BRYAN'S WARNING.

Whatever may be your criticism of Mr. Bryan's judgment, no man will ever say that he has not always had the courage of his convictions and stood ready to defend them, even at the cost of temporary popularity, says The Missoulian.

That he proposes to have his say in democratic counsels during the coming months is certain. The former secretary of state is not at all pleased with what he terms "a complete reversal of policy" on the part of his former chief, as outlined in the president's late address before the Manhattan club of New York city.

In an authorized interview Mr. Bryan says:

"I have read the president's speech at New York with sorrow and concern. He is doing what he believes to be his duty, but I feel it my duty to dissent. We cannot criticize his motives, as he has given his views with clearness and emphasis, but those who differ with him are under a like obligation to express themselves with equal clearness."

Mr. Bryan declared that the president will not assume "that he is more deeply interested in the welfare of his country than the millions who elected him to be, for the time being, their spokesman."

"And if," the statement continues, "he is giving voice to the opinion of his countrymen, he is anxious to have them as frank with him as he has been with them—how otherwise can he know whether he represents, or misrepresents, their views?"

"I hope the president will not be deceived by the atmosphere of the Manhattan club. This is the one place in the United States where the Mammon-worshipping portion of the democratic party meet to exchange compliments. There is no group further removed from the sentiment of the masses, whether you measure that sentiment by economic, social, or religious standards."

His friends say that Bryan has made all his plans to be in Washington during the coming months, so as to be close in touch with his political friends in congress, who are reported to be in opposition to the administration plan for increasing the army and navy.

That he will carry his fight into the democratic national convention next June is the belief of the Washington newspaper men, prepared, if necessary, to oppose the renomination of Wilson."

THE COAL SHORTAGE.

During the extreme cold snap, which practically the entire country is experiencing the past week, the coal dealers in every city have been having more than their share of troubles. A shortage has developed right here in Glasgow during the past few days, which, unless the weather moderates, is liable to become serious. It is a common habit to let the coal bin run down until only enough for a day or so is left and then send in a rush order for a load of coal. During the past two or three days every coal dealer in the city has been working every available team hauling coal, and on account of the fact that the railways cannot move any freight trains, at the time of this writing, nearly every available pound of coal in the city has been sold. The local dealers keep their bins full at all times, but it is impossible for them to arrange to meet such a demand as they have had the past week. The fault of the shortage lies with the consumers. The dealers have tried to impress upon the public the necessity of laying in a stock of coal early, but in nine cases out of ten the admonition has been looked upon simply as an inducement for them to buy more coal. The present situation is liable to develop into a stage where a lesson will be taught that all will remember for some years to come. The local coal dealers are using every effort to meet the emergency and, we understand, have the assurances of the railway company, that should the situation become serious, they will turn over a few cars of company coal which they have stored in the yards here. But this will relieve the situation for only a short time, as during the past day or so Glasgow has burned several cars of coal daily. If you run short of coal during the cold snap don't cuss the dealer, but lay up a resolution to buy your coal early from now on.

IN MONTANA.

It has snowed for quite a while in Montana.

But you see we wear a smile in Montana,

When the soil is good and wet

Splendid crops we're sure to get,

And we'll all be happy yet, in Montana.

As a state it can't be beat, Old Montana.

Heads the list in wool and wheat, Old Montana.

Full of ginger and of pep,

You must keep a lively step

If you live up to the "rep" of Montana.

Exchange.—

I slid where frosty winds rose high.

A snowflake fell and so did I.

It fell much farther, I admit.

But I bumped harder when I hit.
