Manager Myers of the Metropolitan theatre wishes us to again remind the people who will attend "Babes in Toyland" this evening that the curtain rises at 8:15 sharp and to late comers it means a long wait in the cold foyer of the theatre until the first act is over.

Of the things that make for happiness, the love of books comes first. No matter how the world may have used us, sure solace lies there. The weary, toilsome day drags to its disheartening close, and both love and friendship have proved powerless to appreciate or understand, but in the quiet corner consolation can always be found. A single shelf, perhaps, suffices for one's few treasures, but who shall say it is not enough?—Myrtle Reed.

Society Throughout the State. Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Richardson of Hunter North Dakota are the proud possessors of a new 10 pound baby boy, that arrived at their home Sunday morning.

Married, on Sunday, March 18, 1906, by Rev. N. C. Hanson, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Nelson, Mr. N. P. Jensen to Miss Florence Payne. The groom is a prosperous farmer living southwest of Cooperstown and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Payne of Cooperstown.

At Cooperstown North Dakota Saturday March 17th, by Rev. O. D. Purington Miss Elvira Evinson of Hatton was wedded to J. M. Wassenberg of McHenry. Mr. Wassenberg is the proprietor of the McHenry Opera House and has been a resident there for a number of years. They returned to McHenry Monday and commenced keeping house in the suit of rooms which the groom has prepared over the opera house.

A wedding of a prominent Dakotan at Brainerd, Minnesota, March 14th was when Elmer Molneau of Larrea, N. D., and Miss Dora Wilson of Pillsbury, Minn. were married. Both parties are well and favorably known found their cost seems out of proportion to their cut and finish. They can be more economically compassed in the work-room at home, or by a low-priced but efficient dressmaker.

The rules to follow in the cutting and making of the shirt waist suits are few but imperative. The skirt must be circular, clearing the ground an inch and a half at least, two inches is better perhaps, but not an eighth inch. If desired one can make the skirt with a hip yoke to which the rest of the skirt is attached. Tucks and plaits can be used as the taste or material decide. The fit and the hang and the length are the really important parts. The waist belonging with this skirt is guided in its pattern by either tucks, plaits or gathers are the motif of the skirt.

If tucked the tucks extend from shoulder to belt line and quite across the front from arm to arm. Sometimes a yoke of plain cloth is used and the tucks or gathers spring from this just over the bust. The skirt sleeve with the deep cuff is the only style suitable for this costume, and a standing collar is the proper finish for the neck.

Next to the shirt waist for usefulness is the afternoon dress, or luncheon gown. When one wants to drop the useful but not put on the elaborate dress. For these pretty costumes the circular skirt is again in demand, but it is cut longer than for the shirt waist suit and is finished around the bottom with wide ruffles, or sometimes it has a deep French flounce fastened to a yoke, or it may be accordinian plaited.

These home gowns are usually of nun's veiling, albatross and soft wools of whatever name. The waist and sleeves match the skirt and the foundation does. They usually are cut away to show more or less elaborate chemisettes, and the sleeves reach only to the elbow, finishing in dressy undersleeves.

It must be noticed that the two costumes just described call for two distinct varieties of skirt and they must differ in cut and hang to be in keeping with their purpose, while the same pattern may be used for both. The afternoon skirt is circular like the walking skirt, but if to be used for afternoon it must be demure, demure and dressy—if for evening wear it must be very long, graceful and fluffy. The walking skirt as described above must be severe and simple and escape the ground.

In choosing and planning a skirt please keep in mind that the person to wear it must be studied most and the skirt itself—selecting for the stout person the long vertical lines and for the tall woman yokes and flounces to make dividing lines and to give breadth.

The colors shown this season in ribbons, silks, wools and velvets are enchanting and must prove invariably becoming. Old rose, raspberry red and shades of pink are very popular. Even broadcloth suits are being worn in these prevailing soft, pinkish tones.

There have been many predictions of a "purple" summer, and of course there will always be plenty of white frocks worn, but the beautiful and becoming colors which are a feature of the Spring goods can be no means be passed by. Some of these exquisite shades are in material suitable for evening wraps, and one leading New York house has a wonderful display of colored suits and evening wraps. These were shades of green and gray, gay coral color, and the popular Alice blue. The only drawback to this feast of color is the danger of the wrong shade being donned by the wrong coloring. The pale dull skin can safely choose the reseda and dull reds, and the rosy full face must be set above greys and greens.

A charming blue suit was particularly noticeable at this opening, the all were so lovely it was hard to select any one particular. It was of soft and silky but firm cloth, cut with plain circular skirt touching the floor. Three wide bands of blue velvet of exactly the same shade as the dress were laid in folds simulating tucks around the bottom of the skirt, one fold close to the floor, the others a foot's width apart. The waist a white taffeta, showing but little, however, under the blue bolero jacket, which had a blue velvet rever collar, narrow and rolling. The jacket was fastened by bands of the cloth and dull gold buttons. The sleeves were full and to the elbow, where they were met by the long-wristed white gloves. The girdle of the dress was of the blue cloth fastened by the same dull gold buttons as the bolero. Two of these buttons were on each sleeve holding back a little velvet cuff. The hat was a gray felt trimmed with blue chiffon and a blue and white wing. The costume was exceedingly attractive, being stylish as well as graceful. It could be used as a model for any color and almost any material.

The increased consumption of the waters of the Rio Grande on the American side has caused a general depression in and near the Mexican city of Juarez, because of the scarcity of water for irrigating the fields.

BABES IN TOYLAND. One of the most popular topical songs ever written is "I Can't Do That Sum", which Katherine Bell sings in "Babes in Toyland". Which appears at the Metropolitan tonight. The curtain time tonight is 8:15. Scarcely a week goes by that Miss Bell does not receive from some ambitious writer a verse or two with the request that it be added to the song, and this she frequently does. Should Miss Bell, however, sing all the verses that have been offered her, it would take most of the evening, and there would be no room for anything else in the performance. She figures that since she first commenced singing "I Can't Do That Sum" in "The Babes" she has sung over two hundred different verses.

World's Highest Garden. At a height of 6,000 feet, near the summit of the Petit St. Bernard, is situated Queen Margherita's Alpino garden, which is the highest garden in the world. It was started on a small scale nine years ago by Abbe Chonoux, who lives in a house nearby, and soon after the queen, who is an ardent Alpinist, visited it. Her majesty took a great interest in the scheme, and obtained Alpine plants and lichens from all parts of the world, many of which she planted herself.

King Edward's brother-in-law, the duke of Argyll, has enlarged his sphere of literary effort by writing a book of nonsense verse in the form of a long ballad. His first work, "The United States After the War," brought him to the notice of American readers. After serving as governor general of Canada he wrote a book descriptive of the dominion.

AMUSEMENTS

READY-MADE HOMES ARE ALWAYS IN DEMAND

People of democratic tastes, who like to "live in a house," but not in a lonesome one—solve the problem easily and to their profit by renting furnished rooms to pleasant people. Isn't it better to live in a good house, with a few lodgers who pay your entire rent for you a little toward your household expenses, than to live in a small apartment, alone, with expenses that grow harder and harder to meet? If you advertise PERSISTENTLY you may, at a nominal cost, keep these "READY-MADE HOMES" always tenanted by THE RIGHT KIND OF PEOPLE, and the somewhat bitter problem of HOW TO MAKE BOTH ENDS MEET will give you less concern. When you set aside a few rooms in your house as "ready-made homes" and begin to advertise them you will be surprised to find how many of the "nice sort" of folks live in furnished rooms—and you will be surprised to find out how easy a matter it is to wipe out the terrors of your own "rent day."

TO AMEND ELECTION LAW. Associated Press to The Evening Times. Austin, Texas, March 26.—Pursuant to the call of Governor Lanham the Texas state legislature assembled in extraordinary session today. The purpose of the session is to amend the general election law by providing means for determining definitely the votes which candidates for state and district offices shall receive in state and district political conventions, based upon the results of the primary elections held in the different counties of the state or of the district, as the case may be. The session is expected to be of short duration.

BOODLER SERVES HIS TIME. Associated Press to The Evening Times. Jefferson City, Mo., March 26.—The gates of the state penitentiary will be opened tomorrow for the release of another of the St. Louis boodlers. This is Henry Schmetter, whose two-year term, under the time allowed for good behavior, expires tonight. Edmund Bersch was the first one to get out, being liberated January 6, and two weeks later Charles J. Denny and Jerry Hartman were freed. This leaves in the prison Harry Faulkner, whose term will expire next year; Emil Hartman, who was given a seven-year sentence, and Julius Lehman, given six years.

ROCKEFELLER, JR., SAYS NO. Man-with-the-wig Did Not Come to See Little Grandchild.

New York, March 24.—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today denied the report that his father, president of the Standard Oil company, had come from Lakewood to New York last night to see his infant grandchild, son of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. It had been reported that Rockefeller, Sr., had evaded subpoena-servers who have been lying in wait for him for months in behalf of Attorney General Hadley of Missouri, and had paid a flying visit in his automobile to his son's home in West Fifty-fourth street. When the report reached John D. Rockefeller, Jr., today, he said there was not a word of truth in it.

TOWN LOTS AT WYE

On Picturesque Lake Upsilon
The Coming Summer Resort of the Northwest

WATER Clear as crystal, pure and fresh, fed by never failing mountain springs.

FISH In abundance and of splendid size. Muscallouge, Mountain Trout, Pickerel, Black Bass. The sportsman's Paradise.

The townsite of Wye extends for nearly two miles along the lake front. Just high enough to be dry, with a beautiful rolling surface, it is an ideal location for a summer resort. A natural amphitheatre, a race track made by nature's hand, a beautiful boat landing as though made by the gods for their amusement, are here. The entire townsite is covered with a heavy growth of young and vigorous timber. It is an ideal spot for a summer home where relaxation and recreation can combine.

It will be within a mile or two of the St. John extension of the Great Northern, and a spur into the townsite is almost a certainty. Lots are selling rapidly and a chance to get a location in this beautiful resort will soon be gone. They are cheap now because the owner wants to build a town with all conveniences rather than sell a few lots that will leave the owner more isolated than on the farm.

A PROPOSITION THAT WILL SURPRISE YOU.
THE CHANCE OF A LIFE TIME.
