MANY NEW PRINCIPLES

Roosevelt's Confession of Faith Sounds Doctrines That He Admits Will Be Termed Socialist.

In his "confession of faith" made in his speech to the national progressive convention, Colonel Roosevelt struck boldly into new ground, advocating measures he said frankly would be denounced either as socialism or anarchy. These are some of the things he advocated:

Coherent action between those responsible for national affairs and those responsible for state affairs. This he called the most important thing.

Extending the recall of judicial decisions to apply to federal as well as state courts.

Establishment of machinery to make amendment of both national and state constitutions easier.

Government aid for workmen that they may become part owners of the business in which they are employed.

Alteration of the government system so a public servant, when he cannot conscientiously carry out the wishes of the people, shall at their desire leave his office.

Control of trusts through retention of the Sherman anti-trust law and establishment of an interstate industrial commission to regulate industrial conditions governing monopoly prices to be controlled where these concerns deal with the necessities of life.

Adoption of a number of measures to secure "social and industrial justice to the wage workers."

Legislation to increase popular control of all governmental agencies, including a national law for presidential primaries, election of United States senators by direct vote, the short ballot, corrupt practices acts, applying to primaries as well as elections, qualified adoption of the initiative, referendum and recall.

Woman suffrage.

Strengthening of the pure food law.

Establishment of a national health department.

Creation of a permanent tariff commission to study the effects of protection and the relations of the tariff to labor.

The end of blanket revisions of the tariff, saying changes should be made schedule by schedule.

Measures to relieve the high cost of living, among which are suggested elimination of the middle man.

Fortification of the Panama canal. Free passage through the canal for coastwise traffic and equal tolls for all other ships, whatever flag they fly.

Navy to be built up steadily until reduction of armaments is made possible by international agreements.

Our Fraternal Dead.

Burnside R. C. No. 24 passed resolutions in memory of Susan A. Helman and said in part:

Words fail to convey the loving sympathy of the members of our order, who mourn with the bereaved daughter, but we mourn not as those without hope, for by faith we hear the voice that giveth hope, saying, "Thy sister shall rise again."

"I hear it singing, singing sweetly, Softly in an undertone, Singing as if God had taught it, It is better farther on.

Night and day it brings the message, Sings it while I sit alone; Sings it so the heart may hear it, It is better farther on.

Farther on? Oh, how much farther! Count the milestones one by one. No! no counting—only trusting, It is better farther on."

Also in memory of Annie Michels: "To know her was to love her."

In our organization she will be sadly missed, but in the home, where her absence makes home impossible, the loss is most keenly felt, and the one to whom, in the springtime of life, she pledged her troth, and with whom she walked life's pathway in both sunshine and shadow, we tender our sincere sympathy.

"She is not dead; she did but close her eyes Upon the busy passing scenes of earth, To open them beyond the skies, In glorious rapture at the glad new birth.

Look not upon the tomb, O! ye who bear The load of grief, Look upward! She is there."

Lovingly submitted in F. C. and L. JOSEPHINE D. CROCKER, LULU HOWARD, MAY DIVET, Committee.

ONE SHIP NEARLY SURE.

Sentiment Grows Against the House Naval Policy.

Washington, D. C.—Alarmed at the growing strength of the two-battleship proponents in the house, democratic leaders issued a call for another caucus on the naval bill, to be held Tuesday night. It is generally accepted at least one battleship will be provided for in view of the firm attitude of the battleship campaign.

Sulzer, who is leading the fight for two ships, announced he had 31 signatures to his petition that the caucus release members from the previous no-battleship pledge. With the addition of half a dozen more, Sulzer expressed confidence that his forces would hold a balance of power and the matter be forced into the open house. In such event he believes by a coalition with republicans, two battleships could be voted into the bill.

"Were all medicines as meritorious as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy the world would be much better off and the percentage of suffering greatly decreased," writes Lindsay Scott of Temple, Ind. For sale by Poley's Drug Store.

SURVEY PUSHED NORTH.

Alaskan Boundary Line May Be Marked This Year.

Washington, D. C.—Since the summer of 1909 the joint commission appointed by the United States and Canadian governments to locate and mark the boundary line separating British territory from Alaska has been actively engaged in this work, pushing the line northward from the Yukon to Porcupine river by the end of the 1910 season. Last summer the field operations were advanced farther along that part of the 141st meridian which extends from Porcupine river to the Arctic ocean, and it is believed that the present year will witness the completion of this part of the survey.

Realizing that its well-equipped field organization afforded unusual facilities in this remote and rather inaccessible region for gathering much information not directly connected with the particular work of locating and marking the boundary line, the joint commission extended an invitation, which was readily accepted, to the geological survey of Canada and the United States geological survey to send geologists to accompany the field parties during 1911 and 1912, and to examine the geology along the boundary from the Yukon to the Arctic.

The most satisfactory arrangement for making such a geologic examination in the two summers appeared to be to assign one of the two sections of the line to each government, as otherwise there would have been much duplication of work and the observers would be required to traverse the whole of both sections. Under the arrangements adopted the Canadian geologists undertook to examine the southern or Yukon-Porcupine section and the United States geologists the northern or Porcupine-Arctic section.

The United States geologists last year commenced field examinations in June and carried their work northward approximately 100 miles to the headwaters of Firch river, which flows into the Arctic ocean.
