REAPPROACH RAIL HEADS FOR SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—Organizations not on strike got their attempts to mediate the strike of shopmen and other crafts in transportation service back before President Harding today and after a two and a half hour White House conference, declared they intended to reapproach railroad associations. L. E. Sheppard, president of the Order of Railroad Conductors and spokesman for the entire group, declared on leaving the White House that the striking unions would leave "their case in the hands" of himself and his associates, while as to the sporadic walkouts of brotherhood members in various parts of the country, he said "the president doesn't intend to make any issue against men who leave unsafe engines."

No Basis Indicated

Sheppard, like the other union officials refrained from specifically indicating what basis was being considered for further compromise attempts. The meeting with the president was arranged by Secretary of Labor Davis, after all the union chiefs including those on strike had been in one of their general executive sessions to consider policy. "It has been much the same story, we have been discussing the whole situation from top to bottom and now we are going to look for somebody to give us help in our mediation attempts," Sheppard declared. "That means some railroad executives not so zealous of their points as those we have seen. We shall talk over the matter of who might help with all the union officials tomorrow."

No Passengers Marooned

"The situation as to local walkouts of other classes is clear. It is all newspaper talk that people have been 'marooned' in the deserts. Our men have taken every train into the terminals and the passengers have been left at places where railroad men live. "All our discussions now relate to the fundamental rights of men who are on strike. The railroad labor
