

IRISH PEACE IS NOW A REALITY

Southern Parliament Ratifies the Pact in Short Meeting

DE VALERA OPPOSES

Celtic Prisoners Are Freed From London Jail; Ulster Is Obdurate

DUBLIN, Jan. 14.—The Southern Ireland parliament today ratified the Irish peace treaty.

Erasmus de Valera, former president of the Irish republic, and his followers boycotted the meeting. The southern parliament created a provisional government to administer the affairs of all Ireland except Ulster, provision until the British parliament in London enacts a law officially creating the Irish free state.

Collins in New Cabinet.
The temporary provisional government, or administration committee, includes Michael Collins, minister of finance in the Irish republic, and chief of the Irish republican army; Alderman Cosgrave, E. J. Duggan, formerly chief of the Irish republic; Patrick Hogan, P. J. Keogh, Joseph MacDonagh, K. O'Higgins and John MacNeill, chairman of the daily council.

Before the meeting opened, it was reported that for diplomatic reasons Arthur Griffith, founder of the Irish free state, would not seek a place upon the commission and that MacNeill would be proposed as its head. It is likely that the life of the government would not extend over three weeks. As soon as the Westminster parliament convenes on January 21, steps will be taken to bring the Irish free state into being as rapidly as possible.

Opponents Easily Defeated.
The ratification of the Irish treaty by the southern parliament was more or less a formality. Its fate was decided by the daily council, one week ago today when the pact was ratified by a majority of seven votes. It had been stipulated in the British-Irish treaty, however, that parliament was to approve the pact in order to confirm the validity of the law which had created the parliament. Little time was lost in discussion of the treaty. The followers of the Collins-Griffith faction in the Irish free state had things all their own way.

RELFART, Jan. 14.—The unionist government of Ulster (north Ireland) is refusing to put the royal decree of amnesty into effect, but is sending Irish prisoners to southern Ireland for disposition for the British authorities there. LONDON, Jan. 14.—Thirty Irish prisoners, including the Rev. Father Dominic, Roman Catholic chaplain to the late Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, were released from an English prison on the Isle of Wight today and will return to Ireland at once. They were freed under the recent royal proclamation of amnesty. While MacSwiney was on hunger strike in Brixton prison the Rev. Father Dominic visited him and said mass every morning.

TURK LEADER IS SLAIN BY ENEMY

Mustapha Kemal Was More Powerful Than the Sultan

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish nationalist leader, has been murdered, says an Exchange Telegraph agency dispatch from Constantinople today, quoting a report from Ankara, the Turkish nationalist capital.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha was sent from Constantinople to Rivas as inspector of the northern military district of Anatolia in 1919. Since that time he became head of the Turkish nationalist army and virtual dictator of Turkey in Asia Minor after he went into Asia Minor to fight against the Turkish government at Constantinople. He was a powerful figure because of his disregard of Constantinople's demand for the resignation, tore up the armistice, which the Turks alleged the Greek occupation had violated, and began collecting groups of non-descript soldiers which he made into the Turkish nationalist army. With this army he had been resisting the Greek occupation of Asia Minor.

Mustapha Kemal's name is known throughout the near east, where he has been more powerful than the sultan coupled up in his palace at Constantinople.

BUSINESS HALTED BY REGULATIONS

Schwab Declares That Prosperity Cannot Overcome Rules

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—A call upon the American people to resist all the laws that repress initiative on the part of the men in charge of the railroads, restricting enterprise and dampening their enthusiasm was made tonight by Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem steel corporation, in addressing the Ohio society of New York.

He asked that this be done as a measure to contribute to the revival of prosperity in the United States, saying that "at every turn, railroad managers were hemmed in by rules, regulations and restrictions which deprived them of power to exercise their discretion, prevent the exercise of the sound business judgment which has grown out of their long experience and interfere with their doing acts which, if done, would contribute immeasurably to the restoration of prosperity."

Cut Out Hamstringing.
"You never make progress by hamstringing ability and initiative and by making every good man long if it was not prosperous itself," declared Mr. Schwab.

Saying he had been informed $1,000,000,000 would be required to put the transportation companies out of the nation's commercial requirements, Mr. Schwab termed an "impossible situation" that fact that more miles of track had been abandoned in the past two years than were built in that time, and probably more cars retired than installed.

"We cannot have prosperity, our country's commerce cannot go forward confidently unless our railroads are once again made prosperous, are put in a position to carry the transportation of the country and are able to attract the capital needed for them to perform their service as common carriers," he said.

"If we make our railroad regulations non-political, restore to our railroad managers the power to exercise ability and initiative and make them feel that the public is behind them with all its force and energy, the miracles that will be wrought in the promotion of prosperity will astonish the world."

AGED COUPLE BOTH SUICIDE

Misfortune and Ill Health Believed Cause of Drowning.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—Evidently burdened with misfortune and ill health a man of 60 and his wife of the same age, committed suicide by tying heavy bags of sand about their necks and plunging into the waters of Hempstead bay. That was the only explanation offered today by Coroner E. T. Neuf of Nassau county, for the discovery of two bodies in the mud at the bottom of the bay.

The woman's body was found by an eel fisherman yesterday; the man's corpse was found nearby under identical circumstances on December 25. Neither has been identified. It is believed they lived in New York City.

ALLIES TO PLACE HUNS UPON TRIAL

Boche Trial Is Declared Unsatisfactory; New Hearing Planned

PARIS, Jan. 14.—Surrender of the Germans charged with offenses in connection with the war to the allies for trial is expected in two resolutions adopted by the interallied commission on war crimes, made public today.

The resolutions were adopted by the commission at its session held here on January 6 and 7 in connection with instructions from the allied council in August.

The commission's first resolution finds the conduct of the recent trials at Leipzig unsatisfactory, except for a few cases, and that the procedure of the trials was not such as to elicit the truth. Those were acquittals where there should have been more convictions and light sentences instead of heavy, the resolution says.

The second resolution holds that it is useless to submit further cases for trial by the Leipzig court and recommends giving effect to article 128 of the treaty of Versailles providing for Germany's surrender to the allies of any identified persons charged with war offenses for trial by the allies.

The two resolutions, adopted unanimously by the commission were transmitted to the Cannes conference of the supreme council for consideration, but they were not acted upon because of the council's premature dissolution.

THE GREATEST QUESTION

"What Must I Do to Be Saved?"

Are men "saved" in 1922 the same way as in
