INTELLIGENT HORSE WANTED

Fire Department Has Not as Yet Acquired a Successor to "Babe," Deceased—Need Animal Badly.

Wanted, a horse:—The Grand Forks fire department is shy one member and Chief Runge and the complete company of fire ladders are keeping a sharp lookout for equines suitable for use in the department.

"Babe," after having been a member of the department for three years and nine months, has passed away and there is a vacant stall. The dead horse was valued at $400 and was one of the best fire horses in the northwest, and driver Ed King states that it will be hard to find an equal to "Babe."

Any horse wishing a soft snap for the rest of his natural life should communicate with the chief. Recommendations are necessary. The work consists of nothing but eating, except when the gong rings and then a race against time is required of all applicants.

The department is up against a serious proposition, that of finding an animal suitable for the work. Where-
