Illinois ought to take something for its legislature.

Kentucky's night riders make the reckless motorist seem comparatively harmless.

President Wilson ought to be sure he is right before going ahead with his extra session.

Why does not Jim Hill do a little prophesying? He is the only licensed American prophet.

The price that staggers "humanity" has already been paid many times for the European war.

One minor test of Americanism is interest in baseball. There are no hyphens in the national game.

Lincoln's rail ax has been discovered. It is a pity that somebody does not discover the Lincoln spirit.

Prof. Taft's fatal fondness for statistics helps to injure what otherwise might be charming literary style.

Zeppelin's desire to fly to these shores will not be interfered with by any fierce protests from London.

What the nations of Europe really need, just now is a plausible excuse for coming out of this madness of war.

For a country to remain half hyphenated and half not is impossible, just as it cannot remain half slave and half free.

Planters are still wishing that cotton could manage to get a share of attention in the general comment on higher prices.

Somebody should inquire of the baker what has become of the old fashioned "Yesterday's bread" that sold two loaves for a nickel.

When it comes to telling a local official what is wrong with him, New York does not need the help of any imported emotional oratory.

Unless California manages to get up some kind of a war it should have a great run of tourists who have no desire to go to Europe this year.

The tendencies of future emigration are difficult to calculate in view of the fact that every country is frankly admitting an increased cost of living.

That name of "Whales" for the Chicago Federal League team will be all right if they do not qualify as minnows before the end of the coming season.

Mexicans who have asked for the advice of Col. Roosevelt are probably looking for some brand of emphatic eloquence with which they have not become familiar.

There's a prevalent opinion that the rich don't suffer in hard times, but with George Gould suing Broth Howard for $17.82 one feels that something can be said on both sides.

And, of course, woman voters will insist on having the last word in matter political, too. That is, the theoretical last word. They don't really utter any last ones, of course.
