which he said had driven moderate nationalist opinion in Ireland into an attitude of sympathy with, at least of passive indifference to, anarchy action."

The former premier declared there was only one way for escape and that the first step lay with the government. This, he said, was to discontinue the reprisals.

He believed, he said, that an overwhelming majority of the Irish people and of the crown forces had no sympathy with reprisals.

It was difficult, said Mr. Asquith to speak with restraint of Sunday's assassinations in Dublin.

"They were cruel, cold-blooded murder," he said, "and can only have been the work of men who have lost all sense of humanity and honor. The very gravity of such crimes as these—I am afraid it is a mistake to say they are decreasing—makes it all the more necessary that the executive should be able to encounter them with a clear front and clean hands."

Sir Hamar Greenwood, the chief secretary for Ireland, was loudly cheered on rising to answer Mr. Asquith.

"The vast majority of the people of Ireland are not in favor of murder," he said. "They want peace and they are getting peace, because the forces of the crown are breaking the terror."

Sir Hamar declared the majority of the Irish people were on the best of terms with the soldiers and police. "The murder gang in Ireland," he continued, "issues a document known as the Irish Republican Bulletin and then the murder gang send the bulletin to persons in England and to newspapers in England. Some of them publish it. What amazes me is that the London Liberal federation has actually used the bulletin and circulated it with comment, except the request to display it prominently wherever possible."

7 Million in Bonuses for Ford's Employees Written for This Year

DETROIT, Nov. 24.—Bonus checks aggregating more than $7,000,000 for employees of the Ford Motor company are now being written and their distribution will start January next, according to announcement this morning by Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Motor company.

Mr. Ford also announced a forthcoming extra 3 per cent for the six months ending December 31, on Ford investment certificates held by employees of the company.

This Mr. Ford said, is in addition to the guaranteed 6 per cent. He added that 3 per cent had been paid July 31 last, making a total of 14 per cent on the certificates for 1920.

Mr. Ford's statement was made, it was announced, to correct what he said was an erroneous report of testimony by S. S. Marquis, director of the Ford educational department before Judge Alschuler in Chicago yesterday, to the effect that the recent reductions in the price of Ford cars had resulted in the bonus to employees being practically cut off.

The statement that 6,000 men of the Detroit force had quit work with the last 30 days was correct, it was said at the executive offices of the company, here, but that the men had left voluntarily, and that the majority of the remaining employees had made it unnecessary to replace them.

The Purpose of "Earthbound" Told by Its Author, Basil King

Basil King, author of "Earthbound" which opens tonight at the Majestic Theater beginning Sunday, herein tells the purpose of his extraordinary literary effort.

"The playwright and the novelist are under the moral disadvantage of a tendency to view all their experiences as 'copy.' Talking with a woman-writer on this subject she confessed to me that while going through the agonies of an unhappy love affair she caught herself saying, 'this is my copy.' I should not be so materialistic, I should not be so 'copy' and 'copy'." So it has always been with me and my meditations, speculations and cogitations. While primarily for my own benefit, the 'invent-telling' instinct has seen them chiefly as elements of drama.

In this way the conclusions reached through years of dwelling on the problems involved in what we call a future life were bound, as far as I am concerned, to work themselves out sometime in some such form as "Earthbound." This would come about for the simple reason that the dramatic is my natural method of expression. It is not that I have a lesson to teach, or suggestion to make along the lines of "uplift." It is only that the mouth speaketh out of the heart, and every heart is occupied with its own particular angle toward life.

"To me this is the great composite beauty of all art. It allows a place for everyone; it accepts every contribution and makes use of it. It is far more catholic than the artist, who while clinging to his own point of view, is generally impatient of another man's. But no one artist, or no million artists, can ever express the universal; though all artists working together through all the ages may approximately reach this goal. Rex Beach, writing of out-of-door action, H. G. Wells of sociological complexities, and Henry James of the subtlest workings of the mind, are all builders on the same temple, as diverse from each other as the bricklayer, the carpenter, and the painter, but all essential to the whole.

"I claim the privilege, therefore, of dealing with aspects of life that are aspects of life simply because they are aspects of life, without being called didactic. The moral part of man is as much a part of man as is the amorous. His story can be told as easily from the point of view of morals as from that of passions. Though passions and morals are knit into the same texture they are distinct from each other as the strands in a braid. Neither can be followed without the other, and yet the limitations of drama compel us to select one thing or taking the first place. In other words you can make the morals illustrate the passions, or you can make the passions illustrate the morals, even though you must deal with both. In neither case need you transcend the axiom that 'the play's the thing.'"

"I wish I could underscore the fact that the play and nothing else but the play is the 'thing' in 'Earthbound.' It is surely a work of the imagination. It has no message to deliver beyond the message inherent in any view of life in which there is a basis of fundamental truth. It has no theory to prove, no doctrine to establish, nothing in the way of psychic propaganda. It tells the story and does nothing more.

Should the spectator see something more in it than would be his own business. I cannot help the working of his mind. My duty is to give the play and let him do the thinking. That thinking may judge.

CUERO IS ONE PEEVED BURG

Angry Over Turkey Fight on White House Lawn

CUERO, Texas, Nov. 24.—Indignation was expressed here today over the reported defeat of the Cuero white house turkey by that sent from Kentucky, in a battle on the white house lawn yesterday.

"Cuero's turkey was selected for its tenderness, not fighting qualities," said Ernest Harrold, one of the committee which sent President Wilson the Cuero turkey. "If a fighting bird is wanted Cuero can send the white house a gobbler which will vanquish any two birds Kentucky can produce, just as quickly as Jack Dempsey could dispose of two lightweight."

Bolling Will Answer Sands' Bribe Charges

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Nov. 24.—R. Wilmer Bolling, brother-in-law of President Wilson will be given an opportunity to deny charges of bribery made against him by Tucker K. Sands when the public committee investigating the shipping board resumed its sessions in New York on Friday, Congressman Joseph Walsh, chairman, announced today.

In writing Walsh asking for a hearing, Bolling said: "The charge against me is an attempt of an embittered man to destroy my reputation and standing in the community."

Mild Havana at Its Best

If we are prejudiced in favor of El Producto, so are the thousands of men who smoke it. And many a smoker praises this cigar far more highly than we would ever dare.

But this much we can say:

El Producto is a good cigar because El Producto's blend was originated to meet that happy medium where mildness and richness of flavor join. It was the first aim of the originator to produce a cigar that would give real enjoyment regardless of price. It was later that ways and means were discovered for placing this cigar on the market at a price that has made El Producto's present tremendous demand possible.

Today, in whatever shape or size you prefer, at prices ranging from 2 for 25c to 30c, you may enjoy that original El Producto blend that can't be copied.

Good Havana blended to bring out the best that it has to offer in a flowless shade-grown wrapper.
