Sentiment to be incited.
"Let reverence of law be breathed by every mother to the hearing babe that practices in her lap; let it be taught in the schools, seminaries and colleges; let it be written in primers, spelling books and almanacs; let it be preached from pulpits and proclaimed in legislative halls and enforced in courts of justice; in short, let it become the political religion of the nation."

FIFTEEN PER CENT.

The methods which were pursued in the democratic state convention at Minot and which were referred to in the Evening Times of yesterday, created something of consternation in the democratic ranks. That, like much of the other history of the party, it has been desirous of keeping under cover. It has been learned that of the two factions which were at war in that convention, the successful one which traded the nomination of the candidate for the supreme court for the candidate for the governorship, had about three-fifths of the convention.

As was shown yesterday by reference to the official votes of the state democratic vote two years ago, and which was of course represented in the Minot convention, was twenty-five per cent of the entire voting population—that the Minot convention represented one-fourth of the people of the state and the republican convention represented three-fourths. Of that twenty-five per cent the fact which had the power to hand the judgeship around and trade on it like boys swapping pen knives, had three-fifths in that convention, or fifteen per cent of the voting population of the state.

The result is that the democratic candidate for supreme judge and for governor—posing as the representation of the people were nominated by fifteen people out of every hundred while the Jamestown convention represented seventy-five people in every hundred.

The arguments now advanced in behalf of the democratic candidate for supreme judge and the candidate for governor are that they should be elected because they represent the expressed sentiment of the people of the state. It is apparent from a reasonable statement of the facts that neither of them was the selection of any creditable number of the voters, in the session next winter or in that of two years, and most likely in the first one, to retain the state fair. Fargo means to secure the entire concern if it is possible to do so. It can not be criticised for attempting to get all it can, but it must not be allowed to do so.

If Grand Forks county ever needed for its own good strong and able men in the state legislature, it needs them in the next session. Moreover, it needs men who will have some influence in the branches to which they are elected. Consider for a moment. Of the one hundred members in the last house of representatives, the democrats mustered up one lone straggler. In the senate, out of a membership of forty they had five and one of the five is now a candidate on the republican ticket.

It is useless to argue that the political minority in any law making body has any influence or can accomplish a single purpose. Every intelligent person knows that the minority is always helpless. It is so in congress and it is so in every state legislature. It has been so in this state and it will be so again.

Under these conditions and the well established rules of legislative bodies, what would a whole democratic delegation from Grand Forks county be worth so far as their ability to influence legislation is concerned? What power could they use to prevent the other cities of the state from combining against Grand Forks and taking the state fair elsewhere? Much less would the few men from the districts which are contested be able to do anything to prevent such a catastrophe.

But with a solid republican delegation from this county it would have a position to command the support of a sufficient following to control the situation. Is it not better to send a delegation to the legislature which will have some power than to send one which because of its being composed of political aliens, would be no better than dead men?

The Evening Times is not willing to admit that the Herald is behind the scheme to have the state fair removed from this city. But the fact that it has been opposed to the administration of the county fair, and several months ago attempted to pave the way for the very course such a scheme would involve, it must be admitted that there is a considerable quantity of smoke, especially when it is remembered that the Herald is either lukewarm to the legislative ticket, or openly opposing it.

HERALD HYPOCRISY.

The Herald says that though election day is but two weeks distant there has up to the present time been less public evidence of general interest in the campaign than in any other recent year. All of which, it seems, would argue the lack of influence of the Herald. From what the Herald has all along been saying about conditions in the state one would suppose that the people would rise up en masse and vote the democratic ticket, which the Herald is supporting, in order to secure the "reform" which the morning democratic sheet professes to advocate.

The truth is the Herald is beginning to see that a big vote in the state means a big republican majority for the whole ticket, and that is what it does not want. Such a thing would be a rebuke to the Herald's hypocritical attitude.

What the republicans of the state are seeking to accomplish, and what the democrats are seeking to prevent—with the assistance of the Herald—is an endorsement of the policies of President Roosevelt and the republican congress. This is what the president himself is asking for, and what he spoke for in his Pennsylvania speeches.

The way to bring it about is for republicans everywhere to give the straight ticket their united support. This is the cause of the Herald's deceitful speculations as to a small vote.

It may be true, but the voters of this state have not been able to grasp the point yet, that a man who has spent several years of his life laboring for the railroads and assisting them in resisting the payment of claims for damage done the citizens of the state in a hundred ways, is likely to become a very hostile enemy to these institutions in office, especially when he expects to return to his first love with them at the end of a couple of years. Seriously it looks like deception and hypocrisy.

The amusing thing about the democratic pretensions that there is only one man in the state sufficiently pure to be elected to a position on the supreme bench is that if the first deal made in the Minot convention had gone through and Burke had been nominated for judge, as was arranged and slated, he would in the eyes of the democracy have been the most thoroughly qualified man in the state for that position. In fact the democracy would have been able to have

In the Eyes of the People

M. W. SPAULDING,
Republican Candidate for Clerk of the District Court.

The man who can keep the records of the district court for four years without a single error is not a bad man to keep in office. That is the record made by M. W. Spaulding, the present incumbent of the office of clerk of court and republican candidate for re-election. If the sedulous doctrine that partly truly is nothing but a scintilla of merit, the voters of Grand Forks county could not afford to turn Mr. Spaulding down because of his splendid capabilities. Mr. Spaulding was born in St. Lawrence county, New York, in 1855 and is therefore 51 years of age. He early in life became imbued with the golden opportunities of the west and in 1879 turned his face to the setting sun, landing at Crookston, Minn., and after a year at that place came to Grand Forks in 1880 where he conducted a lumber yard for two years, quitting that to farm near Ojata in 1882 and going to Larimore in 1883 where he continued to live until his election to the position of clerk of the court in 1904. For ten years he was engaged in the machinery business at Larimore, and quit that to engage in the real estate and insurance business. He was city treasurer of Larimore for two years, retiring from that office when he was elected to the position which he now holds.

He is not only one of the old timers of the county and identified with every advancement from the early days to the present time, but he brought with him to the clerk's office a training which with his splendid educational training eminently qualified him for the position. He took hold of the work with the same painstaking care that had characterized his own business affairs, and now it is safe to say that no office in the state is better kept or more capably handled. It is a regrettable fact that men must go to law but when they do, it is just as important that the records of that litigation be so kept that for all time there may be no question as to the disposition of the matter in controversy. Land litigation may arise in after years when the property involves a fortune and a blunder made by a clerk defeat the entire work of a lifetime. The fact that for four years not a single error has been made is a pretty good guarantee that the custody of the court records are in safe hands as it is impossible to get. It should be remembered by all men who are carefully looking to the interests of the public, that not every man can handle a business so intricate, and that when once a man has proven his ability in an office of this kind, he should be re-elected especially when he has filled the position but four years and the rule of re-election really extends to three and four terms.

Let's see. The candidate for attorney general on the state democratic ticket made some remarks at the convention at Minot about the democratic organization having sold out at some time. Will some enthusiastic democrat who is now claiming for that party immaculate political purity, please tell the people of the state something about what that charge was?

If any man on the county ticket in this county receives a reduced majority, he can carry his thanks to the Herald. That paper is responsible for all the efforts to have the ticket knifed that have been made in this county.

Notes from the University

NEW SUPERINTENDENT.

R. H. McReynolds Will Teach Several Classes Besides Being Electrical Work.

R. H. McReynolds, who is a graduate of the College of electrical engineering of the University of Nebraska, has arrived to fill the position of superintendent of buildings and grounds at the University, recently vacated by Mr. C. H. Wallinger.

Mr. McReynolds has, during the past five years, been the electrician at the University of Nebraska, and also served as superintendent of electrical construction work. Thus he comes with plenty of experience. Besides doing the electrical work he will teach one class in machine shopwork and also one in blacksmithing.

Don Ford Recovers.

Don Ford, who has been confined in the hospital with an attack of typhoid for several weeks, is reported as rapidly recovering. Mr. Ford was formerly a student of Red River valley university, but is now a junior in the College of arts.

Offices Remodeled.

The office rooms of "The Student" and the "Dacotah" are to be renovated and remodeled soon. These rooms are in the basement of the main building.

BAND PARADED.

U. N. D. Band Made First Public Appearance on Wednesday.

Last Wednesday the university band made its first public appearance of the year. It played several pieces while marching around the varsity football field, and not only cheered the first and second teams which were hard at work, but furnished entertainment to a gathering of spectators on the sidelines. The band numbers 25 pieces and showed up in good form. The boys went to Fargo today to cheer the teams and visitors at the game.

or two at his old home before returning to Seattle. Five members of his family attended the university and three of them graduated with the B. A. degree.

The convocation speaker for November 3d is Professor Gottfried Hult of the State Agricultural college, who takes for his subject, "Impressions of Greece." Prof. Hult has recently spent nearly a year and a half in Europe in travel and study, part of which time was spent in Greece. Prof. Hult is a writer of rare thoughtfulness and grace of expression and has for several years given at the university address which will long be remembered by all who heard them. He has a poem in the September Century on "The Prairies."

The convocation speaker for November 10th is Rt. Rev. from Cameron Mann, Episcopal of North Dakota. Bishop Mann has several times addressed the students at convocation and on commencement occasions and his addresses are always greatly enjoyed.

The contract for the new Carnegie library building is to be let on the 30th of this month. A sketch of the building will appear in the October number of the Bulletin. The new building will be the most expensive and architecturally by far the most attractive of all the buildings on the campus. It is hoped that it will be completed in time for occupancy at the opening of the school year 1907-8.

The old janitor's quarters at the end of the basement of the main building are being thoroughly renovated and when the repairs are completed the rooms will be turned over to the town students as a rest room and lunch room. This will give them for the first time something like adequate quarters. The room at present being used as a temporary lunch room will be turned over to the Student and Junior Annual boards for office purposes.

William Atwood, a former student in the College of liberal arts, is at present employed in the Grand Forks offices of the Robertson Lumber company. The old-time friends of Mr. Atwood will be glad to know that his health, on account of which he was compelled to leave the university, has greatly improved.

Miss Nellie Johnson, B. A. '01, is at present engaged as a teacher in the Seattle, Wash., public schools. Before removing to Washington she was employed for several years as a teacher in the Hillsboro public schools.

of 1896. Dr. Iland has been for some years located in San Francisco, Cal. She suffered heavily in the earthquake of last April.

Dr. W. T. Collins, president of the first board of Regents (as it was then called) of the University of North Dakota, died recently at Santa Monica, Cal., where he had lived for the last ten years or more. Dr. Collins served on the Federal side in the civil war and lost a leg in one of the latter battles of the war. He was for several years, in the latter 70's and early 80's, a practicing physician in Grand Forks and was for one or two seasons a member of the territorial council, which answered to the state senate. He was largely instrumental in securing the establishment of the university at Grand Forks and was largely influential in shaping its policy in the early days. He left Grand Forks in the latter 80's, going from here to Montana, where he was established for several years in the practice of his profession. For the last dozen or fifteen years he has been a resident of California.

Thomas W. Crafer, '06, is now a graduate student at Princeton university, Princeton, N. J.

Mr. C. H. Wallinger, who for three years has been the very efficient superintendent of buildings and grounds at the university, and incidentally instructor in the blacksmith and machine shops of the college, is a practical engineering, left Wednesday evening for his new position as superintendent of the Southern Gypsum company, Marion, Va. Mr. Wallinger was a very energetic and efficient man, thoroughly loyal and devoted to the institution, and he will be greatly missed at the university. His successor, Mr. R. H. McReynolds, is a graduate of the University of Nebraska in the department of electrical engineering, and has for some years been superintendent of construction at that institution. He comes with very high recommendations from Chancellor Andrews and the dean of the college of electrical engineering at Nebraska. He has had unusually varied experience as a skilled mechanic in wood and metals, and the university considers it most fortunate in securing so competent a man as Mr. Wallinger's successor.

At the meeting of the National association of state universities, to be held at Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 12th and 13th next, President Merrillfield gives the opening address on the subject, "How to Affiliate Other College Institutions in the State with the State University." As evidence of the wide spread interest which is taken in this subject, it may be recalled that President Merrillfield presented an address on this subject at the conference on religious education at the University of Illinois last October in connection with the inauguration of President James.

The boys at the university station are kept busy this season. Six new trains have been added since the first of the year. Something like sixteen trains going and coming now stop at the university to let off or receive passengers on flag.

Mr. McReynolds, the new superintendent of buildings and grounds, is setting several hundred tulip, hyacinth and crocus bulbs in the various beds about the grounds.

Miss Georgia Gardner spent last Sunday at her home in St. Thomas.

Miss Louise Baker was the guest of Mrs. Sweetland the latter part of last week.

Charles Wiley, a former student of the university, and for two years the employ of Spriggs brothers, is about to enter a new firm of plumbers who will start up in Minot.

Lewis Edinger, who attended the school of commerce here two years ago, is at present teller of the State bank of Davenport. Mr. Edinger was married early last month.

THE SOCIETIES ORGANIZED

New Secret Orders Formed at High School—Weekly Debates and Literary Programs.

Two secret literary societies have been organized at the high school and the work has been started in earnest. One of the societies, the Alpha Zeta, is composed of the juniors and freshmen while the other admits the seniors and sophomores. The two societies expect to have weekly meetings at which literary programs, debates and musical attractions will be the features. The officers wish to have it understood that visitors are invited to attend the meetings.

The officers of the senior organization are: President, Almer Lukkason; vice president, Theodore Briggs; Secretary, Fred Fogel; sergeant at arms, Wallace Hawley. The officers of the Alpha Zeta are: President, Walter Dairymen; vice president, Ruby Bailey; secretary and treasurer, George Benson; sergeant at arms, John Zipoy.

THE INTEREST IS GROWING

Dairymen's Convention at Crookston Attracting Attention Over Country.

Joel Winkler, the State Dairy Inspector states that the interest in the coming Dairyman's convention, which will be held in Crookston on Nov. 14th and 15th is growing and this year's convention promises to be the most interesting and best patronized of any that have yet been held.

One of the pleasing features of the convention will be a reception which will be tendered the assembled dairymen at the new agricultural school on the afternoon and evening of the first day of the convention. This will give the farmers of the Northwest a splendid opportunity of seeing just what the school is and what it is doing and those who attend should not miss attending.

The program which has been arranged includes several noted speakers from different parts of the state and every number on it will not only be interesting, but will be of the great benefit to those engaged in dairying.

A Popular Teacher.
Miss Claudia Charles, one of the teachers in the high school, went to Ada, Minn., last evening for a visit with friends.

Hallowe'en Party.
The Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church will give a hallowe'en social next Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Free Corliss on Second street.

Break Repaired.
The engine in the electric light plant was repaired yesterday and was attached to the dynamo last night as usual. The small engine did duty during the break down.

Money to Loan.
Sullivan Bros. have money to loan, at lowest rate of interest, on First and Second Mortgages, in Minnesota and Dakota. Offices over First National Bank, East Grand Forks.

Verdict for Plaintiff.
In the case of Nellie Thompson vs. Angus Wood to recover for conversion of realty property, a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $25.25 was rendered yesterday by Justice Brown.

Went to Fargo.
Attorney G. A. E. Finlayson went to Fargo this morning to act as one of the officials at the A. C. vs. U. N. D. football game. A number of other east sideers went along to see the contest which has attracted considerable attention.

To Look at Yeggs.
Sheriff Gonyea went to Minot yesterday morning to examine the captured bank robbers and see if they answer the description which was secured of the men who are supposed to have been guilty of the Crookston and Mentor robberies.

Enjoyed Hop.
The dance given in Woodman's hall last evening for the benefit of the high school football team proved a great success although in point of numbers the affair was disappointing. However, those who attended report a very enjoyable time.

Ellistad to Oregon.
Dan Ryan returned last night from the farm of Andrew Ellistad, who conducted an auction sale yesterday afternoon. All the stock and farm machinery, etc., was disposed of to the highest bidders and a large sum was realized. Mr. Ellistad will move to the state of Oregon.

Jail Empty.
For the first time in several weeks the city jail is unoccupied and loneliness. This is not due to the non-activity of the police as they still patrol the city and guard over the peoples' property, but is probably one of the inevitable results of the sudden spell of cold weather.

Administer Estates.
A. M. Siverson has been appointed administrator in the estate of S. J. Melby, who died in 1906. His estate is valued at $1,474. S. J. Osterman has been appointed administrator in the estate of Nels Larson, who died on the 13th of last month. There are three heirs and the estate consists of a life insurance policy for $1,000.

Brought Suit.
The Grand Forks Lumber company of this city has brought an action in the Washington county, Minnesota, district court against the McClure Lumber company for damages of $144,800, with interest, by reason of the alleged failure of the latter company to fill a contract. The former company claims that from 9,000,000 to 12,000,000 feet of logs were to be delivered to it yearly, but that in 1905 the defendant company defaulted, having sold the logs to another company.

Reflections of a Bachelor.
A man has a few awful rich to be able to dress well when his wife dies. Dying must seem absolutely painless to a man who has run for an office. Sleeping cars are fine places to find out what a sweet thing sleep could be if you had any chance to get it.

A woman gets a good deal of comfort out of thinking how dangerous it would be to have her children's morals if they had brains.

Women are pretty sure to like their new pastor if they don't disagree as to whom he should marry because he is already married.
