

PETROVA'S LIFE LONG STRUGGLE

Comes Here Thursday in Her Own Play "The White Peacock"

The brilliant actress-author, Olga Petrova, who comes to the convention hall Thursday, matinee and night, in "The White Peacock," is essentially a modern woman very much like her own heroine, the heroine of her play. It is Madame Petrova's opinion that the independent, self-supporting woman is the woman of the future and with this in mind she has shaped her purposeful play, molding perhaps unconsciously, her heroine's ideals after her own. For indeed, the story of Madame Petrova's own life is that of the struggle of a true pioneer setting out to achieve the noblest things in life.

"The White Peacock," to be sure, is Olga Petrova's first play, but this does not mean that Petrova is a novice as a playwright or that she has given her stage and screen work its first place in her heart. The play's tardiness is the result of her ideals as a writer. That it is essential to be true to one's own self in writing, is the Petrova precept. When she sits down at her typewriter, for very early in life she learned that it was imperative to write as she liked and as she believed, while the necessity of winning bread and butter must be relegated to commercial pursuits.

Selecting writing as her first love, Olga Petrova began writing as a child, and ever since that time it has been her chief interest in life. Journalism was her first calling and she began her professional career as a reporter, the first woman on the staff of a London paper, at the salary of a pound a week—the munificent amount of $5 in American money. But in her reportorial capacity it was impossible to do what she believed. So her living must be earned in another way. The stage offered the first open door, not because she was stage-struck or desired fame, but because it promised larger salaries in the future in addition to an immediate living wage. Only in that way, she knew, would she some day be able to write in leisure and set exactly what she wished to, as she has now done in her first play, "The White Peacock."

JITNEY WRIT IS ASKED BY CITY

Underwood Seeks to Have
Temporary Injunction
Against City Halted

City Attorney J. J. Underwood returned Saturday morning from Oklahoma City, where he appeared before the supreme court and asked for a writ of prohibition against District Judge Redmond S. Cole to stay the temporary injunction issued by Judge Cole Thursday, preventing the city from enforcing the bus ordinance against jitney operators.

Underwood's application is to be heard by the state court at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

If the writ is granted jitneys will be prevented from operating until a final hearing can be had to determine the permanent status of jitneys in Tulsa. Even though the writ should not issue, this final hearing will be necessary.

The city's only recourse—except the drafting of a new bus ordinance, which does not contain the provisions found objectionable by Judge Cole—is to secure this writ if he expects to continue its fight against the jitneys. Underwood and other officials have declared emphatically they do not expect to discontinue their efforts.

If the writ is not obtained after the hearing Tuesday, jitneys may continue to operate until the final disposition of the case by the supreme court.

Greatest Dramatic Success
in Years Coming
December 8

"The Bat" by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood undoubtedly the greatest dramatic success in years, which Wagenhals and Kemper will present at the convention hall on December 8 is now making the second of what are undoubtedly the most spectacular tours of the country ever achieved by a play. Wagenhals and Kemper have spared nothing to make this tour of
