Sentiment to be Incited.

Let reverence of law be breathed by every mother to the lisping babe that practices in her lap; let it be taught in the schools, seminaries and colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from pulpits and proclaimed in legislative halls and enforced in courts of justice; in short, let it become the political religion of the nation.

TROUBLE IN MEXICO.

A large number of Americans, and especially a large number from the middle west, will be interested in the recent agitation in Mexico in reference to the assaults likely to be made upon foreigners on the Mexican day of Independence, September 16. Of late years vast sums of money belonging to American capitalists have been invested in that country, and the greater portion of the modern development has been made with American capital.

These aggressive plans of their northern neighbors have irritated the slow going natives and have aroused in them a spirit of opposition to everything foreign. They were content to live their easy lazy life, depending in a large measure upon the willingness of nature to produce abundantly of the good they needed to keep them from starving. They could sleep and lounge the rest of life away content.

The American came with his hustle and his restless energy and the old life was gone. The great forests were cleared and converted into vast plantations. Railroads were built and factories were constructed for the conversion of the cane and other products into marketable produce. Not only were the opportunities of the natives for the securing of food reduced but their haughty pride was injured. The old ways were passing and in their place were those which were not theirs but the foreigners.

The growth of the anti-American sentiment is not spontaneous. It has developed gradually but none the less surely. The capture of American fishers and the incarceration of their crews was the first evidence that Mexican animosity had grown active instead of remaining in the passive state of former years. These incidents were followed by the mining massacre, and it in turn is succeeded by the public posting of circulars threatening Americans in Mexico with death if they remain in that country after a certain date.

one were the results of fertile imaginations.

It would have been a proper and at the same time a legal proceeding for an inquiry to have been made into the sanity of the accused for the purpose of determining whether or not he was mentally responsible for his acts when he committed the crime. But there would have been nothing extraordinary in that. Such a course could have been followed in the defense of any criminal.

The district attorney sought to make an investigation of this matter on his own responsibility, so that if such were true he could shape the prosecution to that end, and not send a man morally irresponsible to the electric chair or to prison for life.

Whether Thaw believed that because of the annoyance of his wife by White would justify him in taking the latter's life cannot be determined. There is a principle of common law well grounded in jurisprudence of England and this country as well, that if the husband shall unexpectedly find his wife in improper relations with another, he would be justified in killing the paramour on the grounds that he would lose all reason and caution.

But the Thaw case is entirely different. The husband who is now behind the bars for the murder of his hated rival, accepted the cast of mistress of the man he killed and must have known at the time he accepted her the relation which she had sustained to White. He can hardly claim then that his feelings were so outraged that he acted on impulse and committed the crime when justified passion ruled the mind.

Such being the law there can be no course other than a trial for murder the same as would be given any other man who had committed a similar offense.

If the circumstances surrounding the crime show that he killed White deliberately and premeditatedly, there is little hope that Thaw will escape the electric chair, or imprisonment for life. Every point of law will be used to save him but the facts are almost uncontrovertible and it seems that the conclusion can be drawn even at this time.

THE CROP AND ITS RESULTS. The reports of the crop prospects throughout the state, especially the wheat crop, indicate that unless something befalls it before it is ready for the reaper, the largest crop ever gathered in the state will be realized. It will have some drawbacks such as the extra quantity of straw, but the quality of the grain itself will be as good at least as the average year produces.

Stories of rust and the effects of a few hot days in scalding the grain have come from different parts of the state, and in some instances they have been true, but they do not have any perceptible effect upon the general conditions.

John Knauf, of Jamestown, candidate for the supreme bench, has an enviable record, and regardless of what a lot of "soreheads" may say against him, will be elected by an overwhelming majority next November.

Knows Whereof It Speaks. [Minot Reporter.] The Grand Forks Herald has an editorial in its Saturday paper headed "The Democratic Program." If there is any paper in the state that should be onto that that program is certainly the Herald should be the one, as it is closer to the democrats than any democratic paper in the state.

The Wall of the Pharisee. [Wahpeton Globe.] It is a dreary day for the country editor when the Grand Forks Herald don't come along about ten o'clock in the morning with a column or two of editorial lamentations about the "Gang" or something equally interesting. The Herald is a good deal like what a politician said about another, one time: "He's a blank blank, but then he's our blank blank."

The Culture Will Be There. [Wahpeton Globe.] On Tuesday August 7, bids for state printing will be received by the state printing commissioner. That week and lowly pure and holy Grand Forks publisher, with a 36 per cent duty proposition in his pocket, may be expected to present and walk off with some of the goods. The law governing printing contracts should be amended so that the maximum rate is cut about 25 to 50 per cent.

A Fitting Rebuke. [Cavalier Chronicle.] When you read about how the city of Devils Lake is spending money and turning out its money to bank. Senator H. C. Hansbrough, the cry about his unpopularity in his home city and county falls woefully flat. Some of those newspapers throughout the state which have been misleading or attempting to mislead the people as to Hansbrough, will now do well to duck their heads and haul in sail.

An Investigation Needed. [Cassel Chronicle.] Editor Winship, in his "stirring" address at the insurgent caucus at Jamestown, was careful not to "spit" that state printing commissioner. It is up to the next state legislature to investigate the public printing laws and if it is found that the law compelling all work to be done in the state is detrimental, it should be repealed. This law was passed when the men who are now at the head of insurgent movement were the "power behind the throne" in North Dakota state politics. That it was passed for the sole purpose of personal gain can be no question and from all accounts it has served its purpose. An investigation will do no harm even if it does no good.

Stories of the Hour. A Drawing Card. "Jim writes home," said the old man, "that he has drawn on me for $20 again."

In the Summertime. Scene—A country fair. First Fancy Cheesemaker—This weather is terrible for exhibiting cheeses. Why, they're actually walking in the rain.

Amusements. The Orpheum Co. The Living Flowers is the title of the most marvelous specimen of motion photography that has ever been produced. It is a hand colored film of the favorite illusion or trick kind.

Finger Crushed. Myer Gilbert, the hustling news boy for The Evening Times, received a badly bruised hand last evening by having the finger on that member caught in the cogs of the folder in the mailing room. The finger was badly lacerated but will not have to be amputated as was at first feared.

Administrators Named. In the matter of the estate of David J. Lemery, deceased, Judge Hassell today appointed a son, John A. Lemery, administrator. The estate comprises 240 acres of land near Inkster, value at about $10,000. There are eleven heirs, all sons and daughters.

A Mixed Marriage. Mrs. Mabel Robinson, a Saxon, has begun an action in the district court for divorce from Frank Robinson, African, on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment and desertion. They were married in Minneapolis ten years ago. The defendant is porter in the employ of the Great Northern. The couple lived in this city for a number of years, where they own some property. In his complaint the plaintiff asks the court to restrain the defendant from disposing of or selling this property.

Miss Nell Returns. Miss Buelah Nell of Ashland, Ore., formerly of Grand Forks, arrived on the coast train yesterday and expects to remain here for a few days. Her uncle, F. L. Williams and F. T. Root, also her grandfather, J. B. Mosette, all of this city. On her trip Miss Nell visited Portland, and the world-famous Mt. Shasta, having climbed that towering eminence to its summit and kissed the "Holy Cross" which is the "Mecca" of all tourists in that part of the country.

Man Arrested at Melnikoff Indicted for Crime by Roseau, Minn., Grand Jury. The grand jury of Roseau county, Minn., has returned an indictment against Alexander McKenzie, charging him with the murder of William Stuart at Wanaska, last December. McKenzie, it will be remembered, was arrested at Melnikoff, this county, in June by a Minnesota sheriff. He is firm in his statements of innocence and says that when he is put on the stand he will disclose the name and present address of the murderer, who is now hiding in Dakota.

MERRY CROW Morning Trains Bear Large Number of People to Minnesota Resorts. It was a merry, rollicking, fun-anticipating crowd that journeyed east over the Great Northern this morning, bound for the various Minnesota lakes and summer resorts, where so many Grand Forks people love to go for over-summer worship.

MCKENZIE INDICTED; HE KNOWS THE MURDERER. Andrew Foley of the St. Paul & Western Coal Co., who has headquarters in this city, is in for over Sunday from a trip over the state. Mr. Foley is of the opinion that there will be little change in the price of hard coal this winter; the same will stand at about $10 to $10.50. Soft coal, however, will be higher and scarcer. The prices for domestic soft coal are likely to be about $8.

Price Not Here. President Price of the Northern-Copper Country league, was expected today but has not put in an appearance.

Ball Game Tomorrow. A game has been arranged between the Browns and the Picketts to be played tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Married Today. Rev. J. M. Beadles this morning married L. R. Emlaw and Miss Marie Stramstead, both of Larimore. The groom is a railroad man and will make his home at the city named.

It at Pine City. Johnnie Haggerty, formerly with M. Stanchfield, is now at Pine City, Minn., where he is taking a rest and treatment for his health, which is not the best.

Back to Work. Alex McDonald, one of the popular salesmen at the M. Stanchfield store, is back from an extended trip to the lakes about Bemidji and Cass Lake. He has had a pleasant vacation and says that fishing is first class this year.

Gave Peace Bonds. John Fishman, yesterday arrested for threatening to do bodily harm to Max Rabonovitch, was arraigned late in the day before Judge Purcell and compelled to furnish a bond in the sum of $500 to insure that he keep the peace.

Stanch Going East. M. Stanchfield and son will start tomorrow evening for an extended trip east via the lakes. They will go to Duluth and thence by water to Buffalo. The trip will absent them for two or three weeks and the return will be made via Chicago and the twin cities.

Under Adversity. Judge Fisk has taken the Walhalla contest cases, which were yesterday argued and submitted to him, under advisement a few days. These are actions in which Judge Kneeshaw was disqualified from hearing. They involve the right to petty offices in the village of Walhalla.

No Inquest Held. It was decided that no inquest was necessary in the case of Paul Matthey, the man killed near the Great Northern depot at Fargo Friday morning. Further developments show that the one or more of the transient men who were not available, but the following are a few that were caught in passing: Miss Mamie DeCamp, Jack Thompson, Miss Etta Greenberg, mother and brother, Miss Maud Milne, Don McDonald, Miss Margaret Sullivan and Bert Swengel. This evening there will be another large outpouring. More than a score go to Lake Bemidji, but those named above will all visit at Maple Lake. Manager Al Logan of the Lakeside hotel has provided accommodation for a hundred transients, most of whom will be at this city.

CLEVER PICK POCKET. Operating at Fargo—Police Are Puzzled. There is at least one clever pick-pocket in the city and he is reaping a golden harvest. There are others who are not so clever but who are getting the money, says the Fargo Forum of last evening.

Some Good Horses. Exhibit at State Fair Complimented by Visitors. A striking fact in connection with the grand exhibit of draft horses at the state fair in Fargo, and one very freely commented upon by careful observers of the really enterprising features which meant so much to the success of the fair, was the exhibit of Percherons, Belgians and other distinguished breeds by the prominent breeders and importers of Barnes county—some of them also in the cattle classes. The services rendered the fair by Briggs & De Lancey, Conner & McFarland, White Bros., and S. Fletcher were to say the least, prominent and without their exhibits the horse barn would have lost much of its charm and attractiveness, as it was the largest and the most complete county that made the horse barn one of the very strong attractions and numerable the ladies have held their own with the men in passing through the building.

PERSONALS. John Doyle of Crookston will be an over Sunday visitor in the city. Jack Wideman, the well-known commercial traveler, is registered in for over Sunday. Miss Anna Nelson of Havana, N. D., one of the prominent music teachers of the state, is in the city the guest of friends. She will remain for a brief visit. Miss Buelah Nell of Ashland, Ore., formerly of Grand Forks, arrived on the coast train yesterday and expects to remain here for a few days. Her uncle, F. L. Williams and F. T. Root, also her grandfather, J. B. Mosette, all of this city. On her trip Miss Nell visited Portland, and the world-famous Mt. THE NORTHWEST'S GREATEST FAIR. Exposition Will be Greatest Event in Northwest—Equal to Coney Island. The Cash Carnival company will furnish the attractions at the Great Red River Valley exposition next week, will arrive in the city tomorrow and the work of setting up the score of shows will begin at once. While the carnival company within itself makes a great tented city, it is so thoroughly systematized that it can have everything in working order and ready for the entertainment of the public in a few hours after it reaches the grounds. When the sun sets on Monday evening it will see everything in readiness for the opening of the greatest exposition that was ever attempted in North Dakota or in fact in the northwest. It will simply be unsurpassable.

The thrilling and sensational exhibitions which will be open to the public every day are the same ones which are attracting thousands of visitors to the greatest pleasure resorts of the country, including Coney Island, and Shantley park at Pittsburgh, where forty-eight thousand people passed through the gates in one day to see exactly the same attraction which can be seen at the Great Red River Valley exposition next week.

As the time draws near for the closing of those who are managing the exhibit that the agricultural exhibit including the live stock will be equal if not greater than any ever made at the famous Minnesota state fair. The value of the exhibits is just being discovered by those who are managing the exhibit that the agricultural exhibit including the live stock will be equal if not greater than any ever made at the famous Minnesota state fair. At This Term. One of the cases to be tried at this term of the federal court at Fargo about which considerable interest has centered is that of Olaf Moen against the Great Northern in which plaintiff seeks damages for alleged injuries received when a car jumped the track at Grafton and plumed him to a coal chute. He claims that the injuries are permanent.

Soldiers Leave Monday. Members of Company B of the state militia will leave Fargo Monday morning for Fort Russell, Wyo., where they will enter into camp for eight days. Great preparations have been made for the trip and stay at the fort where the company will maneuver and enjoy a short spell of real soldier life. The Grand Forks situation remains unchanged and the question of a company here is still in the air.

Thoroughly Fearless. "That girl seems to be absolutely devoid of fear." "Yes, I haven't any doubt that she'd even marry a Pittsburgh millionaire if she got the chance."—Chicago Record-Herald.

He Left $50,000. "Yes I have been employed to break the will." "How much did he leave?" "Fifty thousand dollars." "What will you get out of it?" "Didn't I just say he left $50,000."
