Assistant States Attorney Barbour received a cablegram today from Assistant States Attorney Harry Olson stating that Paul O. Stensland had been arrested in Tangier, Morocco.

Later in the day additional particulars of the arrest of Stensland were received. He was taken into custody while in the British postoffice in Tangier. He had alighted but a short time before from the German tramp steamer Oldenberg, and came to the postoffice to direct the forwarding of his mail under the name of Paul Olson to Mozdour, 400 miles west of Tangier. As he entered the postoffice he was recognized by Assistant States Attorney Olson, who at once placed him under arrest.

HOW DID SHERIFFS KNOW GARTERS WERE UNLAWFUL

New York, Sept. 3.—Cohen disseminated garters which, it is alleged, infringed another man's patent. His garter importers got the way from Grand street to Harlem, and many hundreds of young women wear the unlawful article about them—that is, they are wearing the forbidden garter. "Why, the idea!" said pretty Katie Sherwood today when she was told in court that even the buyers of the Cohen garter were amenable to law. "How are the authorities going to know whether I wear one kind or another?"

And there, it must be confessed, the authorities admitted they were up against a stone wall. Of course a deputy sheriff could be posted by the Flatiron building, but that method would be rather slow. Again, it is possible that some arrests

BREAK THE COMBINE.

Kansans Form Live Stock Commission to Reduce Commission Rates.

Associated Press to The Evening Times. Kansas City, Sept. 3.—A live stock commission contest was begun here today when the Co-operative Live Stock company, incorporated at Denver last July, started business here. The company had its inception last April at the annual meeting in Denver of the American National Live Stock association when it was decided "to take action against the recent advance in commission charges for the sale of live stock at the various markets." Stock in the company was sold only to live stock producers and feeders and no one person was permitted to hold more than fifty shares.

The company will, it is stated, reduce the commission on sheep and hogs $2 a carload and will boycott the exchange of commission men at Chicago and St. Joseph. The commission on cattle will be the same as that charged by the Kansas City Live Stock exchange. Locally the fight may turn on S. G. Burnside and F. J. Ehrke, former members of the Kansas City Live Stock exchange, who recently were suspended from membership in that company for selling their business to the co-operative concern and agreeing to sell at rates below those fixed by the exchange.

HILL SPOKE

Minnesota State Fair for 1907 Opened Very Auspiciously Today.

Multitude Present—Dedicatory Exercises—Address by J. J. Hill.

Associated Press to The Evening Times. St. Paul, Sept. 3.—Under a cloudless sky and with cool September breezes fanning the multitude, the Minnesota state fair association today began its annual agricultural exposition and stock show. This is an event in which the entire agricultural and live stock raising industries of the northwest are especially interested, and every train for the past twenty-four hours has been unloading its cargo of human freight at the depots in the Twin Cities and both cities are en fete for the occasion. With the opening of the gates early today, the in-rush of visitors began, and it is estimated that the quota turned into the fair grounds by St. Paul and Minneapolis on account of the holiday will make the attendance today a record-breaker.

The special feature of today was the dedication of the immense live stock amphitheater, which has recently been completed and which has a seating capacity of 7,000 persons. In this building horse fairs will be held during fair week, and some of the bluest blooded horses of the country will be exhibited there.

Dedicatory exercises began at 11 o'clock this morning. B. F. Nelson, vice president of the State Fair association, made a brief address, in which he turned over the new building to Governor Johnson, representing the state. Governor Johnson responded, and at the close of his address introduced J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, who delivered a long address. Mr. Hill said: Notwithstanding the addition of more than a million people a year from abroad, nearly all of them men and women who must work for a living, labor outside of the cities was never as scarce or wages as high as at the present time. Immigration lingers in the great centers and adds to the difficulty of finding employment. The farms stretch out their hands in vain. Railroads in making extensions have to get help at the highest market price, and find a large percentage of those whom they employ mere hoboes and loafers. It is not until they have succeeded in getting transportation from one part of the country to another. Farmers besiege the employment agencies in vain, and offer the lazy tramp a sum for a day's work in the field instead of in any other country in the world. The situation grows more embarrassing yearly. Hours of labor are being reduced in some of the states for farm, as well as shop hands. Men are scarcer as the movement of popu-

DELAY HIS TRIAL

When Harry K. Thaw Heard of It, He Became Very Angry.

New York, Sept. 3.—Harry Kendall Thaw will not be tried for the murder of Stanford White until the middle of November.

When his wife brought the news of the change in date of the trial to the prisoner in the tombs he became irritable and expressed dissatisfaction at what he styled unnecessary delay on the part of the district attorney. It was announced at the district attorney's office that the trial would doubtless be postponed because of the large number of homicide cases awaiting disposal.

Thaw expressed the opinion that the trial will be of short duration, and he feels confident of a verdict of acquittal.

THINKS BOOM WILL WANE.

Congressman Says Bryan Is at Height of Popularity.

Associated Press to The Evening Times. Washington, Sept. 3.—Representative Rodenberg, the republican congressman from the Illinois district in which Bryan was born, declared today that the climax of the popular wave for the Nebraska had already been reached, and that from this time the talk of him for president would grow steadily less. While he did not say so in so many words, Mr. Rodenberg intimated that perhaps Bryan would have done better to have delayed his return to the United States some months. "The people in the West," added Mr. Rodenberg, "very generally admire Bryan, but I do not believe they are any more unanimously for him for president than they were in 1896 and 1900. This is exactly the feeling toward him in Marion county, where he was born."

TROUBLE THE RESULT OF AN ATTEMPT TO MAKE AN ARREST

Rioters Dynamited From House in Which They Had Taken Refuge.

Associated Press to The Evening Times. Punxsutawney, Pa., Sept. 3.—Two members of the state constabulary dead, one dying and two others wounded, is the result of a riot with Italians at Florence, seven miles from here, yesterday. One of the Italians is dead, another is slightly wounded, and two are under arrest, while the house in which the rioters barricaded themselves, is a wreck from dynamite used by the troopers to dislodge the rioters. The dead are:

PRIVATE JOHN HENRY of Philadelphia, shot through the heart.

PRIVATE FRANCIS VAHRINGER of Consopehken, body riddled with bullets and rescued just before the house fort was destroyed.

UNIDENTIFIED ITALIAN, shot through the heart.

Seriously wounded: Private Homer C. Chambers of Rochester, Pa., shot through head and body, having five wounds, mostly buckshot.

The less seriously wounded are: William A. Mullen of Harrisburg, shot through right foot, George Feltz, aged 12, son of a rioter, shot through the leg.

Sergeant Joseph Logan of Dubois, who was at first reported among the injured and whose attempt to make an arrest led to the battle, was not hurt.

Logan went to Florence yesterday afternoon to arrest an Italian charged with murder.

Instead of capturing the man, Logan tried to arrest two others who were fighting. He went into the house where the men boarded and an Italian stabbed at Logan with a stiletto and as he made his way from the house he was fired upon.

Logan turned and emptied his revolver into the doorway, then ran.

Help was summoned from the state constabulary headquarters here, and five troopers were sent to Logan's aid. As they approached the house they were fired upon from almost every window. Private Henry fell dead with a bullet through his heart. The others retreated, but Privates Chambers and Mullen rushed up to bring back their comrade, not knowing he was dead. Mullen got a few buckshot through his right foot; Chambers received five shots, three in his chest and two on the right side of his head. They staggered back and Chambers was caught by his comrades and sent to the hospital. Although seriously injured, he is resting well.

Gans still rules the favorite this morning at 10 to 7.

Associated Press to The Evening Times. St. Louis, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Robert T. Sturgeon, wife of the assistant cashier of the Merchants' Laclede National bank, who blundered into accepting his proposal of marriage by sending him an acceptance intended for another, has disappeared. Her husband is suing for divorce.

The Sturgeons were married in February, 1900. The bride was Miss Amy Bay, a daughter of a Virginia family, a young society woman of this city, and an intimate friend of Miss Rosemary Sartoris, the granddaughter of President Grant.

She was a pretty girl of great charm and her suitors were many. For three years it was much of a butterfly chase between Sturgeon and a handsome young Kentuckian. Each was jealous of the other, and Miss Bay never gave either the slightest impression as to which she preferred. She corresponded regularly, went riding and played golf with both.

Then the two suitors wrote to the girl on the same day—not the ordinary kind of love-letters, but an appeal such as a man writes once in a lifetime.

Miss Bay answered. To the Kentuckian the reply was:

"I love you. Yes." To Sturgeon: "I love you. But—no."

"I love you. But—no." Then in fervent haste, with a thousand thoughts whirling through her mind, she mailed the two. And it was the unexpected that happened, for on the following day, glorying in his triumph, Sturgeon came to claim her. The girl was bewildered, but realizing that she must have put the letters in the wrong envelopes, she played her part. She was young and soft-hearted, and now that it had happened, she could not make her confession.

The Kentuckian went away from St. Louis and dropped out of her life—but apparently not out of her heart or her mind or her soul. Yet she married Sturgeon, never telling him that she didn't care for him, save in an amiable, companion-like way.

The six years that followed were far from pleasant. Sturgeon soon realized that he had won the wife, but not the heart, and at last the two separated. Now he is suing for divorce.

The error of the hand has been a bitter cup of gall. Yet it is not over, for process servers are unable to find the woman and Sturgeon cannot gain his freedom.

QUEST FOR MISSING WIFE DELAYS A DIVORCE TRIAL
