

HARDING KINSMAN INSISTS HE'S O. K.

Young Everett Denies
That He's an Impostor
Out for the Coin

NOT AT ALL WORRIED

Everything Coming Out Right in the End He Says to Interviewing Scribes

CHICAGO, April 4.—Despite the fact that government officials by their own statements plan his speedy indictment as an impostor, Everett Harding, "cousin of President Warren G. Harding and brother of Pearl Harding," the "white house baby," today stoutly maintained his innocence of any plot and insisted that Harding is really his cousin.

Behind the bars in a little jail at Woodstock, Ill., close by Chicago, Harding points with pride to a newspaper man to the fact that a picture of the president, inscribed to "Everett Harding with a kinship's best wishes," and signed a kinship's best wishes, "and signed a kinship's best wishes," hangs on the wall of his Chicago home.

"I don't want to talk fully until I see my attorney," Everett Harding said today, "but everything's coming out all right I know."

"Doesn't blame 'Kinsman'?" "I don't think I blame President Harding for this. He has nothing to do with it. He has acknowledged that and I know he wouldn't turn on me. Just look at the photograph I've got home and letters."

Harding does not hesitate to place the blame for his present predicament on club men and others who thought they saw a chance to get "in" with him.

"I didn't go to them with any proposition," he insists. "They came to me and they came in flocks. I couldn't get rid of them."

Friends Tried to Use Him.
"That special car we had to Washington, I didn't order that. That train was ordered by a man named Murray who thought, as did all the others, that they were going to get good jobs."

"When it's all cleared up you will find these people were trying to use me and not that I was trying to use them."

Little Pearl Harding, who was to be the "white house baby," and spend her future with President and Mrs. Harding in Washington, blushed shyly when she was questioned on the question.

"I cried a lot at first," she said, "but I guess I like my own mother and my home best, after all."

The United States district attorney's office today announced that a special effort would be made tomorrow to hurry an indictment against Harding on the charge of impersonating a federal officer. The grand jury meets tomorrow.

It now appears that the guests on the Washington trip will have to pay for their own fares or provide the expense of the trip as the railroad which took the special to Washington, today asked the United States secret service to furnish it a list of the guests.

Once Held Demented.
Investigation today by secret service agents of the hectic career of Everett Harding disclosed that on June 1, 1920, the young man was adjudged a victim of "dementia praecox katonia." This was during the height of his activity in behalf of Senator Harding's candidacy for the presidency.

The examination to determine Harding's mental condition was made after he had been arraigned in municipal court here on a charge of jumping a hotel bill. The case finally was dismissed for lack of prosecution.

Mrs. Ephraim Harding, Everett's mother, said today that her son "has been ill in body and mind for four years," and that he "should be under a doctor's surveillance." She said that had checks passed by Everett were "due to boyish enthusiasm." He is 25 years old.

Independent Join in With Five Big Packers

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Twelve independent packers in St. Louis, 25 members of the Packers and Sausage Manufacturing association, and one Chicago cold storage company, today notified the department of labor that they desired to become parties to the terms of the packers' wage and working conditions agreement concluded last month with the five big packers in the Chicago district.

The notification means, officials said, that independent concerns as well as the five big packers have been brought into the agreement.

The St. Louis companies, while heretofore not actually parties to the Alschuler war-time agreement, have, under separate arrangements carried out all rulings made by Federal Judge Alschuler in packer labor disputes.

SAPULPA, April 4.—Voters of this city go to the polls Tuesday in a special election to vote on the proposition of $275,000 bond issue and the proposition for a ten-mill levy for maintenance of schools. Members of the school board by whom the special election was called, state they are confident of the passing of both propositions. ## Bad Luck and the Devil Pursued Him

"I don't think any one has had more bad luck and sickness than I have. In 1905 I had two ribs, an arm and collar bone broken in a railroad accident. Then I had pneumonia. After recovering I crossed a pasture when a bull chased me, tossed me over the fence and broke my right leg. In 1910 I had typhoid fever, since then severe stomach and liver trouble, which no medicine or doctor touched until two years ago I got a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which proved the first ray of light in thirteen years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Quaker Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.—Adv.
