TEN SECOND MEN

Several of Them Are Playing With College Football Teams.

It was rough on Captain Eckersall, of the University of Chicago eleven, that in his last big game as a Maroon player he did not have a dry field on which to make use of his great speed and ability to get away like a flash. Eckersall is one of several ten second men who are playing football this year. Being a sure catch of a punted ball, he was off like a shot, and a man had to be on top of him to tackle him. He was so fast that he could take an oblique course and speed past many a man who had a shorter distance to go to intercept him. He made a few mistakes in picking his route in a broken field, and especially did not make the mistake that many a fast man does make, that is, instead of trusting to his speed, trying elaborate dodging. Roulon-Miller, the Princeton half-back, is another ten second sprinter, and so are Mayhew of Brown, and Mount Pleasant of the Indians. Mayhew is one of the most slippery runners on the field. Another such runner is Eddie Dillon of Princeton, though not so fast. There is an elusiveness about Dillon. He simply has the faculty of not being there when you think you've got him—just seems to vanish past. The erratic Tad Jones of Yale has this faculty. He moves faster than he appears to be moving and looks like an easy man to nail. Apparently he is going squarely into the arms of a tackler, but without slackening speed in the least he gives an almost imperceptible swerve and is on his way.

For a big man Forbes of Yale is one of the fastest. He can negotiate a hundred yards in 10 1-4, but cannot check himself as well as some of the lighter runners. His arms work peculiarly while he is running, the fore arm at right angles to the upper arm with an up and down chopping motion and the fingers all spread out, eager to make the tackle. Greene, of Pennsylvania State of Chicago, and Denie of Brown, are all close to even time. Before Columbia became dominant in football it had one of the fastest men that ever played the game in Harold Weekes. It also had one of the fastest centers that ever played in stocky, heavy Jack Wright. On one occasion when Weekes got loose for a sixty-five yard run, Wright, acting as an interferer, accompanied him all the way down the field.

Metcalf, of Yale, was as elusive a runner as ever baffled a tackler. He was a phantom once he cleared an opposing line. He was faster proportionately in foot ball clothes than on the track. His strong legs gave him a drive that enabled him to carry the weight.

EIGHT ARE KILLED

This Has Been a Hard Year on Famous Jockeys in United States.

JOCKIES KILLED IN 1906.

Sewill, Levine—Died from injuries received at Aqueduct on Friday, Nov. 9. His mount, Lichtmess, was 100 to 1 in the betting.

Cocole, James—Died at Bessemer, Ala., March 28, from injuries received at Memphis, Tenn.

Frieschen, Bertrand—Died from injuries received while riding Joe Levy in a race at Gravesend, L. I., Sept. 21.

Faust, August—Steeplechase rider, died from a fall while riding at Coney Island meeting August 7.

Miller, Bert—Died in Louisville at 9:45 p. m. Oct. 5, as the result of injuries received when Dresden fell with that afternoon at Churchill Downs.

Masset, Tony—Killed by a race train near Jamaica, L. I., Oct. 29. Was formerly a well known jockey.

McCune, John—Killed during the fair races at Portsmouth, Ohio, Aug. 30, while trying to prevent his mount running over a boy.

Shilling, George—Died from a fall at City Park races, New Orleans, on April 5.

The year 1906 proved fatal to eight jockeys. The latest to meet a violent death was L. Sewill, who rode Lichtmess, a 100 to 1 shot, at Aqueduct last Friday. Before he took the mount he told his friends he would not ride again during the season. A few minutes later he had sustained fatal injuries.

Strange as it may seem, but few riders who follow cross-country racing ever meet death on the turf. Not more than a half dozen have been killed in the last ten years. Only two timber-loppers are among those fatally injured in 1905-1906. At Union Park, St. Louis, June 13, 1905, Alec Hector was killed while going over the jumps, and this year August Faust died from internal injuries received at Coney Island.

Among the well known jockeys who died a natural death this year were Marty Bergen, Patsy McCue, Eddie Haley, Charley Verplank (Monkey Charley), Frank Bayless, Bud Knox and Walter Lamb. Patsy McCue and Mirty Bergen were at one time the leading riders of this country. Bergen for years rode for Ed Corrigan, while Patsy McCue for several seasons rode with wonderful success on the eastern tracks. He died penniless at Washington not long ago.

Any number of riders have met with accidents this year that caused them to retire from the saddle temporarily, and perhaps one or two died without the fact being generally known.

Sporting Spiel.

A shift has been made in the Harvard halfback, Lincoln going to the right half, where he will finish the season.

Roome, Yale's star full back, has recovered from his injuries, and is likely to be in the game against Princeton on Saturday.

The best end play done on an Eastern gridiron this year was in the Harvard-Carlisle contest. Those who did it were Starr of Harvard, and Ekedine of Carlisle.

The middies are elated over their defeat of Swathmore, which defeated Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding that the Army was up against Princeton, probably the strongest team in the east, and the Army did not let the Tigers cross their goal line, the Middies felt cocky. They see a chance to win from the army December 1 on Franklin field.

There were several details in which Harvard showed most promising football, and one of them was in following the ball. There was a wide-awakeness about the Harvard players. There was a chipper, cheerful, hustling air about them that was pleasing to observe.

Canton defeated Massillon for the professional football championship of America Friday afternoon at Canton, O., by a score of 10 to 6. Heston coached and played half back for Massillon.

A French villager who had shot at a passing automobilist was recently sentenced to one year's imprisonment. He said that his dog had been run over by an automobile and he thereupon determined to fire at the first car that sped past him. There were four passengers in the car the villager shot at.

In a steam car one of the most common causes of trouble is that the vaporization tubes become choked with carbon deposit from the fuel, so that only a small quantity of fuel is served to the burners. If the oil vaporizing tubes are kept clean, the pump glands screwed tight enough to prevent leakage but not to cause any undue friction on the plungers, the generator and its attendant parts will give no trouble.

The Eastern Automobile Company has received challenges from the 40 H. P. Apperson and the 50 H. P. Thomas. These challenges of course, will take the form of entries in the fifty-mile race to be held on Saturday, November 4.

The finest specimen of an American eagle shot in Eastern Pennsylvania, was killed by Harry Kauffman, of Upper Bern, Pa. From tip to tip of the wings it measured seven feet; its claws were three inches in length.

HE WAS VERY FUNNY

Suitor of "Gay Paree" Sent Doctors and Coffins to Girl, Then Kills Her.

Associated Press Cable to The Evening Times.

Paris, Nov. 21.—An extraordinary story of persecution, ending in murder, was retold in the courts. Some time ago were published the queer exploits of a plate washer in a cafe who had made up his mind to marry Mme. Villesek, the cashier in the same establishment. Hubert is the name of this ardent wooer, and he has been sentenced to death for murdering the object of his affections.

When the fair cashier refused to listen to his outpourings of affection Hubert decided to annoy her as much as possible. He adopted bizarre methods of venting his spleen. His idea was to make her life miserable, whether she decided to remain single or marry any other man. The cashier was astounded one evening when no fewer than fifteen doctors dropped into the cafe. They had come to attend the cashier, who, they had been informed had been taken suddenly ill. Hubert had sent each an urgent telephone message.

This exploit was outdone by the next trick he played upon the woman. He ordered a dozen candles and large quantities of linen to be sent to her. This was followed up by the visits of a dozen undertakers to the cafe, each bringing a coffin. They had come to make the necessary arrangements for the cashier's funeral. The poor cashier had had enough of these annoyances. Rather than submit to any more she left her employment.

But Hubert kept up his relentless persecution. Mme. Villesek now lodged a complaint against him, and he was prosecuted and sent to prison. Imprisonment did not produce a salutary effect upon Hubert. His annoyance increased. The woman was the recipient of more coffins. Accompanying each was a note to the effect that if a coffin was not needed, then the time would soon arrive when one would be necessary. Again Mme. Villesek lodged a complaint, and again Hubert was sent to prison, his sentence on this occasion being six months.

While in prison Hubert seems to have thought out a more drastic plan of revenge upon the woman who had declined his addresses, he sought her out and murdered her. His attitude in court was one of careless cynicism. He leered and laughed during his trial, and when sentence of death was passed upon him he turned toward the public, and, striking a tragic attitude, shouted, "It is the best reward I could have to die for her."

HAS NO KNOWLEDGE

Of Murder of Her Husband, Declares Bride of Four Months.

New York, Nov. 21.—Praying before a crucifix, nineteen-year old Elizabeth Mongoli, a bride of four months, who is in the House of Detention as a witness in connection with the murder of her husband, Girolomi Mongoli, declared she was innocent. Coronor Harburger hopes to clear the mystery today.

Mongoli was a fruit dealer and lived at No. 305 East One Hundred and Sixth street. He was found stabbed in his bed early yesterday. At the Harlem hospital he died on the operating table.

Before he died he told detectives that a visitor and he had quarreled and that the man had stabbed him. Mrs. Mongoli told the police that her husband had received several blackmailing letters. Later she admitted that she had quarreled with him on Tuesday evening.

While the husband was dying he refused to accuse her of having stabbed him, and until the last minute insisted that she was innocent.

COLLEGE SERVANTS

Find They Are Heirs to a Fortune of $7,000,000.

Wellesley, Mass., Nov. 21.—Two servants at Wellesley college, Agnes and Florence Quick, learned that they are the principal heirs to an estate of $7,000,000 left in Scotland fifty-seven years ago by Kennedy McIsaac. The fortune will in three years revert to the crown unless claimed.

The young women are both under twenty-five years of age. Agnes is a waitress at Pomeroy hall and Florence is a waitress at Cazenove hall. Although much excited over their unexpected good fortune they say that they intend to retain their places until after they have fully proved their claims.

Their claim to the estate comes through their mother, Kennedy McIsaac was her grandfather's half brother, and she is the nearest known relative. McIsaac gained his fortune through running merchant vessels. It has been tied up in chancery, and its value has immensely increased.

NEW OFFICERS FOR CLUB.

Associated Press to The Evening Times.

New York, Nov. 21.—It is expected that when the election takes place at tonight's annual meeting of the Motor Boat Club of America, an entire new set of officers will be chosen. Edward J. Schroeder is slated to succeed A. D. Proctor Smith as commodore. The meeting will be followed by a banquet at the Hotel Astor, to which Sir Thomas Lipton and other notables have accepted invitations.

HIS RED NECKTIE

Spoiled the Romance—Just Couldn't Do Without and Elopement is Stopped.

Waterbury, Nov. 21.—A cherished red necktie into which his fiancée had crocheted love's sweet sentiments with many skeins of silk spoiled the romantic elopement planned by Albert Vernice and Julia Tonpense of Torrington.

"I wish I hadn't come back after that necktie" moaned the disconsolate Albert in the Torrington police station while Julia, tearful and frightened, wondered all day why Albert did not return to New York to claim her for his bride.

Plans for the elopement Tuesday looked fine on the young couple's schedule, but they went sadly astray when the father of Julia insisted on accompanying her to the station after she had received his permission to visit friends in New York.

To escape the eagle eye of papa Tonpense, Albert was compelled to hide in a freight car. After the father of Julia had bade her farewell Albert had only a second in which to hop on the last car of the departing New York Express, leaving his baggage unchecked behind.

After reaching New York the young couple decided that Albert should go back and get his red necktie and his other good clothes for the honeymoon trip. Upon arriving at Torrington he was met by Mr. Tonpense and Chief of Police Hull and spent the night in the police station. In the police court it was alleged that Julia was under age. Albert was accordingly charged with abduction and held in $300 bonds after which Julia's father hurried to New York in search of his daughter.

THIS IS MY 48TH BIRTHDAY.

Charles A. Towne.

Charles A. Towne, who left Minnesota politics to identify himself with Tammany hall, was born in Michigan, Nov. 21, 1858. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan. In 1890 he removed to Duluth and five years later was elected to congress. He at once attracted the attention of congress and the people by his oratory and his advocacy of free silver. He left the republican convention in 1896 because of the gold standard plank. The same year he was nominated by the democrats and populists as their candidate for congress, but was defeated. Three years later he was again nominated by the fusionists, and was again defeated. In 1900 the people's party national convention at Sioux Falls nominated Mr. Towne for the vice presidency, and the national convention of the silver republicans at Kansas City did likewise. Mr. Towne declined both nominations. Later in the same year he was appointed United States senator to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Cushman K. Davis. Soon after his term in the senate expired Mr. Towne removed to New York city, where he has since taken an active part in democratic politics.
