By B. A. BRIDGEWATER

Frankie Osner, Tulsa's entrant in the bantamweight lists, won the right to battle Joe Lynch for the bantam championship by outpointing the sturdy Bobby Hughes, New Orleans veteran, in a fast-moving 12-round bout at convention hall last night. Osner and Hughes topped off a card of 42 rounds of the best boxing ever served up to a Tulsa crowd in the local arena, every contest going the limit and every one being jammed full of action that kept the spectators in an almost continuous uproar.

Osner's Best Show

Osner's remarkable cleverness and by far the best display of aggressiveness he ever showed in this city enabled him to triumph over his able and willing opponent. After Hughes had taken the lead in the early rounds with vicious body attack, Osner came back and fought up hill to victory. He made a great finish, several times in the late rounds, and the fans were in terrific exchanges. At that his margin was not large, as Hughes, a harder hitter, and just as busy, was after the wily Tulsa every minute.

It was as pretty a fight as anyone could wish to see. Action in every round, speed, cleverness and brains on both sides. Both boys in good condition, shedding damaging punishment without a tremor.

Decision Popular

Referee Ged Gahan's decision was popular with the crowd. Osner is one of the best liked glove slingers who ever exhibited his wares hereabouts, and the fans were glad that he fought his way to the right to tackle the hefty Lynch for the world's title.

There's no question about the match being on. Before last night's fight Lynch's manager had agreed to terms to meet the winner. Lynch will box twice in Oklahoma on his visit here, meeting Mutt McKee in Oklahoma City and a young one from the tit with Osner here. He plans several engagements while in the southwest—unless the unexpected should happen, and some younger relieve him. The Tulsa admirer of the tour is in progress.

Osner's ever-growing cleverness, his increased aggressiveness and his improved hitting qualities lead many of his Tulsa admirers to believe that he will be able to give Lynch a real contest. He's just as clever as Lynch, according to those who have seen him in action—may be a little more so. But the champion of course carries a much more deadly wallop. Anyway, Osner is a young and climbing battler, getting better with every contest, and it is such as he who sometimes spill the dope all over the shop and relieve champions of their laurels.

Battling Siki, Pancho Villa, Mickey Walker and others in recent weeks have demonstrated that no title is secure. Certainly Osner will be given as good a chance at Lynch's crown as was the black Scagalone at the wreath adorning the classic brow of the great Georges.

Hughes Opened Fast

Hughes opened up last night like he intended to make short work of Osner. He waded into Frankie viciously, jabbing first and then uncoiling a hard body attack. He had a shade the best of the round, and by the same tactic won the next two if there was any difference.

But Osner is not vulnerable in the stomach as he used to be. Not at all weakened, he hit his stride in the fourth and began cutting down Hughes' lead. He won four rounds in a row by good-sized margins, taking the van himself. Hughes again battered his way through in the eighth, but from then on Osner mixed it with him without suffering and gradually regained the verdict. Osner's left was just as effective as ever and his right had more steam to it. His hitting ability had improved to such an extent that he was able to swap punches without getting the worst of it.

Neither boy was in the slightest distress at the finish. Neither was marked by the finish. Not a drop of blood was shed. Throughout it simply was a clean-cut, rapid contest between two skilled and heady lads. And the most skilled of the two won.

Not a whit less interesting than the main event was the 10-round semi-windup between Joe (Kid) Spack, the "fighting newsboy" of Tulsa and Duke Duval, Patry Corrigan's Lawton bantam. It was a slashing battle from first going to last.

Decision Was Surprise

Referee Gahan crossed up the scribes and most of the ringside spectators when he awarded the decision to Duval. The sporting editors of both Tulsa papers scored Spack a winner by a wide margin, each giving the Tulsa lad seven rounds to Duval's three with none even. Duval was the aggressor and to the writer's opinion, that let him out. Spack landed by far the most blows and made Duval miss countless times.

Duval was the stronger of the two, but Spack by far the more clever. Duval outlasted Spack in the exchanges but didn't land as many blows in scarcely a nick. Spack's left was forever finding its way to Duval's jaw or body, while a good portion of Duval's punches were stopped by Spack's gloves and arms.

It's true Spack tried the most blood. But it's also true that Duval had little to do with that. Early in the first round he landed a nasty cut on Spack's nose and opened and it bled freely throughout.

Neither boy scored a knockout. The hardest blow of the fight was landed by Spack in the second round when he knocked Duval half way across the ring with a left hook to the chin. Many who have followed Spack through his whole ring career said after the fight that it was the best he ever fought.

Buck Rider Wins.
The first of the three 10-round bouts the first flyweight bout Tulsa has had, was still another thriller. Buck Rider, the 112-pound Champion Hall lad, won referee's Piosasi's decision over Battling Stewart of Joplin, by piling up a big lead in the first seven rounds. After being in distress many times Stewart made a great come-back in the ninth and tenth when Rider tired and seemed to have Buck unsteady. Stewart's fine showing in the late rounds led many fans to dispute the referee's ruling, but the writer saw the fight the same as the referee.

The second 10-rounder between Sailor Williams of Lawton and Johnny Hicks of Picher, was the only one-sided affair of the evening. Williams whipped Hicks in the first round and seemed to have him on the verge of a knockout. Then Williams appeared to slow up. It seemed he was letting Hicks stay. Then along about the sixth he opened up and tried to end it—but Hicks refused to be knocked out. Hicks took severe punishment in the last three rounds and finished samsy.

Sonson's Best Show.
The Tulsa left convention hall feeling that they had seen the best boxing show of the season—and it's doubtful if they'll witness a better one this winter.

Louis Newman, the matchmaker, is to be congratulated for bringing together a series of matches with the opponents so even. The crowd was rather slim, but such a card is a real boon to the boxing game and it goes without saying that the Magic City Athletic club is certain to prosper if it continues to dish out such appetizing courses to the followers of the game.

SAPULPA TAKES SHAWNEE ELEVEN INTO CAMP 37-3

Chances for Jonesmen to Repeat This Year Growing Brighter

With but one month of the 1922 gridiron season left on the calendar, Virgil Jones' Sapulpa high school gridiron champions tramped rough-shod over the fighting Shawnee aggregation 37 to 0 at Shawnee Friday afternoon and made a strong bid for the state championship again.

Although Jones has to take Enid and several other fast teams into camp in the near future, he established the fact that as far as comparative scores are concerned, Sapulpa has it over Oklahoma City 40 ways for Sunday in the championship race.

Sapulpa and Oklahoma City do not meet each other during the season and should neither team stand defeated for the season the championship honors will be even, but comparative scores gives the Sapulpans to date a big edge over the Capital City crew. Oklahoma City was lucky to nose out a 7-0 victory over Shawnee, while Sapulpa went through the Shawnee clan for a decided 37-3 count. Oklahoma City took a 30-0 game from the weak Okmulgee high team, while Sapulpa won from Pottawatomie by a score almost half again as large and after the first quarter, the periods were cut to 10 minutes to save the Okmulgeans from any more punishment than was necessary.

Sapulpa and Oklahoma City will have two more chances against each other. They both play Tulsa and they both mix with Enid.

With but three weeks to go, the grid season over the state is getting red hot, but most of the serious contenders for Sapulpa's crown are eliminated and but Oklahoma City and Sapulpa stand undefeated after the first lap of the November dash.

NAVY GRIDSTERS PUT WHITEWASH OVER PENN STATE

Middies Take Ragged Game 14 to 0 After Hard Fight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Penn State suffered its first football defeat today in three years, going down before the powerful Navy eleven. In marking up a 14-0 score, the midshipmen staged a come-back after their heavy defeat by the University of Pennsylvania last week and evened up the count following their defeat by Nittany Lions just a year ago.

In the first half of the game, both elevens got away to a ragged start, but after that each side displayed a dash and, at times, a brilliancy of play that furnished plenty of excitement.

Governor Sproul and members of the cabinet, as well as foreign diplomats, navy and army officers and others in official or private capacity, were on hand.

Lacked Punch.
Penn State twice carried a threat to the Navy in the first period, once with line charges and passes and again by recovering a fumble, but it lacked the punch to carry the ball over and on each occasion Penn's try at a field goal failed.

The game was fiercely fought, frequent penalties for offside and holding marring the stellar work of both teams. Both Penn State and the Navy found it difficult to pierce each other's lines with any degree of consistency and mixed forward and double passes with line plunges.

Scored in Second.
Navy scored its first touchdown in the second quarter when, after working the ball down the field to within striking distance of Penn State's goal line, Taylor caught a forward pass and raced over the goal line for the coveted touchdown.

Captain Conroy kicked a goal from the point and the score stood 7-0. Navy scored another touchdown in the third period when Krata, Penn State's diminutive half back, fumbled near his own goal line and Cullen recovered, racing across Penn State's line. Captain Conroy again booted the ball squarely between the goal posts, bringing the score to Navy 14, Penn State, 0.

Penn State staged a rally in the final quarter and uncovered a series of forward passes which netted several first downs but to no avail. Only in the first quarter did the Nittany Lions hold the Navy team even. After that the midshipmen outplayed Penn State in virtually every department of the game.

New Upheaval in Western Conference Looms Up Over Wisconsin-Illinois Game

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—A new upheaval in western conference football circles over the eligibility of players was seen today in the simultaneous announcement that two stars—Donald Murry of the University of Wisconsin and Allison R. Sugar of Illinois—had been barred.

The protest against Murry was made by Coach Zuppke of Illinois, and upon being notified that the player had been declared ineligible, Coach John R. Richards of Wisconsin, declared that he would protest five members of the Illinois squad.

The disturbance of Augur and Murry came as an echo of the famous Taylorville-Carlinville professional game of last fall which resulted in the virtual disruption of both the Notre Dame and Illinois football squads, all of the members of the two teams who took part in the contest being ruled out of further participation in conference athletics.

CRIMSON-CREAM CLAN READY FOR BARTLESVILLE

Tulsa Hi Plans to Take Easy Game at Lee Field Today

Tulsa high's Crimson and Cream football aggregation is all prepared and set for the Bartlesville grid again when they clash at Lee stadium this afternoon. Coach E. W. Rau announced last night that he would work a shift in his line-up in an effort to put the Bartlesville game on ice early in the season.

Rau has been putting his boys through a hard workout during the past week and has been getting the Tulsa lads ready for their Oklahoma City battle just a week hence and have been counting on the Bartlesville game for a good stiff workout.

The Tulsa game is Bartlesville's biggest battle and the visiting eleven has been working for weeks with the hopes of taking the props out from under the Crimson and Cream aggregation.

One or two shifts will be made in the regular line-up that will start the game for Tulsa. Rau announced yesterday Wheatley at left end, who has been sent in to every game of the season to bolster up some weak spot, will start in today's game. Following are the line-ups:

Tulsa	Pos.	Bartlesville

Richest Purse Ever Offered Is Set for Big Race

BALTIMORE, Nov. 3.—The richest purse ever offered for a horse race will be the prize at Pimlico Saturday afternoon provided 40 colts and fillies may be entered to race in the Pimlico futurity to which will be added the nomination fees of $7,050 from the 2-year-olds and the $30,000 of the Maryland Jockey club. The total purse will aggregate $117,050. This is the highest stake in the history of the sport in this country or abroad.

Since it is impossible to start 50 horses at one time unless they be started in two rows, the race will be run in two sections. The purse will be half of the main pool, or $58,525. The conditions of the race, as listed by the Maryland Jockey club, call for the division of $12,500 among the second, third and fourth horses to finish between the owner and breeder of the winner. This would make first money in each race worth $46,050. The second horse will receive $5,000, the third $2,500 and the fourth $1,000.

SOONERS CLASH WITH JAYHAWKS ON KANSAS GRID

Many Important Games Slated in Valley Race Today

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 3.—While the University of Nebraska Cornhuskers, prospective 1923 champions of the Missouri Valley conference, are playing Syracuse in the east tomorrow, football games with an important bearing on the runner-up position will be played in the valley. Four conference games are scheduled: Oklahoma-Kansas at Lawrence, Kansas Aggies-Missouri at Columbia, Ames-Drake at Des Moines and Washington-Grinnell at Grinnell.

Oklahoma and Kansas enter their annual contest on an even footing. If comparative scores are considered, The Kansas Aggies, having defeated Oklahoma to a 7 to 7 tie while K. U. and K. S. A. C. also tied 7 to 7. Each school ranks zero in the percentage column, having one and tied one conference game. The team which Coach Patsy Clark plans to pit against the Sooners has been considerably made over since last Saturday. Almost an entire new back field will face Coach Benny Owen's eleven. Oklahoma defeated Kansas last year, 24 to 7.

No direct dope exists on the Kansas Aggie-Tiger game. The Aggies have tied both Oklahoma and Kansas while Missouri has defeated Ames and in turn been defeated overwhelmingly by Nebraska. The game tomorrow will be close, if scores in former years may be regarded as an augury. The Aggies have won three times, tied once and lost twice in the six games with the Tigers. The two teams have been so evenly matched that in all but one game the kicking of one or the other decided the contest.

Drake, with two conference games won and none lost, is given a slight edge over Iowa state. Grinnell follows to the Bulldogs' 6-0 victory over K. U. and 31-7 defeat administered to Washington university as testimony of Drake's strength. Ames has defeated Washington and Grinnell by small scores and in turn has been beaten by Missouri, 2-6.

Washington university and Grinnell are evenly matched. Both teams have lost all conference games so far played.

Although the local enthusiasts have been banking on taking a victory from the Tulans, the local expert declared that the Tulsa squad surpassed expectations and that the game would probably be one of the toughest ever fought on an Arkansas gridiron.

Muldoon Slated To Fade Out of Fight Circles

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Regardless of which way the political cat may jump at the New York election on Tuesday, William Muldoon is to be headed as chairman of the state athletic commission, of which he has been a dictatorial head these several years.

That much is common gossip both the sporting and political circles along Broadway.

Of course, if Al Smith is elected governor, Muldoon's departure will be almost automatic. So will that of the remaining members of the commission. They are opposition's "men" and as such, could not be tolerated.

But even if Nathan L. Miller is returned to a gubernatorial chair at Albany, it is freely predicted that Muldoon's reign will end on the first of the new year. It is said the governor desires a younger man at the head of the commission.

Muldoon has made surprising decisions and stood by them, regardless of criticism of his decisions which have been many and varied.

Ames Wins Long Run.
AMES, Iowa, Nov. 3.—Ames defeated Nebraska university in a cross-country run here today, 15 to 40.
