TAHLEQUAH, Aug. 30.—(By wire.)—The annual convention of the Keetowah society, held here today, was a most interesting affair. Eight miles north of Tahlequah, the annual convention of the Keetowah society, held here today, was a most interesting affair. The convention was held in the evening, and the attendance was very large. The convention was held in the evening, and the attendance was very large.

History of the society bears out this remark. The Keetowah society, organized shortly before the war, had for its principal purpose the uniting of Cherokee full-bloods in fraternal bonds. Upon outbreak of war between the north and the south, however, the society allied with the federal government, and the full bloods joined the northern whites.

Consider Federal Claims. Several palefaces were noticed among the members gathered for the convention this year. Where before discussions of conventions had been of crops, of possible war, or wars past, the topic of discussion at this convention was that of claims already laid before the United States government.

Much of the discussion centered about the claims which were for compensation for land allotted to negroes and money paid to them per capita. Action was taken approving the filing of this claim.

The few survivors of the civil war period, hewed and white haired, bore little resemblance to the vigorous full bloods who followed Col. W. A. Phillips of Kansas through the Indian territory and along the border, during the 60's, the citizens declared. No more did the convention resemble the conventions of old, they said.

More than 4,000 full-bloods were numbered as fraternal citizens at one time, and families came from far corners of the nation to join the council, tribal records show. Many fat cattle, hogs, and sheep were killed, and numerous valuable presents exchanged. The government has put a ban on exchange of too valuable presents now, and much of the food is bought by the government. The American flag waved above the meeting place. The flag which the fraternity carried in the war, however, was burned in a recent firing of the custodian's house. The present flag is carefully preserved, however, and it is considered an honor to be named its custodian.

YUCATAN IS GONE INTO SOCIALISM

Peninsular State Completely in Control of Radical Elements

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 30.—Travelers returning here from the state of Yucatan describe that region as a socialist stronghold with radicalism strongly entrenched from the government down to the most minor office.

Felipe Carrillo, member of the federal chamber of deputies, whose radicalism recently led to attempts to oust him from the lower house, is the acknowledged leader and in all probability will be elected governor at the elections next fall.

Although the radicals are divided into two groups—the regular socialist party and the socialist party of the southeast, of which Carrillo is the head—they are united in the cause of communism. It is reported, and operates as the "league of resistance." Membership cards to this organization are printed on flaming red paper. Its letterheads are printed in red and it is said that all official documents are written with red ink.

The organization of socialists was begun in Yucatan in 1916 and has been growing steadily ever since. At various times the most extreme of the radicals have advocated a separatist movement from Mexico, but this has never been given serious consideration because Yucatan in no sense is self-sufficient.

Yucatan at the present time is in a bad state economically. There is practically no market for henequen, the chief product of the state, and the large growers have been forced to store their crops and are not repaying. The result is almost disastrous to the peasant class, which easily lends itself to the influence of the radicals who conduct their propaganda under the slogan of "help for the poor downtrodden Indian."

The economic situation has given rise to numerous instances of lawlessness and only recently a delegation of Yucatan journalists visited President Obregon to protest in person against the assumption of power of their number and to present other facts relative to a situation which they described as a "disgrace and a menace." The delegation promised that full investigation would be made.

Newspaper dispatches from that region frequently tell of clashes between radicals and the conservatives with occasional bloodshed.

In line with these facts is the report recently cabled officially to the government here that the communist congress which met in Moscow several months ago designated Yucatan as the headquarters for its propaganda work in Latin America.
