WORKING AND RESTING.

We have been told of a land where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest. When burdens seem too heavy to bear, when trials seem too severe to endure, when tasks to be done seem beyond one's strength and endurance, the prospect of a journey to such a land of peace is alluring almost to the extent of tempting one to undertake it.

This is the season of rest and vacation. Those who remain at work while their associates and ordinary companions are away envy the absent and bemoan their fate. When their own time comes to seek rest at lake or mountain resort, they joyously pack up their bags and with light heart set out to enjoy their brief vacations.

Those whose vacations are short or who may be deprived of a vacation altogether may console themselves with the thought, that work is not such a bad thing after all. It is not only man's destiny; it is his hope and his salvation. It is a great thing to knock out the wicked and it is a great thing to know that there is hard, fine, noble work to be done, as well as a rest to be enjoyed.

ADMIRAL TOGO.

The visit of Admiral Togo to this country takes us back to the days of Grant and Farragut and Sherman and Sheridan. These are all gone, and Farragut first of all. We have had nothing since in that class. Dewey did a workmanlike job in Manila bay, but it lacked that spice of equality in the opposing forces which is required in order to make the blood tingle when one thinks of it. The destruction of Cervera's fine ships at Santiago was a much more memorable exploit; but we got into a general quarrel as to who did it—there was not glory enough to go around—and thus the brilliancy of the victory has been dimmed by the ardor of the quarrel.

We say "good fortune" with full intention. Under like conditions it would be good fortune for the sailor of any country to do what Togo did. For the war between Japan and Russia was not a made war in the sense that it was plotted for, worked up artificially, and so brought to the burning point of actual conflict. It was a necessary and inevitable war, unless Japan had consented to drop her thousand years of sovereignty and become the vassal of Russia. It was a war of doom, for Japan fought with her back to the wall. She had her islands and the sea around them, and she had the courage to stand by them and risk her national existence upon one desperate throw. It was a monstrous condition that faced Japan. She tried and tried, and then tried again, to make Russia understand, but Russia was blind and blinded. The riches of the far east, so Russia dreamed, were to be had for the taking. Why not take them, then? It was the old rule to take what you could get. Russia venerated her plans of conquest by some talk of carrying Christianity to the pagans, but the hypocrisy of this was self-evident. It was a timber-hunger for the forests of the Yalu, and the rubles that might be made to flow from them into Russian pockets, that drove Russia forward. It was the lust for the dominion of the Pacific ocean that filled Russia's eye as she looked toward the furthest horizon. Gold now and dominion later—why, forsooth! should Russia not undertake the high duty of carrying Christianity to the pagans?

The trouble was—and it was a very serious trouble—that the pagans would not wait. Admiral Togo proved himself to be a man who believes in getting the first hold on a bad job. So long as it must be war, let it be war right off and without gloves. He sailed for Port Arthur and began his work, and he kept it up until he smashed the Russian fleet in the Straits of Tsushima. But he did something more than to crush the sea power of Russia. He took his country out of the clutch of a rapacious, arrogant and unscrupulous foe—so far as this could be done on the sea—and it must be estimated as the good fortune of any sailor who gets the chance to do that kind of work for his native land. Admiral Togo will be very welcome

San Francisco, July 13.—"Civic depravity" was denounced by Richard Welling of New York, one of the speakers at a section meeting of the National Education association. His subject was "Pupil Self Government as a Training for Citizenship." Mr. Welling said, in part: "Eight years ago, I addressed this association on training for citizenship in the schools. We were then at the beginning of a wave of civic righteousness which passed over the country. I say 'passed over' advisedly because there seems to have been a lapse into lethargy of the older days as is evidenced by the conditions in many places."

"The vote selling in Ohio, Indiana and my own state of New York indicate not merely a low tone of citizenship but a civic depravity. The Lorimer case gives a clue to the lack of intelligent interest of the citizens of Illinois in the selection of their public servants. The deadlocks in many legislatures bespeak the trafficking and log-rolling that still obtain where the servants of the people are supposed to be registering the popular will. In the main, the interest of the people in their public affairs is confined to the weeks preceding the annual elections. The only other times they are aroused from their civic slouch is when a scandal is uncovered or a public official is under prosecution."

"I advocate pupil co-operation in the government of the schools as a method of exercising our children in democratic life. Forty principals of elementary and high schools in fifteen states report that they are successfully employing the plan: five thousand children rejoice in their democratic school life. The movement is growing. It should grow faster. It is high time the National Education association took up this subject for a thorough inquiry."

in this country. He can be silent. It is said, in a great many languages, but he will not get away with our welcome in that manner. We shall speak our welcome with the customary grace and force, of course, but we shall also in part do our welcome, by letting him see how we make ships and handle them. We shall receive him not merely as a great sailor, but also as a trusted friend.

POLITICIAN IN DIVORCE COURT

Congressman Miller of Duluth Must Defend in an Action Started By Wife

St. Paul, Minn., July 13.—Mrs. C. B. Miller of Duluth, wife of the congressman from the Eighth Minnesota district, is in St. Paul consulting an attorney with a view to starting proceedings for a divorce. Mrs. Miller has been contemplating the move for some time, but has taken no steps until she came to St. Paul and engaged the attorney. That she has gone this far she admitted, but wanted it clearly understood that no legal steps have been taken thus far, and that no action will be taken until the fall term of the district court opens.

The wife of the Duluth congressman is visiting at 112 Western avenue north with her 14-year-old daughter. She was reluctant to discuss the case last night, further than to say that she had obtained the services of an attorney. She said it had not been decided whether the case would be filed in the courts at Duluth or at St. Paul. When questioned regarding the reason for the possible divorce Mrs. Miller would not reply further than to say: "It would be shameful to publish such a thing at this time, and it would be highly detrimental to Mr. Miller's political career."

CIVIC DEPRAVITY WAS DENOUNCED

Vote Selling Pointed to as Indicative of Low Tone of Citizenship

San Francisco, July 13.—"Civic depravity" was denounced by Richard Welling of New York, one of the speakers at a section meeting of the National Education association. His subject was "Pupil Self Government as a Training for Citizenship." Mr. Welling said, in part: "Eight years ago, I addressed this association on training for citizenship in the schools. ST. PAUL EXHIBIT IS GOING

North Dakota State Fair Will Have Opportunity of Seeing Splendid Pure Food Display.

St. Paul Dispatch: The Minnesota dairy and food department will have an exhibit at North Dakota's state fair in Grand Forks, July 25-29. North Dakota's pure and impure food exhibit was burned recently and the department of that state cannot collect another in time for the fair. As the work of the Minnesota commission is recognized as being of the highest character, its department was selected to make this exhibit.

POSTMASTERS MEET

Annual Convention Will Be Held Here August 3 and 4.

The fifth annual meeting of the North Dakota Postmasters league will be held in this city August 3 and 4. This organization takes in all postmasters and deputies in the state. Postmaster Cubison of Minnewaukan is president and W. E. Biggs of this city is acting secretary on account of the resignation of Postmaster Stevens. A good program has been arranged for the convention.

PROSPECTS ARE FINE FOR EXHIBIT OF HORSES

Many Prizes Are Offered For Displays at the State Fair

The prospects for a fine display of horses at the state fair have never been brighter than they are this year. Word received from the various parts of the state and from neighboring states indicate that the list of entries will be large and will include some of the finest horses in the northwest.

John Dinwoody of Bottineau, who is superintendent of the horse department and who has been with the southern circuit, reports that all the horsemen from the southern part of the state will have strong contestants. A fine string of horses will be sent here from Hamline, Minn. The northern circuit will also furnish a fine list of entries, especially of speed animals.

The importance of the state fair exhibit is shown by the splendid prizes that are offered by the various breeders' associations and others interested in horses.

One of the finest prizes is the silver cup offered by the Minneapolis Commercial club for the best display of draft horses exhibited by a resident of North Dakota, South Dakota or Minnesota.

The percheron exhibit will include some fine specimens as there are several noted percheron breeders in this section that will have displays. The Percheron Society of America offers $115 in cash besides a number of gold and silver medals and a beautiful champion cup.

The Clydesdale exhibit will also be very strong and many valuable prizes including a number offered by the American Clydesdale association, will be keenly contested.

In the Shire horse division the prizes will include four beautiful loving cups offered by the American Shire Horse association.

A large number of Belgian horses will be seen at the fair and they will be of a very high standard. E. Toussaint & Co., importers and breeders of Belgian horses, offer three silver fruit dishes as first, second and third prizes for the best grade of Belgian colts.

In addition to these prizes for special breeds, the North Dakota Live Stock association offers a cash prize for the best draft foal of any breed and another cash prize for the best yearling draft colt. These animals must be owned by North Dakota exhibitors.

A strong list of speed animals is expected to be exhibited. The classes to be shown are hackneys, French and German coaches, American trotters, light harness horses and saddle horses. In addition there will be exhibits of ponies and mules.

HE ASKS FOR A COMMISSION

Suit Filed in Illinois Court Against the Great Northern Land Company of This City

Suit has been filed in the circuit court of Stephenson county, Illinois, entitled W. J. McCann vs. the Great Northern Land company of Grand Forks. The complainant, a Freeport, Ill., man, will attempt to recover the sum of $839, alleged to be due him as commissions on land deals he handled for the company. The cases will be heard at the September term of court.

McGOEY FLEW MACHINE AT THE STATE FAIR GROUNDS WEDNESDAY EVENING

The Kenworthy-McGoey aeroplane, with Thos. McGoey driving, has demonstrated that it is capable of making flights. Five successful flights without an accident marked the trial of the big machine Wednesday evening at the state fair grounds. The trial was witnessed by a large number of spectators, who were very enthusiastic over the excellent showing made.

The machine was taken out about 7 o'clock and at first McGoey ran it along on the surface to see that everything was in working order. Then he worked the elevator and the aeroplane rose gradually and skimmed through the air at a height of fifteen or twenty feet. The machine was raised and lowered, brought to the surface and raised again in a manner that showed that it was under perfect control. No spectacular work was attempted nor will it be attempted for a few days, during which Aviator McGoey will assure himself of his control of the aeroplane and of its perfect adjustment. The success of the trial would indicate that it will not be long until the machine and its local aviator, are making record flights.

After seeing the success of the trial, F. G. Kenworthy, who has been backing the venture, wired several places which have been negotiating for the appearance of the machine and it is probable that McGoey will make flights in several cities of the state during the summer. The machine will also be seen at the state fair here and will doubtless prove a big attraction.
